Gas crisis

The long lines making morning commuter travel difficult on Newton's main streets this week may be a thing of the past by next Monday if Gov. Francis Sargent's voluntary distribution plan takes hold.

Mayor Theodore Mann's plan for distribution, announced last Friday on Television, seems to have been made unnecessary by the governor's announcement Tuesday.

Mann's program, which had the voluntary participation of many of Newton's gasoline dealers, asked all dealers to open at 7 or 8 a.m. and pump gas until the daily portion of their monthly allocation of gas had been exhausted.

Dealers were urged to discourage motorists from "topping off" their regular customers in the afternoon.

Another part of the mayor's plan was to be the posting of a sign at each station to show hours during which gas would be sold, and the distribution of slips of paper by the dealers to their customers with suggestions for easing the gas crisis.

Mann said Tuesday that the signs were distributed Tuesday.

NCDF, Towers pass board

The first low-and moderate-income housing development to be built in Newton was given the green light Monday night.

The Board of Aldermen, by a 21-1 vote, approved the site plan of the Newton Community Development Foundation for 50 units of housing on its Hamlet Street site.

A vote of 19-3 approving the revised site plan of the Towers at Chestnut Hill cleared the aay for the resumption of Towers construction on the land adjacent to the NCDF land and, because of a complicated contract between NCDF and the Towers, therefore the NCDF housing.

The Towers, a luxury condominium of 428 units priced from about $70,000 to $250,000, was stopped by the city from proceeding with construction after Mark White, now an alderman, found that the permissive use granted by the Board in 1966, had expired in 1971.

In efforts to gain an extension of the permissive use by the Board of Aldermen, the Towers proposed to help NCDF build housing.

After many long, frequently recrimination-filled meetings of NCDF, the Towers, and the aldermanic Land Use Committee, agreed on a contract between NCDF and the Towers providing that the Towers pay NCDF a minimum of $162,500 by the time that NCDF has obtained mortgage financing with the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

If NCDF sells to the Towers the tax–shelter capability of a limited partnership, the Towers will give NCDF an additional $112,500.

NCDF has been engaged in trying to build low-and moderate-income housing in Newton for the past six years. A bid for a 500-unit, 10–site plan failed by one vote in the Board of Aldermen in 1970.

Subsequently NCDF appealed to the state Housing Appeals Committee, where the proposal was heard intermittently for nearly two years.

Recently NCDF said it had withdrawn the appeal, since most of the previously committed sites had gone out of NCDF control.

The money to be paid NCDF is contingent on NCDF's starting construction within 24 months from Oct. 31, 1973, the date of the NCDF-Towers agreement.

A list of 13 conditions, many of them multiple, was attached to the site-plan approval of the NCDF housing. Many had to do with surface and sewage drainage, especially in relation to the Vale, a 7-acre parcel of natural land recently acquired by the city for conservation purposes.

One condition prohibits more than two motor vehicles connected with any single housing unit. The latter restriction was designed to avoid "dormitory living," as was the further restriction that no more than three unrelated persons be allowed to occupy any single unit.

A former opponent of NCDF, Ald. Michael Antonellis, was the only alderman to speak. He said that he always maintained that NCDF and the Towers should be voted on independently, on their merits.

Now, he said, in view of the low density of the development and other favorable considerations, and despite objections of many of the neighbors, he saw "no way to vote against it."

"If NCDF gets off the ground, we will be judged by them," Antonellis said.

The only alderman to oppose the NCDF proposal was Andrew Magni, who said Tuesday that his reason for voting against

Not a toy

Like a child's discarded toy, a Street Department packer truck lay at bottom of the 35-fot deep incinerator pit last Thursday. The driver, who apparently put the truck into reverse after dumping the load, got out of the truck alone and was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital. The truck was removed after almost nine hours effort. Street Commissioner Edmund Bolduc has the icident under ivestigation. (Lupo photo)

Public hearing on school budget

There were few people not directly affiliated with the Newton Public Schools at a public hearing on the 1974-75 school budget last week.

There was also little controversy when the audience was called upon for comments and questions.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink presented an overview of a budget of $29,131,917. According to the school administration, this is a $1,881,059 increase over the 1973-74 budget, a 6.9 per cent increase.

Fink noted that principals and department heads had asked for an increase of $3,440,873, a 12.6 per cent addition. The administration asked the School Committee for an increase of 7.8 per cent.

During the past three weeks, the School Committee tentatively cut $249,553 from the administration's request.

Fink explained that the tenatively approved increase of $1,881,059 comes primarily from four areas.

He said that negotiated salary increases accounted for $1,048,574, Chapter 766 requirements called for an additional $332,066, the increase costs of heat and utilities required a $335,266 increase, and a deficiency in the Newton North High School equipment account called for an additional $150,000.

Fink claimed that these increases accounted for $1,865,866 of the overall increase, $15,193 less than the total.

Fink said that a reduction in enrollment has resulted in a reduction in staff in recent years. He noted that the schools will have cut staff by 70 positions in four years.

The School Committee has tenatively approved a reduction of 31.3 professional positions and four aides. According to Fink, this represents a saving of $447,494.

This reduction would keep the pupil-staff ratio and the pupil-weighted staff ratio for 1974-75 the same as the ratios of 1973-74 according to the administration.

School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum asked the audience to indicate how many people were present who were not directly affiliated with the schools.

What about solid waste? Decision this month

Converging deadlines will force a decision by the city of Newton this month on how it will handle its solid-waste problem.

The city of Newton is faced with a March 1 deadline imposed by the state, by which time it must present a plan for disposal within compliance with air-pollution regulations.

An Arthur D. Little Co. report last summer gave the city three options—bring the incinerator into compliance with clean-air regulations at a cost of about $2 million; mothball the incinerator and go into a transfer-haul system to get solid waste out of the city; become involved in the construction of a resource-recovery plant.

The Newton-Waltham District Committee recently was granted a two-month extension by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which funded the study committee, and by the legislative bodies of the two cities.

The committee report on the feasibility of a joint refuse disposal operation is due, with the extension, no later than March 31, to be submitted to Mayor Theodore Mann of Newton and Mayor Arthur Clark of Waltham.

The mayors then will submit the recommendations to their respective legislative bodies, which must either approve or disapprove the recommendations by July 1.

A preliminary report from the district committee's consultant Camp Dresser McKee, will be presented to the district committee Feb. 9, and the formal report will be presented Feb. 13.

To help make the decision about which path to take, the city has asked for bids on upgrading the incinerator and on alternative methods of handling the city's solid waste. Bids will be returned Feb. 7.

At a meeting of the Newton-Waltham District Committee last week, three methods of handling the disposal of trash were presented to the District Committee and a representative from Camp Dresser McKee, one of which is a departure from the options presented by Arthur D. Little.

Brian Hogan, president of Resource Systems, Inc., showed the committee slides of his proposal to install three facilities for the district (two in Newton, one in Waltham).

The Consumat incinerators that he proposed are small starved-air incinerators with afterburners and small, short stacks. The units are modular, so that a facility may be enlarged easily.

Hogan said that a total of 16 Consumats would give the city a capacity for 200 tons of refuse per day.

On a five-year contract, Hogan said, cost of incineration could be as low as $10.65 per ton.

Hogan described his facilities as "the interim solution" to give communities a chance "to catch their breath," until either a long-term solution can be found or the state comes up with a mandatory regional plan.

Other disposal methods presented at the meeting were resource-recovery systems developed by the Grumman Ecosystems Corporation and by East Bridgewater Associates.

Newton is in the red

Technically, Newton is in the hole to the amount of about $200,000.

Actually, according to Arthur Marr, director of Finance, the amount is minus $197,038.

The problems that may arise from the shortage are primarily that in case of a great deal of snow the city may have to borrow maoney to pay for snowplowing and that the School Department will probably not have enough money to pay its teachers' salary increases in June, Marr said.

The situation has arisen because uncollected taxes presently have exceeded the surplus.

An amount equal to the taxes uncollected must be left in the surplus account.

Marr attributes the unusually large amount of uncollected taxes to the transitional 18-month budget, which has precluded collection of taxes at the end of the calendar year as has been done previously.

Marr estimates that by the end of March perhaps $300,000 in taxes can be collected, which will not be enough to cover the expected School Department deficit of $648,796 for teachers' salaries.

Money may be borrowed for snowplowing but not salaries, he said.

Last summer, Marr told the School Committee that it should request a supplemental budget to cover teachers' salaries, which were then under negotiation, and was told that the Committee did not want to reveal to the teachers' union what it expected to pay in salary increases by asking for a budget supplement.

Finance Committee member Richard Bullwinkle, who has since been elected vice-president of the Board, also cautioned last summer against using $1.6 million from surplus to reduce the tax rate.

At that time he felt that there would not be enough money left to carry the city through.

A shot in the arm for the Recreation Commission

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The Newton Recreation Commission is showing new signs of life.

One of a pair of new appointees to the commission is not only a young woman but also a livewire with as many new ideas as the somewhat staid and elderly Recreation Commission can absorb for the next few years.

Lynne Arthur, the new Ward 5 member approved by the Board of Aldermen this week, lives in Newton Highlands, is the mother of two pre-teenage daughters, and is an avid tennis player.

She wants to steer the Recreation Commission in the direction of family and community - oriented activities.

"The Recreation Department feels it has a public - relations problem. Perhaps that is because it seems to deal in things, not relationships," Ms. Arthur said.

"I am going to go to the people in Ward 5 and find out what they want in recreation," she said determinedly. "That's my first obligation."

As "a successful boy for a long time," Ms. Arthur's recent description of herself, and the mother of two girls, Ms. Arthur is also concerned about the equality of recreation op-

Under study

Newton Chief Librarian Virginia A. Tashjian recently addressed a meeting of the League of Women Voters of Newton on facilities, services and staffing of the Newton library system. The meeting was part of the league's "Know Your Newton" series.

League studies judicial procedure

Jury selection, plea bargaining, sentencing and parole are the topics to be discussed at meetings of the League of Women Voters of Newton on Feb. 13, 14 and 15.

The League of Women Voters of Massachusetts is currently conducting an intensive study of the Massachusetts judicial system. The purpose of this study is to examine the system as it presently functions and determine what, if any, changes are needed to implement the constitutional guarantee of "due process," that is, fair, orderly and reasonable procedures for the administration of justice.

The Judiciary Study Committee of the Newton League will report their findings and there will be general discussion of current practices and proposed changes. The suggestions resulting from these discussions will be forwarded to the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts to be used in the development of League positions and areas for action.

Serving on the Judiciary Study Committee of the Newton League are Nancy Kane, chairman, Elizabeth Kiebala, Sharlene Finkel, Barbara Keller, Nanci Goldberg, Rosalind Block, Joyce Shashoua, Ann DeRosier and Cindi Bloom.

Selection of a jury representing a cross section of the community is an element of a fair trial. Jury selection in Massachusetts is done by the election commissions of the various communities from names obtained from the official census, street lists or other available lists. Some citizens are automatically exempt, and some bases for discretionary exemptions are provided.

In practice, there is considerable prescreening by the election commissions, and names of persons who would be entitled to discretionary exemptions are often excluded from jury call. Computer selection is currently under discussion as a method for obtaining random selection and thus more representative jurors.

Jurors for trial juries are called for one month of service and are paid from $12-$22 per day for that period. They then become part of a jury pool and may or may not be selected to hear cases. Sitting in the jury pool for an entire month without hearing a trial is not uncommon. A proposal to change jury duty from one month to one week and to increase the pay is now before the Massachusetts legislature.

Plea bargaining is a controversial practice that has recently received national attention because of the case of Spiro Agnew. There is no doubt that without plea bargaining the courts would be hopelessly clogged with criminal trial, but the lack of court involvement and the potential for depriving the accused of his rights make it a hazardous process.

In essence, plea bargaining involves the agreement of the defendant to plead guilty to a specified charge (often reduced from the original charge) in return for an acceptable sentence recommendation by the prosecutor. However, the recommendation of the prosecutor is not binding on the court and the defendant may be misled. A guilty plea cannot be revoked, and the court may impose penalties more severe than those agreed upon.

Sentencing and parole have also been a recent focus of national attention. The discretionary power of judges is one of the issues, and there is controversy over prescribed versus flexible sentencing.

Parole is an integral part of sentencing. In Massachusetts, most convicted persons are eligible for parole after serving one-third of their minimum sentence if a minimum sentence is given. In cases where no minimum (only a maximum) sentence is specified, the parole board may determine parole eligibility.

For persons convicted of violent or sex-related crimes parole eligibility is usually reached after two-thirds of the minimum sentence has been served. In practice, 98 percent of all convicted persons are eventually released from confinement on parole or after completion of their sentences.

The meetings will be held at the following times and places: Wednesday, Feb. 13, 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church, 848 Beacon St., Newton Centre, and 8 - 10 p.m. at 50 Charlotte Rd., Newton Centre; Thursday, Feb. 14, 8 - 10 p.m. at 28 Frederick St., Newtonville; Friday, Feb. 15, 9:30 - 11:30 a.m., at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St., Auburndale. Babysitting is available at both morning sessions at $1 per child. For directions or transportation call Judy Lavine at 969-2953. All sessions are open to the public.

Pines wants hamburger regulated

A need for state regulation of standards for hamburger was cited this week by State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton).

"Meat prices climbed 23.9 percent last year, with a 33 percent jump in wholesale beef prices," she noted. "This means the consumer is paying $16.40 for meat which only cost $10 in 1967."

Expressing concern at the rising food prices, Pines stated: "It is urgent that Massachusetts regulate the standards for food products. With prices increasing at a rapid rate, consumers must be assured that they get the most for their money."

Pines has recently introduced legislation in the house which would regulate the percentage of fat in hamburger and require labeling of the fat contents on the package. The bill would attempt to establish a uniform nomenclature by requiring stores to divide hamburger or ground beef into four categories: regular hamburger or regular ground beef, lean hamburger or ground beef, extra lean and diet lean.

According to Rep. Pines, "Most stores already categorize hamburger meat by similar terms; however, there is no guarantee that the term will mean the same thing in different stores. At present, the consumer has no assurance that there is even a difference in fat content between each category."

Pines cited a recent study which revealed that there is little conformity among supermarkets in the percent of fat content that is maintained in hamburger meat. Although the federal and state food and drug regulations stipulate that fat content must not exceed 30 percent, the percentages recorded ranged from 21-36 percent. Nutrition experts, such as Dr. Jean Mayer of Harvard, agree that even the 30 percent figure required by Federal Dug standards is still too high

Mrs. Pines' bill stipulates that regular hamburg or regular ground beef shall not contain more than 30 percent fat. Ground beef or lean hamburger would not be permitted to contain more than 25 percent fat. Extra-lean ground beef or extra-lean hamburger must have less than 20 percent fat. In diet lean ground beef or diet lean hamburger, not more than 17 percent fat would be allowed. The stores, in addition, would be required to clearly label prepackaged hamburg with the exact amount of fat content.

"There is no excuse for consumers not to know the exact contents of the product they are purchasing," stated Representative Pines. "The consumers' health as well as money is at stake in this issue. If passed, the bill which I have filed would insure that the supermarkets are not profiting at the expense of the shopper."

Authority wins case against contractor

The Newton Housing Authority has been awarded $68,910.54 in a draft report issued by a master of Middlesex Superior Court.

The money is to be paid by the contractor for Norumbega Gardens, the Cumberland Construction Co., of South Bellingham, for damages resulting from leakage into two apartments.

Norumbega Gardens, which is housing for the elderly, was built in 1970.

Included in the award was approximately $10,000 for replacement of all exterior doors. The master's report found that interior rather than exterior doors had been supplied.

Robert L. Athas, acting as master, found in his draft report to the court that the leakage was caused by improper construction of the gutter system.

The report also found that the roofing subcontractor, Richard Moore Co. of Boston, is liable to Cumberland Construction for nearly $53,000 of the damages.

The master found that cracks in the concrete slab balcony were caused by failure of architect, William Nelson Jacobs Associates, Inc., of Boston, to provide expansion joints. This cracking, he found, did not contribute to leakage in the apartments.

The master found that the entire gutter lining system must be replaced in order to meet contract requirements.

The Newton Housing Authority was represented by the law firm Hale and Dorr of Boston. The draft report may be subject to hearing and confirmation by the Superior Court itself.

This draft report was the culmination of litigation begun when the leaking manifested itself three years ago.

Japanese Embassy seized

KUWAIT (UPI) — A band of Arab and Japanese guerrillas seized the Japanese Embassy in Kuwait today, held Tokyo's ambassador and other officials hostage, and won a Japanese pledge of safe conduct for four commandos holding a hijacked ferry in Singapore.

Kuwait officials said the guerrillas announced the takeover in a statement sent to a local newspaper and the Japanese government. It was signed by the Marxist Arab group known as the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), the Japanese Red Army guerrilla organization and the Palestinian splinter group "Sons of the Occupied Territories."

In Tokyo, a Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman said the government had accepted the guerrilla demands to provide a plane for the four Arab and Japanese guerrillas in Singapore and fly them to Kuwait.

Mass. may not be getting fair share

Fair Practice

The governor said station owners also will be asked to stop giving certain customers preferential treatment. He said he will file "unfair practices" legislation to end discriminatory gasoline schemes.

Sargent said gasoline dealer associations across the state have agreed to imp ement the plan, voluntarily.

In announcing the plan the governor said, "I act today because Massachusetts can wait no longer. A shortage in gasoline now threatens to disrupt the mobility of our citizens.

"Automobiles carrying people to and from work — trucks, taxis, ambulances and emergency vehicles—face a daily uncertainty in their ability to function," he added.

Sargent said "frayed tempers, price gouging, hoarding—these are realities at gasoline pumps across the state."

Less Gas

On the question of gasoline supplies in the state, Sargent said Massachusetts has been allocated 7 per cent less gasoline this February than last February while the average nationwide reduction is 3 per cent.

"In some parts of the country gas stations are actually getting more than they did last year," Sargent said. "In Arizona and Montana they are getting 120 per cent of what they got last year."

"There are very strong indications Massachusetts is not receiving its fair share of gasoline," he added.

Armed gunmen hit Community National

The Community National Bank, 15 Cypress St., Newton Centre was robbed by two armed gunmen of $13,389 last week, according to Newton police.

The robbery, on Friday morning, came one day after Newton Police Chief William Quinn announced on television that two men had been arrested and charged with conspiracy to commit armed robbery on Thursday.

When asked if the arrests on Thursday might be connected to the robbery on Friday, Quinn said that "there was an outside chance" that the Community National Bank was the bank which had been slated for robbery on Thursday.

Police reported that a wall alarm was received from the Community National Bank at approximately 10:31 a.m. Friday. This was followed by a telephone call from the bank reporting that it had been robbed.

The two gunmen allegedly left the bank in a blue Buick. The car was recovered 15 minutes later by Sgt. Jay Kennedy on Tyler Terrace. It was reported stolen by the Brookline Police Department.

According to police, the manager of the bank stated that one man said in a normal voice, "keep your eyes down, nobody will be hurt." He was holding a gun in his right hand, police said.

The man jumped over the last rear teller's counter and took money from a cashier which he put in a bag, according to police. He then went to the drive-in teller and to a third teller whom he told to open a lower compartment.

Both men reportedly wore ski masks. The first man, who went to the tellers, was described as a male, 5'10"-6', 170-175 pounds, and 20 to 25 years old.

The second man, who reportedly carried a small type hand gun, was described as a male, 5'6", and approximately 30 years old. According to police, he was described as short and heavy.

The men allegedly left from the front door of the bank and turned right. The first man reportedly got into the front seat of a Buick four-door hard top, and the second man got into the back seat.

Newton police and the FBI are investigating the robbery. The bank was federally insured.

Quinn had called a press conference last Thursday to reveal that two men had been arrested for conspiracy to commit "armed robbery, bank."

The men arrested Thursday were John A. Kelley Jr., 31, of 178 Nehoiden Rd., Waban, and Francis H. Larkin, 39, no address, according to quinn.

Quinn said that Newton and state police received a tip that there would be a bank robbery in Newton sometime Thursday morning.

Quinn noted that the New England Organized Crime Information Center was involved in developing the information.

Special squads were reportedly organized under Capt. Walter Drew of the Newton Police Department, State Police Lt. John O'Donovan, and State Police Lt. William C. Nally.

Quinn said that the police had the registration numbers of suspected cars, and that cars were kept under surveillance.

Quinn reproted that Larkin and Kelley were arrested at gunpoint after their cars were spotted near Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Detective Robert Ober reportedly arrested Larkin while Kelley was arrested by Det. Sgt. Edward Cuervels.

Quinn said that the cars had been kept under surveillance for about one and one half hours.

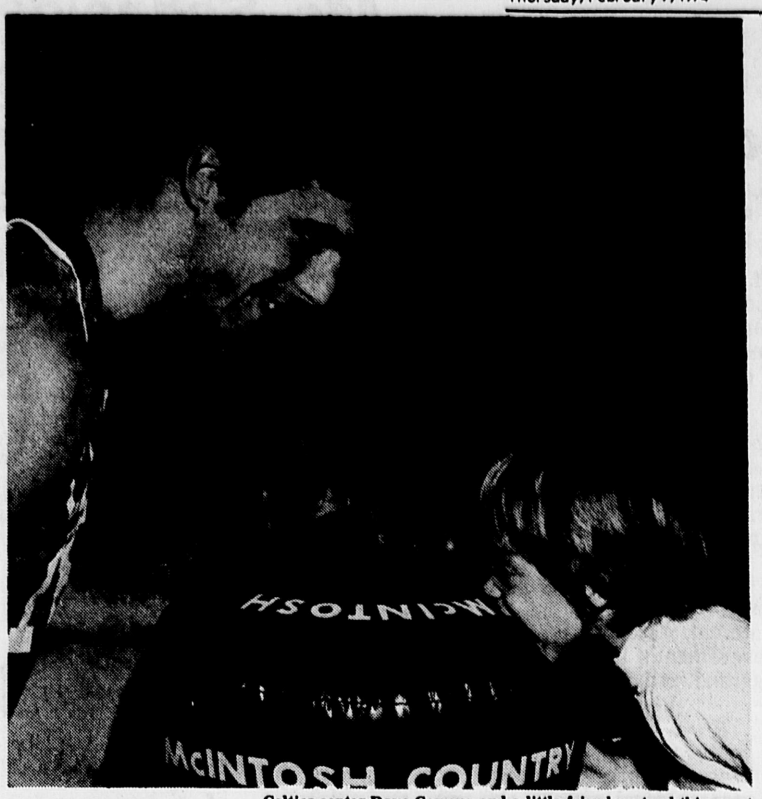
Quinn said that a third car, a yellow Plymouth, got away.

Quinn noted that all 26 Newton banks were being watched. He said that a special roll call was held early Thursday morning.

Kelley was also reportedly arrested for illegal possession of firearms, larceny of a motor vehicle, and illegal possession of a sawed-off shot gun.

Larkin was also arrested for illegal possession of a firearm and illegal possession of a sawed-off shot gun.

Quinn said that, "we took them from the street rather than let them go to a bank."



A big bite

Celtics center Dave Cowens and a little friend pretend this great big apple is real. Cowens and his teammates participate annually in a brush-in for children during Dental Health Month, to emphasize the need for preventive dentistry for children.

Dental Health Month

What used to be Dental Health Week here is now Dental Health Month in Newton and the rest of the Commonwealth.

The emphasis is on good "preventative" dental medicine for children and the chairman for the event this year is Newton children's dentist, Dr. Michael Sheff.

Dental Health Month was given a boost again this year by the Boston Celtics who attended a "brush in" for kids where children had a chance to mingle with the tall and hear about how to brush teeth.

The Celtics game Sunday against the Capital Bullets was dubbed "Dental Health Day" and half-time was given over to a plug for teeth.

For the second straight year, children will also have the opportunity to play the role of the dentist while exploring a special exhibit at the Children's Museum this month.

The exhibit was formally opened Tuesday. In addition to allowing children to scrutinize all of the dentists' usual paraphernalia, there will also be continuous showing of dental films geared to children and a puppet show for them.

The emphasis will be on this year's national theme: "Kick the Sweet Snack Habit."

Drinan to speak at LWV meeting

Congressman Robert Drinan will meet with the League of Women Voters of Newton on Friday, Feb. 8, from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church, 848 Beacon St., Newton Centre.

Following a short address there will be a question and exchange period. Questions and discussion about the energy crisis and the impeachment inquiry and anticipated.

The meeting is open to the public, and the League welcomes participation by any interested citizen. Child care will be available at a cost of $1.00 per child. Anyone in need of further information, directions or transportation may call Mrs. Burton Lavine at 969-2953.

Executive reorganization approved

The request by Mayor Theodore Mann for salary appropriations to implement the reorganization of his executive staff was partially approved this week by the Board of Aldermen.

Only three of the original five salaries were approved, however, and none of them is in the amounts requested.

The position of chief administrative assistant, James Salter, will receive $22,000 per year instead of the $25,000 requested by the mayor and approved by the Finance Committee. Salter presently receives $18,810.

Planning Director Charles Thomas, who will be planning and programming officer, will receive $20,000 annually, up from his present salary of $16,720. The mayor had asked for $22,500 for this position.

The salary for mayoral aide Charles F. Miller was increased from $9,045 to $10,500. The mayor had requested $12,500 each for two aides, but is not pressing the addition of the other aide at this time.

Before voting on the new salaries, the whole Board went into "executive" (closed) session to discuss "personalities."

An agreement reportedly made in the closed meeting would have postponed action on the last item, but Ald. Robert Tennant forced a vote on Miller's salary by proposing it in an amendment to the motion on the other two salaries.

Miller was present in the aldermanic chamber during the debate on all the salaries.

The creation and funding of a new position, chief financial officer, has been deferred.

The new salaries and job titles become effective March 1.

Opposition to the increases was not widespread. Ald. Matthew Jefferson thought the raises should not go into effect until July, the beginning of the new fiscal year, while Ald. Richard McGrath feared that granting large increases to the "highly visible" mayor's staff might create a moral problem for the other employees.

The vote on both Thomas' and Salter's salaries was 20 in favor, 2 opposed.

Miller's salary was approved by a vite of 14 in favor, eight opposed.

A resolution added to the mayoral-staff approval by the Board calls on the city's new personnel director to make a study of salaries of department heads here and in other cities.

Nature's ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

Winter bird feeding seems to be a booming economic business, but how good is it for the birds?

In cooperation with other New England conservation organizations, the Massachusetts Audubon Society has decided to carry out a field study to learn some of the answers to that question.

Undoubtedly, many birds survive winter in the northern states because of the food subsidy present at feeders. This is true particularly of the seed–eating birds, since most people who put out bird feed use grain.

The probability that such northwestern birds as the evening grosbeak have spread through New England, and even into the South, each winter because sunflower seeds are readily available at feeders is great. In fact, evening grosbeaks have done so well that a few of them have remained in northern New England many summers to breed.

The cardinal and the tufted titmouse, both grain eaters and sunflower seed fanciers, may have thrived in New England partly because of the feeder food supply. Both birds glean wild food in the South but access to winter food in New England, without bird feeders, that is, is more limited.

In the more detailed phase of the study, ornithologists will attempt to learn to what extent bird feeding stations are a mixed blessing to the birds. Feeders undoubtedly contribute to a spread of bird diseases, partly because they concentrate birds in a small area and give them contact with each other

It is not unusual, for instance, for a bird feeding operation to wipe out a flock of pigeons. Pigeons have an unusual lining in the throat and mouth, partly because they feed their young a unique substance known as "pigeon milk." The birds predigest food and then regurgitate the result into squabs. The throat lining sometimes becomes infected. In advanced stages, the birds are unable to swallow food. They try to swallow, however, and infect grain which drops from the mouth. Other pigeons eating the grain become infected with the disease, which often is fatal. While the disease is peculiar to pigeons and not a threat to most other birds, there may be other diseases which do spread among wild birds at feeders.

As an initial stage, the Society will attempt to learn how many persons (households) feed birds, how much food they put out daily or at other intervals, and whether they use mixed feed, sunflower seed or thistle seed. Even such elementary facts are unknown in most states.

Census not complete

Census forms have been returned by about 65 per cent of Newton households, according to Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission.

The census forms with planning questionnaires were mailed to all households in early January.

The census information is required by law

A second mailing will be required to those households that have not returned the forms. If the second mailing does not obtain 100 per cent response, a policeman will visit delinquent households.

Mofenson files jury selection bills

Legislation to change the method of juror selection in Massachusetts has been filed by Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton).

The legislation, co-filed with Newton resident Joseph Romanow, legal systems analyst of Suffolk Superior Court, has received the endorsement of Chief Justice Walter J. McLaughlin.

In explaining the bill, Rep. Mofenson said: "The bill is aimed at achieving a fair cross section of the community by providing for the standardized, random selection of jurors. Every citizen in the Commonwealth would have equal opportunity to be considered for jury service, and archaic exemptions, such as the governor, attorneys and clergymen, would be abolished. And for the first time, 18- to 22-year-olds would have the right to be considered."

"The level of citizen participation in government would be raised tremendously; and a greater percentage of the population would be afforded the invaluable opportunity to witness the judicial system in action," Mofenson said.

The streamlined measure corrects many of the inefficient, time-consuming procedures that are currently employed. A central office of jury commissioner, staffed by a commissioner and at least two deputies, would be established. The office would utilize data-processing methods, capable of processing the selection of 200 to 300 jurors per day instead of 200 to 300 per month.

The month-long sessions that jurors are currently faced with will be a thing of the past under Mofenson's legislation. Under the more modern system, jurors could expect an average term of three days every twosyears.

"One of the more novel aspects of the proposed measure," Mofenson said, "is the totally revised system of juror compensation. For the first three days of petit juror service, a juror would be compensated for lost wages by his or her employer. The state would thereafter assume the burden of compensation of the doubled rate of $40 per day. Grand jurors would be paid at the same rate for the entire term of service. Provisions for voir dire, or the questioning of jurors in order to determine potential bias, would be retained."

Lead screening tests at local nursery schools

Lead screening tests for preschool-age children will continue in Newton on Wednesday, Feb. 13 at five local nursery schools. Screening will be conducted by staff from Newton-Wellesley Hospital as part of a program initiated here last September in conjunction with the state Department of Public Health.

Testing is scheduled at the following schools: Threadgold Nursery School, 71 Madison Ave., Newtonville; June's Creative Play Group, 258 Cherry St., West Newton; Pulsifer ABC Nursery School, 1349 Centre St., Newton Centre; Hills and Falls Nursery School, 258 Concord St., Newton Lower Falls and nursery school, Newton South High School.

The Newton-Wellesley lead screening program has tested more than 1,000 Newton children in five months. Testing in nursery schools is considered vital because ages one to six are most valuable to potential lead poisoning by ingestion of sweet-tasting lead paint chips. Senior citizens associated with the R.S.V.P. organization have directed clerical work involved in the program.

Self interest

One of the driving forces that molded this country was selfinterest. In America one had the liberty to pursue self-interest.

The outcome of liberty and self-interest working hand in hand was the founding of this country as a land of opportunity within which an individual had the chance to make of his life what he wanted.

Over the years, this right to liberty to pursue self-interest has produced problems for the nation as a whole, but perhaps no challenge to the nation has been so severe as that which has been occurring over the last few years.

Ironically, the threat comes from the liberty to pursue self-interest. Watergate is an example of the government's abusing this freedom for the aggrandizement of the few in power.

It may be easy for some of us in Massachusetts to disengage ourselves from the problem at the federal level, since this was the only state to reject Nixon. But the difficulty is not only at the national level; it also occurs at state and local levels.

As a countermeasure it is important for all citizens to dissect the rationalizations used for justifying state and local actions if we are not to become victims of rationalizing for self-interest.

Executive reorganization

Misnomer or not, what has come to be known as "reorganization" of the executive department is quickly becoming a bone of contentiin here in Newton.

Briefly, the plan, stemming from recommendations made by a private consulting firm, calls for an executive staff consisting of a chief administrative officer, a financial officer and a city planner.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has submitted salary funding requests to the Board of Aldermen for these positions. The salary of the planner has been set at $20,000 and the salary of the chief administrative executive officer has been set at $22,000.

This executive staffing, not under control of the Board of Aldermen, has undergone a significant change from the consultants' original recommendations; and it is this change that is trirring debate in the community.

Under Mann's version, both the city planner and the financial officer will report to the chief administrative officer, not the mayor.

In the consultant study, prepared by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. of Boston and submitted in June, 1973, the recommendation was that both the administrative officer and the planner report directly to the mayor.

Since the mayor's plan for staffing his department has been publicized and the chain of command indicated, the question "And what is the mayor going to do," has been asked by a number of citizens.

And it has been sarcastically answered by others: "Cut ribbons and go to banquets."

This is certainly not a good impression for an elected official to leave with his people.

We do not really view Mayor Mann as an official who would abdicate his responsibilities to the electorate, and we hope that he might give more of an explanation and some asurances that he is not sealing himself off from the free flow of information.

We further suggest that the mayor consider modifying his reorganization plan in his own department to place these three top officers, financial, administrative and planning, on an equal footing and have all three of them report directly to him.

A Mann trademark has been an "open door" to the people. Faith appears, at this point, seems to be shaken in this characteristic.8

It is time to reassure the electorate the door is not about to close.

Ms. Schneider gets answers to her questions

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Often, in the course of putting the Graphic "Opinion" page together, we handle what are known as "open letters."

These are the letters that may not be specifically written to our paper, but are written to various officials with a copy to the paper. I think that one function of an "opinion" or letters to the editor page is to make an individual's cause known generally.

This week, the Graphic received copies of letters sent to Mayor Theodore D. Mann from Carolyn Schneider of Newton Corner. Her letters, one of which was published last November in the Graphic, deal with her questions on the hiring practices of Cole-Layer-Trumble, the firm doing revaluation in Newton.

She had seen a story in a newspaper that led her to believe the firm was only hiring men, and was objecting to this idea by letter to Mayor Mann.

Her letter was answered Nov. 20 via a memo from Paul J. Reinhard, in charge of Newton revaluation, to Mayor Mann, indicating women had been employed. Ms. Schneider obviously received a copy of this memo as it was included in the correspondence mailed to us.

Two more letters from Ms. Schneider were subsequently sent to the mayor.

Completely Black

On Dec. 7, she sent a letter requesting additional information, including asking the questions: "what position does the woman occupy, what is her salary, what is the total number of employeesof the firm, what are the average earnings of all men working in the firm?"

My objections lie in this unpublished letter.

First, I object to the opening senteance of this letter, sent to the mayor, stating: "As requested by your aide, I am writing to you prior to submitting correspondence to the newspapers . . ."

It displeased me to learn mayoral staff is discouraging citizens from taking their grievances to the public, as they certainly have every right to do. Ms. Schneider's first letter, the one that appeared in the newspaper, was answered within four days.

The letter I quoted above was dated Dec. 7, 1973, and had not been answered by Jan. 30 when she wrote her third letter, this time again alerting the press.

Her latest letter tells the mayor she is "awaiting a response" and concludes with this sentence: "Because public disclosure in the past has reaped response and because my patience is limited, I have submitted a copy of our 'correspondence to the press."

In case Ms. Schneider has yet to receive the information, Mr. Reinhard said Tuesday that two women are working as "listeners," door-to-door property checkers, in Newton. A total of five women are working on the Newton revaluation; the other three are in the office. "Listers," regardless of sex, are paid the same salary "because they are doing the same work," Reinhard said.

I personally do not believe that it's any of Ms. Schneider's business what these two female listers' salaries are. I don't think this is a fair question and I don't think Mr. Reinhard should have answered it.

He did say, however, that he had received a copy of her second letter and sent appropriate information to the mayor.

If, as this case demonstrates, information comes to Newton citizens from the mayor's office faster because it has appeared in the newspapers, this idea of "open letters" can be considered a good way of lighting a fire under the administration.

In any event, I can see no excuse for Newton residents being requested to keep their causes from the local press.

Political Highlights

Quinn second-guessed by armchair generals

A number of the armchair generals in Massachusetts politics have been second-guessing Attorney General Robert Quinn and asking whether Quinn has waited too long in announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

The question they are raising is whether Quinn is allowing former State Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline to open too big a lead in the Democratic gubernatiorial race before officially moving into the contest.

Actually, there is no solid evidence or indication that Dukakis has any lead at all. Quinn has not been idle. Even though he is an unannounced candidate, Quinn is campaigning about as vigorously as he can and still perform his duties as Attorney General.

Top Democratic leaders, who are supporting Quinn for election to the Governorship, have a simple answer when they are asked if they believe Quinn is making a strategic mistake in delaying the announcement of his candidacy until March.

They declare that if Quinn can't defeat Dukakis easily and "without even working up a good sweat" in the September primary, he doesn't belong in the main battle with Governor Francis W. Sargent next November.

Dukakis is not considered a strong candidage by most Democratic regulars. They regard him as a left-wing extremist, a defender of abortion and the gay liberation, who is not in the mainstream of Democratic thinking.

The former Brookline law-maker was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor in 1970, but there was no evidence at that time that Dukakis was as much help to Boston Mayor Kevin H. White, the Democratic nominee for Governor, as Donald Dwight was to Republican Governor Sargent.

What is troubling many prominent Democrats and business executives, who intend to back Quinn for the Governorship is that Quinn is a low-key Attorney General who does his job in an efficient but unspectacular fashion and does not get as much public attention as somone such as Edward W. Brooke did, when he was Attorney General.

One highly respected Democratic leader advised Quinn to indict John O. Boone when Boone was state correction commissioner and conditions were completely chaotic at the Walpole State Prison, with someone being killed almost daily at the prison.

This would have attracted the public spotlight to Quinn, would have given him exposure he needed and would have drawn the line for a clash between Quinn and Governor Sargent who would have been obliged to suspend Boone if he had been indicted.

But Quinn was not prepared to take so drastic an action. He expressed the belief that Boone was a poor administrator but that Boone was not guilty of any crimes which would warrant his indictment.

While the matter was being argued by Quinn's top advisers, conditions at Walpole State Prison got so far out of hand that Governor Sargent fired Boone, and Quinn's opportunity to make political capital of the poor administration of the state's prison system by a man Governor Sargent had imported from Virginia, was partly wiped out.

Quinn has been a good Attorney General but not a spectacular one. He doesn't make headlines. He enforces the law precisely as it should be applied. He doesn't hesitate to make decisions and rulings which are unpopular and cost him votes.

This does not draw any volleys aof applause from some of Quinn's top backers who admire his integrity and his determination to be a good Attorney General but who wish Quinn would manifest a little more recognition of the fact that he is travelling a difficult political road and will face a strong Republican opponent if he wins his party's nomination for Governor.

At this point in the campaign Quinn probably is better known than Dukakis but not as well known as Governor Sargent.

To keep the record straight, Attorney Kathleen Ryan Dacey, former member of the Boston School Committee, apparently will be a third contender with Quinn and Dukakis in the Democratic gubernatorial campaign.

Boone would set free nine of 10 prisoners

The more closely one listens to John O. Boone, the more one wonders why Governor Sargent ever brought him to Massachusetts to mess up the state's prison system.

A speech by Boone, who obviously considers himself one of the world's foremost experts on prisoners, leaves a strong feeling of gratification that he was fired before he created any more chaos then he did at the Walpole State Prison.

Boone is now a professor of criminal justice at Boston University and is the director of a prison reform organization which he himself founded after he was given the heave-ho last June from his job as state correction commissioner.

This reporter does not intend to make Boone a permanent target, but he persists in projecting himself to the forefront and in making inflammatory and controversial statements which should not go unanswered.

Boone recently made a two-week visit to Vietnam, apparently to get material for speeches. On his return to the United States he compared the treatment of the political prisoners in South Vietnam to the handling of the freed slaves after the Civil War.

That is a matter of which he properly can voice an opinion. But then he went on to say that the United States "has fixed it so that black people and poor people would land in prison."

Exactly what he meant by that pronouncement was not clear to this listener. Boone, incidentally, now talks like a fervent revivalist when he makes a speech. He almost seems to be trying to capitalize on the fact that he was ousted from his job as correction commissioner.

Referring again to the people in prison, he said: "They were guilty of only one thing, stealing a little property." He made it sound as if that were a minor offense which should be overlooked.

Boone appeared to say at one point that he would free nine out of 10 inmates in Massachusetts prisons and at another time that he would release 95 out of 100 prisoners.

In a speech to members of the Unitarian Society in Northampton. Boone asserted that only paid murderers and mass murderers, representing five per cent of the prison population in the United States, should remain in jail.

That seems to mean that a murderer, who brutalizes or kills another person, should not be sent to prison if he is not paid for his action and if he does not commit multiple murders. To say the least, that is a very liberal attitude on who should be sent to prison and who should be allowed to roam at large to commit an occasional murder.

In a talk at the Old Cambridge Baptist Church, Boone said that "90 per cent of criminals are not dangerous."

Maybe so, but some naughty boys did some mean things at the Walpole State Prison while Boone was the state's correction boss–like slitting the throats of other inmates.

But they committed their murders one at a time. They presumably were not paid for killing fellow prisoners who had displeased them. On the basis of Mr. Boone's reasoning, we should not get too exercised about those infractions of the law.

From where we sit, however, it does seem a little more serious than getting a parking ticket. It also may explain why conditions at the Walpole State Prison became so chaotic under Boone.

One reader has written in the sarcastic suggestion that Governor Sargent could have saved some money by retaining John Boone as correction commissioner.

He says that if Boone had remained on the job another few months, the inmates at Walpole State Prison either would have killed each other off or escaped while on furlough, and Sarge could have closed down the prison until there were some mass killings or paid murders.

Somehow, we don't think that is Mr. Sargent's idea of achieving economies although he says he would hire John Boone if he had it to do all over again.

Rumors insist Fuller will oppose Sargent

Reports persist in political circles that Peter Fuller is weakening under the appeals from critics of Governor Sargent in the Republican party and will either oppose Mr. Sargent at the GOP State Convention in June and in the primary next September or run as an Independent in November.

Peter Fuller, in case you just came in, is the Cadillac dealer, an outstanding sportsman and the son of former Republican Governor Alvan T. Fuller. He was a heavyweight on the Harvard boxing team when this observer was a senior at the Cambridge university which was a long, long time ago. More recently, he was the owner of the great Race horse, "Dancer's Image.

The writer finds it difficult to place much credence in the widely circulated rumors. Peter Fuller is a hard-headed businessman, and his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor would not make political sense. His candidacy as an Independent might help rather than hurt Governor Sargent.

Fuller is one of a number of business executives who are disenchanted with Governor Sargent and are hopeful that Attorney General Robert Quinn defeats Sarge next November. They probably would not back Michael Dukakis against Mr. Sargent because of his left-wing views in the event that Dukakis should be the Democratic nominee for Governor.

Business leaders can be a big help in financing a political campaign, but they don't pack much punch at the polls on election day.

Peter Fuller could not defeat Governor Sargent either at the unofficial Republican State Convention in June or the GOP primary in September. He could cause a split in the Republican party and injure Sarge's chances of winning reelection, but he could do that by making some television speeches for Attorney General Quinn next October.

Fuller's displeasure with Sargent crested when the Governor vetoed a bill to resore the death penalty for murderers of police officers. That issue probably will cost Sarge the police vote but not hurt him fatally in the election.

Peter Fuller would not have much to gain by venturing into the political wars, and he might well lose a lot of prestige.

Poetically please

To the Editor:

Plow for the Pedestrian, too!

Dear little man behind the plow
We enlist your help, as we need it now . . .

I'm depending on you to get to school
Cause I'm told to use sidewalks,
Safety people stress this rule!

Sir, I'm only about four feet high
seem up to the sky!

I'm just a kid and I'm able to climb,
But a fall into the street
Under a car is a crime.

Sir, could you also suggest what I'm to do
To cross at the signals plowed in by you?

I know there's a button for lights I'm to press,
But without your help, I'm stranded in distress!

I know that you're trying, and I must try too,
But remember we walkers must depend upon you!

I appeal to your judgment and good common sense.

From Congress

Make 1974 the year of the veteran

Today's veterans know no hurrahs. Homecoming parades and tumultous newsreel scenes of troopships landing have long stopped.

The Congress and the country, despite recent ovations for returned POW's, have barely taken notice of the 6 million veterans returned from service in Vietnam and those who returned many years ago; 1.1 million from Worls War I, 14 million who served in Worls War II, and 5 million who are veterans of the Korean Conflict.

We have, as a part of our heritage, a tradition of gratitude to vete4ans of the Armed Services, yet today a nation that understandably wants badly to forget war is also forgetting the returning soldier.

I have the hope that in 1974 the Congress will move forward in enactment of measurers to update and extend the programs to which it has committed itself on behalf of America's veterans, those left disabled as a result of service, those who were widowed, those children who lost a parent, and provide initiative in education, training and other areas for those in need of this assistance.

Some 2.2 million veterans receive disability compensation. In addition there are 200,000 widows and children of veterans who receive some form of assistance.

In 1973, there were 125 compensation bills pending in the House Veterans Affairs Committee. I have the hope that the House will act early in 1974 to increase compensation which is received by veterans with service-connected disabilities and adjust the pension law to include a correction so that no person's benefits whether veteran or survivor or dependent of a veter- should diminish if Social Security benefits are increased.

The G.I. bill must be updated. The monthly allotment ofr a single veteran should be increased from $220 to at least $250. Indeed, with total average charges of private education over $4,500 and public colleges over $2,700, according to an Office of Education report, the veteran faces rough going in stretching benefits of $1,980.

Technical and vocational training as well reflects these higher costs. The requirement of 30 per cent disability before a veteran can receive rehabilitation training should be reduced to a 10 per cent disability. The period during which a veteran may claim his G.I. bill benefits should be extended from eight years to at least 10 years or, even better, be totally eliminated.

The home loan market is so highly priced at this time that most veterans cannot purchase a home. The Congress should make improvements in the loan program so that veterans, especially those of the Vietnam Era, may be able to have an interest rate that will permit them to obtain a home of at least moderate cost.

Further funding should be granted to the program entitled, "Veterans Cost of Instruction" which was authorized by the 92nd Congress. The $25 million appropriated by the Congress to carry out this program was impoinded by the Administration. A Federal Court ruled that the money must be made available.

The program is designed to assist veterans interested in attending college who have special readjustment problems. Under this law, colleges which increase their veterans' enrollment by 10 per cent over the previous year are entitled to payments of up to $450 for each of the certain categories of veterans attending the school full-time.

If adequately funded, this particular program could act as an incentive to colleges and techinical institutions to reach out for veterans while at the same time furnishing veterans adequate psychological and financial incentives to make full utilization of their G.I. bill.

The foregoing are but some of the areas that need legislative attention. Along with these is the continuing concern for appropriate medical care especially at Veterans Hospitals, which has been a main topic of study of veterans groups such as the Disabled American Veterans. Attention must also be given to the Veterans Administration itself, which is overworked and has become an often uninspiring bureaucracy.

Pleading fiscal necessity and reflecting a general cutback in domestic programs, the Administration has fought raising veterans benefits. It is my hope that the Congress will not be intimidated by the threat of presidential veto but will move quickly to reaffirm its committment to this nation's veterans.

"Child-care" deduction proposed for mothers

Rep. Paul A. Schneiders (D-Canton) has filed a bill with Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and several other legislators that would allow "child-care" as a deduction for mothers who wish to work.

A working mother could take as a tax deduction "child-care, household services and disabled dependent care" under the proposed legislation. This deduction is already allowed by the federal government but not by the Commonwealth.

Rep. Schneiders said the deduction would make it easier for women to join the outside work force if they wish to do so.

Other area representatives who sponsored the bill were Robert Frazier (D-Braintree), Lawrence Buxbaum (D-Sharon), Thomas Brownell (D-Quincy), and Gilbert Cox (R-Needham).

Clearing up METCO misunderstandings

To the Editor:

Several proposals have been made to expand the METCO program, some of which seem to misunderstand the nature of the program and its relationship to the State Department of Education.

It seems appropriate, therefore , to state publicly, just what METCO is, how it is organized and funded, what its goals are, and what things it can and cannot do.

It is a good opportunity for METCO to take a look at itself, in this the eighth year of its operation, to review its progress and to consider its direction for the future.

METCO (the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity, Inc.) is a private, non-profit, voluntary organization. Founded in 1966 in response to the educational issues of that time, it was a cooperative venture by parents, educators, and suburban citizens who believe that quality integrated education should not have to wait for the state's Racial Imbalance Law to be implemented-and how woefully correct they were not to wait-and that suburban communities could and would join in a venture to provide that kind of education.

Funded by the federal government and foundation grants for the first three years, the program has succeeded so far beyond the dreams of its founders, so much so, that it was funded by the state when federal funds ran out; has grown steadily, and has met with almost universial approbation.

METCO is governed by a board of directors made up of citizens from both Boston and its suburbs. It is reimbursed for its services by the 31 cities and towns who participate in its program under the general supervision of the State Department of Education.

Funds are granted by the legislature and allocated to the various communities to provide educational services for those students who come to them from the city. These communities then reimburse METCO for its administrative expenses.

In other words, METCO provides a specific set of services for the Commonwealth for which it is reimbursed, but it remains a private organization. This procedure is similar to programs in other area of public life, both state and national, where government has decided that it wants certain things to be done, but prefers not set up its own bureaucracy to do them, and contracts with private institutions for the needed services.

METCO's relationship with the State Department of Education; the governor's office, the school superintendents and school committees, and the legislature has been excellent.

METCO provides and continues to provide a wealth of knowledge about the mutual needs of city children going to suburban schools and suburban communities adjusting to the needs of Black children from the city.

METCO accepts students, negotiates with suburban towns for student spaces, provides special tutoring programs and sets up bus routes.

METCO has served as an educational laboratory in which much has been learned about the needs for black studies programs, for black staff, for tutoring, for special counseling, for ways of dealing with misunderstandings, hostilities and for the bagaries of buses and sometimes bus drivers. We have faced unexpected problems and enjoyed unexpected dividends. These have been valuable years of learning for all of us.

We hope that (again it is a sad commtary that we are still talking about a hope for the future), the lessons learned in METCO's experience can be of help in the resolution of the larger question of integration which has yet to happen.

We do not expect that METCO, as currently organized, will be the primary mechanism through which a system-wide integration will be accomplished. We do, however, believe that METCO can and will take more children. Many of us believe that in the long run, the greater Boston area will move toward some kind of metropolitan cooperation, not just to comply with the requirements of the Racial Imbalance Law, but also to provide better integration of varied cultural and economic backgrounds and resources. We are already cooperating with pilot programs working on a variety of approaches in this direction.

But we do want to make it clear that we are legally and philosophically tied to the law as it now stands.

We are therefore opposed to any suggestions for "solving" the racial imbalance problem in Boston by simply and mindlessly shifting out of the city 20,000 Boston students in an obvious attempt to avoid obeying the law and to create city–suburban hostilities.

We would ask what kind of pied piper would say to one group of children, "You are the problem, and you must go." The racist implications are clear, and METCO cannot be used to persuade 20,000 black students that they, and they alone, must be bused to solve that problem.

On the more general question of METCO's growth, out position is that we want to serve as many of Boston's minority children as is educationally sound, and as long as they are truly volunteering to participate.

We will gladly expand to the extent that the board of directors deems feasible in school systems that volunteer to participate, and will work with us to provide a good environment for the children once they get there. METCO will not however, be used to evade the Racial Imbalance Act.

Effective plowing

To the Editor:

We tip our hat to the Newton snow fighters for their effectiveness in plowing our streets and keeping them open as they did over the weekend.

They earned high marks in meeting the test of the season's heaviest snowfall of more than 10 inches. Good planning paid off with streets opened up long before most of us were able to dig out of our own driveways."

Applauds editorial

Dear Editor:

Now I know why I've always liked the Graphic.

Your editorial in today's (Jan. 3) paper is to be applauded. Not only does our nation need quality in our military services but never before has there been such opportunity for young men and women to learn and benefit from the service schooling and experience, whether it be a full Regular tour or one of the attractive Reserve packages.

Keep up the good work!

Car pools can reduce traffic and pollution

Car pools are one way to help conserve energy cut traffic, save money, and fight pollution. And they provide door-to-door service.

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association reports that studies show that in major metropolitan areas the average car occupancy for work trips during rush hours is 1.6 persons per vehicle. If car occupancy could even be increased to two persons per vehicle, 20 per cent of cars might be removed from rush hour traffic.

Now galvanized by the energy crisis, all kinds of groups are organizing computer pools and matching services for drivers. Even before this winter's crisis, figures from the U.S. Bureau of the Census showed that more people were using car pools than were riding buses, streetcars, subways, and elevated trains combined.

Some companies have developed ingenious car pool systems. The 3M Company in St. Paul, Minnesota, for example, owns 30 vans that hold 12 passengers each. Passengers pay a monthly fee based on the number of miles from home to work. If they want, drivers get to use the vans nights and weekends for a nominal mileage charge. Fees from the first eight passengers go to the company to pay for the vehicle and maintenance. But if a driver can get more than eight passengers, he or she can keep those fees.

Panel to discuss "energy puzzle" on Feb. 8

"The Energy Puzzle," its causes, ramifications for citizens and the economy, and its possible solutions, will be examined by a panel of experts at Newton College on Tuesday, Feb. 12 at 8 p.m.

Sponsored by the Newton College Lecture Series, the event will be held in the Barry Science Pavilion on the Centre St., Newton Campus. The public is invited at no charge. The evening's program offers an opportunity for area residents to get some facts and ask some questions.

The panel will include: Gordon M. Kaufman, professor of Operations Research and Management at the Alfred P. Sloan School of Management, M.I.T.; Charles H. Burkhardt, executive vice president of the New England Fuel Institute and member of William Simon's 11-man Advisory Council; and Hugh Saussy, Deputy regional administrator, U.S. Energy Office. The discussion will be moderated by James J. Whalen, president of Newton College.

Professor Kaufman obtained his B.S. degree from Yale in 1955, an M.B.A. in 1957 from Harvard and a D.B.A. in 1961, also from Harvard. He has been involved for some time in extensive research and is the author of numerous papers concerning statistics and techniques in oil and gas exploration.

He is a member of Tau Beta Pi, Sigma Xi, the American Mathematical Society, AAAS, and the American Statistical Association. Before he became affiliated with M.I.T. in 1962, he served as assistant professor at the Harvard Graduate School of Business administration.

Burkhardt holds a B.S. in physics and an M.S. in mechanical engineering. Except for a stint with the Army Engineers during World War II and several years of teaching, he has been with the oil industry for over 30 years. He has taught and lectured on the vocational and college level at the Milwaukee School of Engineering, University of Illinois, Rutgers University and several other schools.

In the late 1950's, he became managing director and secretary-treasurer of the Oil Heat Institute of America and in 1960, vice president of the National Oil Fuel Institute. Since 1962, he has been executive vice president of the New England Fuel Institute which represents nearly 1,200 independent oil distributors.

Burkhardt is the author of 5 books and over 300 articles covering all phases of the petroleum marketing and fuel oil applied energy fields. He has also been a consultant to several large corporations, among them Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, now known as Exxon, for whom he made fuel oil marketing surveys in England, Holland, Belgium and France.

Living history fair presented at Weeks

Barbara Ireland, assistant director of RSVP, in conjunction with Irene Bickleman, resource consultant for Weeks Junior High School, offered a living history fair recently to provide an opportunity for members of the Newton Public Schools to become acquainted with the people who have offered to be history resources in the city's classrooms.

Mrs. Eloise Levitt, a teacher at Weeks Jr. High, explained how she had developed a ten-week mini-course in living history with the help of five R.S.V.P. volunteers, - Boris Kleid, Herbert Aron, Albert Datz, Mrs. Mildred Stetson and Mrs. Esther Racoosin.

R.S.V.P. volunteers talked about growing up in Newton and other parts of the U.S.A., as well as in many different foreign countries. They had first-hand knowledge about the Pony Express, the Great Depression, World Wars I and II, Rationing, the Tea Pot Dome Scandal, the changing role of women, etc.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (R.S.V.P.) is part of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. at 429 Cherry Street, West Newton.

Volunteers serve Newton schools as teacher and library aides, reading and math tutors, as well as in the living history projects.

Heart attack and stroke: never 'sudden'

A heart attack is often described as "sudden." Yet, there are no sudden heart attacks - only those that seem to happen suddenly.

A stroke is referred to medically as a "cerebrovascular accident." It's not an accident in human terms. Underlying causes build over the years.

Both have their roots in basic risk factors: high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol and excess cigaret smoking. Other include heredity, a lack of exercise, a diet high in saturated fats and cholesterol, and obesity.

"Some risk factors can be avoided by an alteration of lifestyle," says Dr. Reusch, president of the Southeast Chapter, Massachusetts Heart Association. "Others can be minimized by an awareness of them. But equally important, we should know and heed the early warning signs that often precede a heart attack or stroke."

Dr. Reusch, of the Goddard Memorial Hospital, listed the warning signs, published in literature and other material supplied as a result of Heart Fund contributions. They are:

Heart Attack: Prolonged, oppressive pain or unusual discomfort in the center of the chest, behind the breastbone; pain may radiate to the shoulder, arm, neck or jaw; pain or discomfort is often accompanied by sweating; nausea, vomiting and shortness of breath. Sometimes these symptoms subside and then return.

Stroke: Sudden temporary weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg; temporary difficulty or loss of speech, or trouble understanding speech; temporary dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye; an episode of double vision; unexplained dizziness or unsteadiness; changes in personality, mental ability or the pattern of headaches.

"As the warning signs indicate," Dr. Reusch says, "heart attack is never sudden, stroke is never an accident. By being aware of these warning signs, and by seeking immediate medical help when they occur, you literally can save your own life."

Heart disease claims over a million lives each year, he continues. In Southeastern Massachusetts alone, an estimated 5,000 will die of heart attacks, and another 1500 will suffer from fatal strokes.

"The goal of the American Heart Association is to save your heart," Dr. Reusch adds. "When Heart volunteers call at your home during February - American Heart Month - they'll give you information on the warnings signs of heart attack and stroke. Give generously to the Heart Fund."

Evans Products Company

Mike Grossman, president of Evans Products Company Retail Group and Grossman's, has announced the advancement of four of the company's top executives, Morton Bernstein and Robert Harrow of Quincy, Kenneth Gee of Wellesley, and W. Royce Taylor of Lincoln.

Bernstein, former executive vice president-general manager for Grossman's 142-store chain, has been named vice president for Evans Retail Group which includes 212 lumber and building materials outlets nationwide.

With the company for 24 years, Bernstein became Grossman's general merchandise manager in 1962, then vice president-general manager in 1971, and a year later executive vice president.

He and his family live at 28 Perry Road, Quincy.

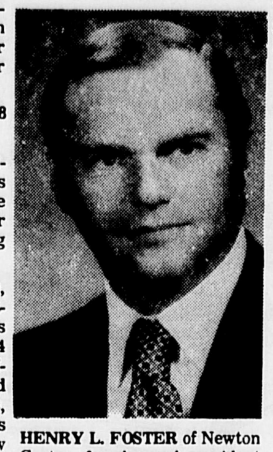
Harrow, vice president-merchandise manager, has been advanced to executive president-general manager for Grossman's, while continuing as merchandise manager.

Before joining Grossman's, Harrow was vice president-store management for Bradlees Division of Stop & Shop. His 24 years in retailing include affiliation with Alexanders and Interstate Department Stores, New York City, Arlan's Department Stores, New Bedford, and Orbit Stores, Boston.

The Harrow family lives at 62 Bay Street, Quincy.

Gee of 59 Livermore Road, Wellesley, Grossman's vice president-operations, and Taylor of Bedford Road, Lincoln, vice president-contractor sales, have also been named executive vice presidents of the Braintree-based lumber and building materials firm.

Prior to joining Grossman's three years ago, Gee was president and retail manager for Gee Lumber and Hardware of Chicago. A graduate of Northwestern University Business School, he has been Grossman's vice president-operations since 1972.



HENRY L. FOSTER of Newton Centre, founder and president of the Charles River Breeding Laboratories Inc., Wilmington, has been elected a trustee of Brandeis University.

Taylor, a graduate of Tufts University and Harvard Business School, joined Grossman's 24 years ago as a salesman servicing contractors in the Greater Boston area, went on to head the Wellesley, Mass., operation, became sales manager, regional, then general manager before assuming the vice presidency that preceded his present position.

The promotions are attributed to the rapid growth of Grossman's and the Evans Products Retail Group. Last week, Grossman's opened three stores in one day in Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Watertown, Wis., and a contractor outlet in Scranton, Pa. New store locations are constantly sought.

Eagle Scout award to Lawrence Rogovin

The Norumbega Council of the Boy Scouts of America awarded the Eagle Scout award to Lawrence E. Rogovin, 51 Shornecliffe Road, Newton, at ceremonies recently in the Grace Church in Newton.

The award, highest in scouting, was the first made to an Explorer Post member by the Council.

Rogovin, a freshman at Clark University in Worcester, was certified as an Eagle Scout last September. The award presentation was delayed to permit special ceremonies to be conducted by Explorer Post 506, of which he is a member.

The Post presents Indian dances to boy scout, girl scout and community organizations in the Greater Boston area during the year. Rogovin has been a dancer for three years.

Presentation of the award was made by Joseph Melick, advisor to the Post. An original Indian chant composed by Todd Goodwin of Natick was presented in Rogovin's honor.

More than an hour's wait for gas

A check of gas stations Tuesday morning showed lines of up to 40 cars at all stations pumping gas.

Some drivers said they had been waiting an hour.

On Washington Street near the MBTA Station and in West Newton the lines impeded Boston-bound traffic.

In Newtonville most stations were closed. A sign on one said that they were selling gas only to regular customers.

In Newton Centre a long line ws still making Beacon Street almost impassable at 9:30 a.m.

At Four Corners, a gas station at each corner and one on Beacon Street all were pumping at the same time for a brief period. Cars were backed up on Walnut Street and on Beacon Street on both sides.

Some stations were settong a minimum purchase of $3, which is the same figure asked by the governor.

The governor's plan, to take effect Monday, is a modification of the so-called Oregon plan.

Cars whose registration plates end in an odd number will be sold gas on odd-numbered days, and those with even-numbered plates will get gas on even-numbered days.

Vanity plates will be considered as odd-numbered-ending plates.

Under the governor's plan, emergency and commercial vehicles will be able to get gas every day.

Stations will display green flags to tell motorists that they are selling gas, yellow flags for sales to emergency and commercial vehicles, and red flags to indicate that the station has no gas.

Mayor Mann said after the governor's announcement Tuesday that he felt that the city of Newton had been "a catalyst" in the solution to the distribtuion problem, but pointed out that federal intervention will be necessary to improve the supply of gasoline and achieve a more "even-handed distribtuion" throughout the country.

Mann wished especially to commend Mike Tocci of West obil, leader of the Newton gasoline dealers, for his cooperation and his personal commitment to trying to solve Newton's gasoline problem.

State plan to curb drug abuse

A comprehensive state plan for drug abuse prevention, treatment and rehabilitation in the Commonwealth has been completed by the Governor's Drug Abuse Prevention Planning Council in concert with the Department of Mental Health's Division of Drug Rehabilitation.

Matthew P. Dumont, M.D., assistant commissioner for drug rehabilitation, said the document "is the most up-to-date and complete" statement of the needs and resources relating to drug abuse prevention in the state.

He said that Massachusetts is ahead of many other states in terms of rehabilitation activities but that service needs and gaps still exist.

"Careful review of both resources and needs," he said, "resulted in a balanced and realistic approach to what is considered most appropriate for the Commonwealth."

Highlights of the state plan call for:

1. A more intensive prevention effort through improved educational techniques and educational programs for drug dependents undergoing treatment.
2. More and better vocational rehabilitation and job training opportunities across the state.
3. Increased facilities for the detoxification of barbiturate dependency - a considerable problem in the Commonwealth today.
4. A special program for women who have drug problems.
5. Increased outreach activities to help persons through crises and aid in their referral to rehabilitation programs.

Preparing the state plan, according to Dr. Dumont, required the efforts of the 23 council members representing 18 state agencies, public and private organizations, and numerous individuals concerned with drug abuse.

The plan, which took a year to complete, has been submitted to federal authorities in accordance with the Drug Abuse Office and Treatment Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-255).

This permits the state to receive an estimated $250,000 in formula grant funds to assist in the implementation of program objectives.

Copies of the state plan are available, for referral purposes only, at the Mental Health Department's Division of Drug Rehabilitation, 190 Portland Street, Boston, at the State House Library, and at regional mental health offices.

Started as the Summer Studies Program in 1957 and expanded in 1968 to include Fall and Spring terms, the High School Studies Program offers non-credit courses to Boston area high school students on Saturdays.

These courses are taught by volunteer students from MIT and other schools in the area, and deal with a variety of subjects: photography, calculus, "Watergate and National Security," astronomy and theatrecraft are among the Spring offerings.

A $4 registration fee entitles students to take classes every Saturday through May 4th.

For a preliminary course list and more information call 253-4882.

Recreation notes

New recreation hours announced

Several changes in hours for public use of the Newton North High School recreational facilities have been announced by the Newton Recreation Department.

The hours for volleyball and basketball activity at the gym are now Monday through Friday, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Saturday, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 7 p.m. to 9:55 p.m.; Sundays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.; 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Anyone wishing to take showers must leave the gym at least 15 minutes before the 10 p.m. closing time.

School activities take precedence and when school activities are scheduled, the recreation programs will be cancelled. Scheduled school event will be posted in advance. Persons using the gym area will sign in at the upstairs desk and proper identification will be required. The gym is located on the lower level of stairway six.

Added hours are also available for tennis in the simulated outdoor area at the upper level, third floor of stairway six.

The hours are Monday through Friday, 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Saturdays, 3 p.m. to 10 p.m.; and Sundays, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Reservations for tennis, limited to doubles, may be made by calling 965-0267 between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. seven days a week.

Austin Moore is the facility director, Carol Stapelton the assistant director and Fran Towle is the supervisor.

There is jogging every night of the week from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Tryouts for positions on teams to represent Newton in the Suburban League will be held at the Charles River Tennis Club Sundays, March 10 and 17 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Local residents interested in playing in the Newton Ladies Doubles Tennis Recreation League should contact either Fran Towle at 969-3171 or Audrey Goldberg at 332-9764.

The tryouts on March 10 and 17 will be divided into two sessions, 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., and 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. The cost is $3 per player for each session. Players for the team will be selected by four competent and active New England players.

Recreation Supervisor Bill Barry, reports that at the end of the third week of play in the American Basketball League, George's Cafe leads "A" Division with a 4-0 record, followed by the Boys Club, Troubadours and Centre Pizza, all with 3-0 records.

In "B" Division, Big Blue and Upper Falls are tied for top with identical 3-0 records, while Oakley Spa is 2-0 and the Ziphaels, 2-1.

Last week's January thaw wiped out the Recreation Department's skating and tobogganing facilities and fron now on conditions will be considered on a day to day basis according to Barry. He warns skaters that it will take at least a week of extreme cold weather to make the natural ponds safe for skating.

Current conditions may be obtained seven days a week, 24 hours a day by calling 969-2851. Barry reports that with the established winter programs going well the Angier Community School has added a Thursday night gym program for teenagers.

The girls may attend the program from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and the boys from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The programs, featuring basketball and street hockey, are directed by Beverly Kandler (girls) and Mark Leonard (boys).

In the planning stage is a program for children in the grades to be held at the Burr and the Williams Schools one day a week. Beverly Kandler will be in charge and details will be announced soon.

Despite the return to cold weather, a sure sign of approaching Spring is the fact Bill Barry has received a call relative to the Recreation Department's Mini-Bike program. This popular program conducted at the track off Winchester Street, Newton Highlands will begin its third season with the coming of Spring.

A two-day Girls' Floor Hockey Jamboree will be held at the Day Junior High School, Friday, Feb. 22 from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday, Feb. 23 from 10 a.m. to noon, and 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. The Jamboree is for girls over 12 years of age.

Teams and individuals interested in competing should contact Mark Leonard at the Recreation Department, 969-3171.

A new workshop in dance and movement was to have begun at the Newton Centre Playground Field house on Feb. 5 and will continue on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. for a total of six weeks.

The program, aimed at the use of creative movement and dance to improve personal and physical development, is directed by Amy Morse who teaches dance and movement at Leslie College. Interested Newton women of high school age and over may register with the Recreation Department at 969-3171.

The Newton Recreation Department swim team was scheduled to meet the Weston swimmers at Weston, Wednesday afternoon in its third outing of the season. The swimmers, coached by Mary Buntin, have won their first two meets.

Starting Tuesday, Feb. 19, two indoor tennis courts at Newton South High School will be available to Newton residents. Court time will be Monday through Friday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., and on Saturdays 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Reservations for the Newton South courts must be made by phone, 965-0267 between 7 and 8 p.m. Reservations must be made at least 24 hours in advance and up to a maximum of 48 hours in advance. Reservations must be made on an hourly basis for doubles only. The four names and numbers of tennis permits must be given at the time the reservation is made. Tennis participants must have their permits with them and checked by attendants at the court. Participants are required to wear proper footwear, only tennis shoes are allowed.

The Newton City Squares are holding their club Valentine Dance, Friday, Feb. 15 at Day Junior High School from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. Members and the public are invited.

School Committee holds budget hearing

Approximately 20 people raised their hands. There was approximately one and one half hours of audience comments and questions.

One person said that she felt a lack of alternative education within the schools. "Changes are not drastic enough," she commented.

Wendell Kravitz spoke as president of Newton Citizens for Education. He asked the School Committee to focus its attention on getting reimbursements for state mandated programs.

Kravitz also called for an analysis of the effectiveness of programs, and questioned how much saving there is from the attrition of staff, because of pensions.

John C. Harper, assistant coordinator of the arts for music, said that "there are programs in the district which are undernourished in relation to staff and program. He noted that for art in the elementary schools there is one teacher for every 85 students.

"If we could double the contact, we could triple the input," Harper said.

There were several questions relating to Chapter 766. John Webber, president of the PTA Council, asked about how many people will apply for Chapter 766, and about how reimbursement will be made.

John M. Cullinane, director of pupil personnel services and special education, said that it is estimated that $150,000 will be needed for tuition. He added that reimbursement, starting next year, will come directly to the School Committee.

"We hope to get reimbursement several times a year," Cullinane said.

Mrs. Rosenblum added that "during the first few years, reimbursement will not be less than what we presently get."

A counselor at Day Junior High School said that the budget for Chapter 766 seemed pared exteremly low. She noted that it may be difficult to implement Chapter 766.

"We don't know how many kids to plan for," Fink replied. He added that the budget for tutoring the perceptually handicapped has increased from $35,000 to $293,000 in the past four years. This suggested that there is already a foundation for supplying the needs of Chapter 766.

Several people asked about cuts in program and staff in the schools. Fink said that he does not anticipate a cut in the early childhood program.

Fink commented that he anticipated seven positions will come out of the 23 elementary schools. He said that personnel people will meet with principals.

"We have to be sensitive to what the community can afford," Fink noted.

There was discussion of a plan proposed earlier which called for the preservation of the present staff level and the addition of tuition paying students from outside Newton.

'If there is space available they are welcome," said School Committeeman Alvin Mandell.

One person asked about the possibility of parochial schools going out of business.

Fink said that in the past, "we have been able to absorb parochial school students without a crisis."

David Geikie, president of the Newton Teachers Association, said that he was disturbed to see $10,000 taken from the funds for sabbaticals.

School Committee Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith asked if there was any way to estimate reimbursements for 1974-75.

Harry Vienneau, director of budget and accounting, said that there are many variables.

Vienneau added that on an 18 month budget, he found almost a complete offset between charges from the city to the School Department and money brought into the city through the School Department.

Hearst appeals to kidnapers

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Newspaper publisher Randolph A. Hearst Tuesday appealed to the three young kidnapers of his 19-year-old daughter to show compassion and free her unharmed.

FBI agents and police today interviewed witnesses and neighbors who might provide clues in Monday night's abduction, which occurred when two black men and a white woman invaded the apartment of Patricia Hearst five blocks from the University of California campus.

portunities and programs for girls, and plans to suggest that the Recreation Department fill the gaps left by the inadequate girls' Phys Ed programs in the secondary schools.

During an interview with some members of the Board of Aldermen about her appointment to the Recreation Commission, Ms. Arthur explained another idea — to get some of the services now paid for by the Recreation Department donated, and earmarking the amounts saved to be spent for a specific piece of equipment or facility.

She said she will propose that the Newton Women's Tennis League be allowed to take over the tennis instruction for the department, which they will provide free (Ms. Arthur has already obtained a commitment).

The exact amount of money previously spent on tennis instruction could then be used for court lighting where none exists, or for any other purpose selected by the Recreation Commission.

Unorganized recreation is not overlooked. Ms. Arthur recognizes that people must have a place where they can "dumb around," and would be opposed to the development of Cold Spring playground along the lines suggested in a park report.

"I see kids down there knee-deep in the brook catching polliwogs, having a wonderful time," was one comment.

"Ward 5 Olympics," to be held by the Recreation Department in a place like Cold Spring, is another idea that would not only be fun for everybody but would improve public relations between the department and the community.

Ms. Arthur's concept would involve the community by having trophies donated by individuals or businesses, with "the heaviest emphasis on sportsmanship."

A Recreation Commission booth at the Olympics would be a means of getting feedback from the community.

"Community" is an important word to Lynne Arthur. A sense of community is what she likes about Newton and especially Newton Highlands.

To encourage this sense of community, Ms. Arthur would like to see city - sponsored block parties.

"Giving" is another important word. Ms. Arthur believes that people want to give their services and talents, and that public relations can be good only when there is giving as well as getting.

"I'd like to get across that success is not measured in statistics, maintenance reports, hard surfaces. It's the activites and involvement that count."

Nutmeg clown cake

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I would like to know how to make the tiny miniature tartlets that are seen in the fancy bakeries. They are usually filled with a fruit mixture and sometimes have a dab of whipped cream on top. Many thanks. — Mrs. E. W. T. Dedham.

Answer: Though the shapes may be made with heavy strength aluminum, it's best to invest in a set of the tiny tart pans — the finished product is quite professional in appearance. Here's the recipe:

TINY COOKIE TARTS

1¼ cups butter or margarine, at room temperature
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
3 cups all purpose flour
2 teaspoons ground mace
One sixteenth teaspoon salt
Confectioners' sugar
Fruit preserves or canned fruit or pie filling

Combine butter (or margarine), cream cheese, flour, mace and salt. Mix well with pastry blender or fork. On board lightly sprinkled with confectioners' sugar, roll dough to ⅛ inch thickness. Cut dough to fit various shapes of miniature tart shells. Fill with fruit preserves, or any flavored fruit pie filling. Bake in preheated moderate 350 degree oven 10-15 minutes or until pastry shells are lightly browned. (May be topped with whipped cream if desired.) Yield: Approximately 4 dozen miniature pastries.

It's fun to share a delightful note from Mrs. N. H., Walpole, who writes: "We are all Ketchup Freaks in our home. We douse the red stuff over everything and for the readers who enjoy ketchup, I'd like to share our favorite easy-to-make chicken recipe which I call":

ALICE'S CARIBBEAN CHICKEN

2 broiler fryers (2 lbs. ea.) quartered
½ cup tomato ketchup
½ cup wine vinegar
1 cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon crushed oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon minced garlic
3 tablespoons flour
One-third cup water

Place chicken in large bowl or baking dish. Combine ketchup and next 8 ingredients; spoon over chicken. Cover; marinate at least 3 hours (preferably overnight). Transfer chicken to Dutch oven or large deep, skillet. Cook, covered, over low heat for 1 hour or until chicken is tender, basting occasionally. Remove chicken to platter. Thicken sauce with a mixture of flour and water. Pour over chicken. Makes 6-8 servings (about 4 cups sauce).

"We went visiting and were served the most delicious Roast Leg of Lamb with a moist orange-pineapple stuffing. I asked for and received the recipe and would like to share it with you," writes Mrs. N. P., Norwood. Thank you!

ROAST LEG OF LAMB WITH ORANGE-PINEAPPLE STUFFING

1 boned leg of lamb (about 3 lbs.)
1 quart (4 cups) soft bread crumbs
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
¼ teaspoon salt
1 (no. 1 can) crushed pineapple, drained
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Have your meat dealer remove bone to make pocket for the stuffing. Combine soft bread crumbs, parsley, orange rind and salt. Blend in pineapple and butter. Fill pocket with stuffing. Close with skewers. Rub salt and pepper over outside surface of stuffed leg of lamb. Place on rack, fat side up, in a baking pan. Roast uncovered in a slow oven, 325 degrees, for 2 hours, or until done. Yield: 6-8 servings.

Question: My daughter will be five years old on the 20th of February, and I am planning a birthday party. Frankly, I would prefer to work with a cake mix and would appreciate a novel birthday cake idea with thoughts of serving cake to ten children. I really do enjoy your columns. — Mrs. F. M., W. Roxbury Answer: Looking through my files, I came across the following Nutmeg Clown Cake. You can make this clown cake again and again, each time using your imagination — such as using some red licorice strings for a handsome mustache, or give your clown freckles with a light sprinkling of nutmeg and, of course, his collar can be completely gaudy with multi-colored candies.

NUTMEG CLOWN CAKE

1 pkg. (1 lb. 2½ oz.) yellow cake mix
One and one-third cups milk
1 can (3½ to 4 oz.) shredded coconut
¾ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Butter Cream Frosting, below

Prepare mix as label directs using one and one-third cups milk instead of water. Stir in coconut and nutmeg. Bake in two 8 or 9-inch round layer cake pans as package directs; cool and remove from pans as directed. Using one of the cake layers, cut out a large triangle for the "hat." From the same layer, cut out four smaller triangles for the "collar." Use the remaining layer for the "face." Frost "face, hat and collar" with Butter Cream Frosting; spread smooth. Place "face" in center of a large tray. Top with "hat" and arrange "collar" triangles around lower portion of "face." Decorate cake as desired with gum drops, fruit slices, licorice strings and candles. Yield: 8-10 portions.

BUTTER CREAM FROSTING

1 cup butter or margarine, softened
3 cups confectioners' sugar
One-third cup light cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Cream butter until soft. Gradually blend in sugar, cream, vanilla, salt and nutmeg. Use to frost Nutmeg Clown Cake. Yield: 3 cups frosting.

Question: I hope you can help me. I would like a recipe for baked tomatoes to be stuffed with crab. I intend serving them at a brunch and have not been able to come up with the hot version of the stuffed tomato. Many thanks. — Mrs. R. W., Westwood

Answer: And baked tomatoes it is — stuffed with crab and topped with cheese!

CRAB-STUFFED BAKED TOMATOES

6 tomatoes
1 can (6½ oz.) crabmeat
1 cup bread crumbs
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Dash cayenne
6 tablespoons shredded Cheddar cheese

Cut a thin slice from stem end of each tomato and scoop out pulp. Drain. Combine crabmeat with bread crumbs, lemon juice, salt, pepper and cayenne. Fill tomatoes with crab mixture. Sprinkle each tomato with 1 tablespoon cheese and bake, uncovered at 375 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Serves 6 (may be doubled).

HELPFUL HINTS: Monterey Jack is a milk cheese that comes in creamy white wheels or slices. If you're starting your cheese adventures, begin with milk cheese before graduating to the more flavorful and aromatic ones. Monterey Jack is especially good in an open face sandwich made with a slice of ham, then topped with the cheese and broiled long enough to melt the cheese.

Like Tartar Sauce on Fish? You can make your own easily by adding the following ingredients to one cup of dairy sour cream or yogurt: 2 tablespoons each of chili sauce, chopped onion, chopped green pickle, chopped dill pickle, chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste.

Which one of the valentine verses will you be receiving? The old fashioned strictly sentimental one, all flowers and lace, or one that carries a laugh and a sting? Without a doubt, there's a valentine for everyone expressing all stages of love and hate, with newer versions which simply picture lovers clasping hands in the sunset.

There has been no one accepted explanation for the connection between St. Valentine and people in love. However, we all know that it's one day of the year when friends and lovers express affection for one another through cards, candy and flowers. Another thought may be to bake cookies or a tea loaf, wrap in foil and red ribbons and deliver to a shut-in or elderly person.

Next Thursday, February 14, you can say "I love you" to your family by preparing a candlelight dinner. It may take some planning but try serving something pink at every course.

CELERY TOMATO SOUP

Blend 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of celery soup, 1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed tomato soup, and 1½ cans water. Heat and garnish with lightly salted whipped cream or sour cream. Serves 4 (recipe may be doubled).

CRANBURGERS

Two-thirds cup evaporated milk, undiluted
2 slices white bread
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ pounds ground meat
Cranburger Sauce, below

Pour evaporated milk over bread; let stand to soften. Mix in onion, salt, pepper and ground beef. Form into 8 patties. Broil for 6 minutes on one side. Turn and top with cranberry sauce or cranburger sauce and broil 6 more minutes. Serve. (These may also be baked. Place in shallow pan and bake for 15 minutes.)

CRANBURGER SAUCE

1 can (1 lb.) jellied cranberry sauce
5 tablespoons A1 Sauce
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 tablespoon brown sugar

Beat cranberry sauce in bowl with rotary beater until saucy. Beat in remaining ingredients. Serve with Cranburgers.

GAZPACHO MOLDED SALAD

¼ cup cider vinegar
1 can (13 oz.) consomme madrilene
3 large ripe tomatoes, finely chopped (about 2½ cups)
2 large cucumbers, pared, finely chopped (about 3 cups)
½ cup finely chopped green pepper
One-third cup very finely chopped onion
1 jar (4 oz.) pimientos, sliced, drained
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
Lettuce
Dairy sour cream, optional

Soften gelatin in vinegar; dissolve over hot water. Add to consomme; stir until well combined. Combine next 8 ingredients in large bowl. Add gelatin mixture; mix well. Pour into a shallow 2-quart mold. Chill about 5 hours or until firm. Unmold. Garnish with lettuce and sour cream. Makes 8 servings.

DUCK IN BING CHERRY SAUCE

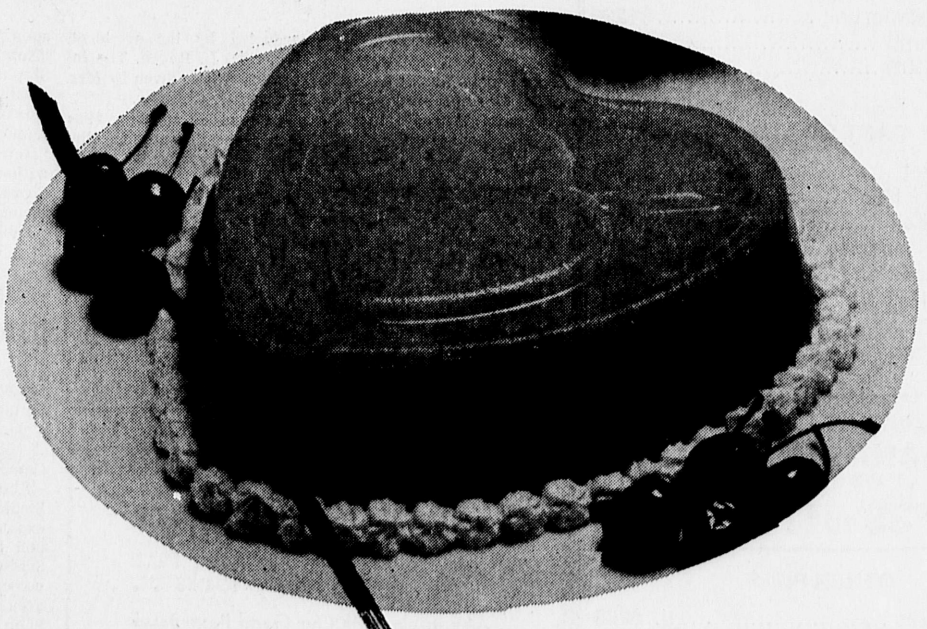
1 duckling, seasoned to taste
1 onion
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons water
1 can Bing cherries, pitted

Have duck quartered. With a sharp pointed knife, peel off skin and fat layer next to duck meat. Peel onion and slice thin. Melt butter in large skillet. Add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Brown duck pieces well on all sides. Drain cherries, reserving juice. Add juice, water, salt, pepper, bay leaf to duck. Cover and cook gently for 45 minutes. Remove duck pieces. Mix cornstarch and 2 tablespoons water to smooth paste. Stir into cherry juice, stirring until thickened. Add duck pieces and cherries and cook 10 minutes longer. Serves 4.

SPARKLING CRANBERRY PUNCH

1 can (16 oz.) jellied cranberry sauce
¾ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
1 bottle (28 oz.) ginger ale, chilled

Beat cranberry sauce until smooth. Stir in orange juice and lemon juice. Pour cranberry mixture over ice cubes in punch bowl. Resting bottle on rim, carefully pour in ginger ale. Mix gently. If desired, float orange slices topped with lime slices and maraschino cherries. Makes 1½ quarts punch.



Cherry whirl

MARASCHINO CHERRY AND NUT CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ cups sugar
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup vegetable shortening
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons almond extract
4 egg whites
18 well drained chopped maraschino cherries
½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Sift all dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Drop in shortening. Combine milk and cherry juice and add three-quarters of this liquid to mixing bowl. Add flavoring extracts, egg whites, and beat for 2 minutes in mixer at low speed. Fold in cherries and nuts. Bake in two deep 9-inch greased layer cake pans in 350 degree oven 25-30 minutes until cake tests done. Cool on wire racks. Frost with Pink Icing.

PINK ICING

¼ cup shortening
¼ cup margarine
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon maraschino cherry juice
1 egg yolk
1¾ to 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon milk
2 drops red food coloring

Cream shortening and margarine until soft and fluffy. Beat in salt, cherry juice and egg yolk. Add sugar alternately with milk, beating constantly. Frost layer, side and top of cake. Decorate with halved cherries and ground chopped nuts.

CHERRY WHIRL

¼ cup maraschino cherry syrup
¼ cup cold pineapple juice
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup boiling pineapple juice
½ cup maraschino cherries
½ lemon, peeled and seeded
One-third cup sugar
½ cup light cream
2 cups crushed ice or ice cubes

Put cherry syrup, cold pineapple juice and gelatin into blender container; allow to stand while assembling remaining ingredients. Add boiling pineapple juice; cover and process at low speed until gelatin dissolves. If gelatin granules cling to container, use a rubber spatula to push them into the mixture. When gelatin is dissolved, turn to highest speed, add cherries, lemon, sugar, cream and ice cubes, one at a time. Process until ice is melted and mixture begins to thicken. Pour at once into 5-cup mold, bowl or individual serving dishes. Chill mold about 1 hour; chill individual servings for 5 minutes. Garnish with whipped cream and additional cherries. Serves 6-8.

Mrs. Sargent to dedicate new workshop for retarded

Mrs. Jessie Sargent, wife of the Governor will be on hand Thursday, Feb. 14, to dedicate the new facilities of the Vocational Adjustment Centre, 108 Mass. Avenue, Boston. This training site organized under the auspieces of the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Citizens has recently installed a food service operation under the guidance of Past President Morris Gordon II of Morris Gordon & Son, which will add a new training dimension.

The Centre whose voluntary chairman is Elmer R. Beers, Jr. has grown from a workshop of 18 clients in 1961 to its present enrollment of 115 adult mentally retarded citizens, blind, emotionally disturbed and physically handicapped.

Edward B. Hogan, VAC Director, states that the Centre has made a special effort to evaluate trainees, provide training in realistic work skills and through counselling prepare workers for competitive job placement. Those unable to compete in the open market may be placed in the on-site employment program newly instituted by an act of the state legislature.

Sub-contract work, a basis for the training program is supplied through such companies as Unitrode Corp., North American Plastics, Daniels Printing and Western Electric.

The dedication will include a tour of new facilities led by GBARC President Charles L. Nugent and workshop trainees. Hostess for the afternoon will be "friends" of the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Citizens, a major supporting arm of the Centre whose president is Mrs. Jan Leshay of Newton.

Auburndale churches hold combined services

Thanks partly to the energy crisis, two Auburndale churches are midway in an experiment in togetherness.

Since the first Sunday in January, the congregations of Centenary United Methodist Church and the Auburndale Congregational Church have joined in worship in the sanctuary of the Congregational Church at Hancock and Woodland Streets.

This month, the two congregations will hold services each Sunday in the Centenary sanctuary at 230 Central Street.

Working together is not new for the congregations. For several years, the Protestant churches in Auburndale have co-sponsored a weekday church school program and occasional Sunday services. The present arrangement, which does not include the Church of the Messiah, which continues to co-sponsor the weekday program, marks the first time that joint services have been held over an extended period of time.

During January, preaching responsibilities were shared by the Rev. Arthur B. Osgood, pastor of Centenary, the Rev. David Kreider, minister of the Congregational Church, and, last Sunday, by Jonathan Tetherly, an Andover Newton Theological School senior.

Coffee hours follow each service.

Other than the Sunday service, each congregation continues its regular activities. Announcements of such activities are made at the services, providing an opportunity for each congregation to know the activities of the other.

The choirs of both churches provide music.

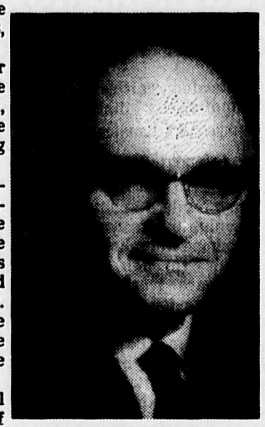
Reform Judaism series continues

The Adult Education series at Temple Beth Avodah, "Reform Judaism-Past, Present, Future," continues Friday, Feb. 8.



Rabbi Gittelsohn

Guest lecturer is Rabbi Roland Gittelsohn who will speak on "Reform Jewish Belief."

Rabbi Gittelsohn is particularly known for his development of a modernistic concept of God. This concept is different from the traditional Jewish idea of a trancendent God, and is supposed to be more acceptable to modern man with our more sophisticated understanding of science, history, etc. Yet, what happens to basic Jewish values such as Torah and prayer with this modern view of God?

Rabbi Gittelsohn has been at Temple Israel, Brookline, since 1953. He has written several books on Jewish topics and has been active in both the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Central Conference of American Rabbis. He was president of the conference from 1969-1971. He has also been very involved in civic affairs and has been on several governor's commissions, including those investigating Massachusetts courts and prisons.

Rabbi Robert Miller and the congregation of Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, invite guests to worship with them at 8:15 p.m., Friday, and join them for the speaker and Oneg Shabbat.

Petitions circulated on behalf of prisoners

Christian and Jewish clergymen from throughout New England are circulating petitions on behalf of Israeli prisoners of war currently held by Syria.

According to Rabbi Murray I. Rothman, spiritual leader of Temple Shalom of Newton and chairman of the interfaith committee of the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston, which initiated the petition drive, over 10,000 signatures have been obtained thus far.

The petitions which are being forwarded to the International Red Cross in Geneva and Secretary General Kurt Waldheim of the United Nations, note that "Syria has completely refused to provide lists of the POWs it holds or to cooperate in a prisoner exchange."

The petitions further state that "As Americans, and as civilized human beings, we call upon the government of Syria to abide by the articles of the Geneva Convention to which they ae signatories. The protection afforded prisoners of war by the Geneva Convention must be enforced and respected."

"We are particularly pleased by the overwhelming response to the Israeli POW issue by the Christian community," said Rabbi Rothman. "The large number of petitions we have received indicates significant compassion throughout the general community over this most pressing humanitarian question."

Serving as consultant to the drive is Philip Perlmutter, New England regional director of the American Jewish Committee. Assisting the effort is Dan Mariaschin of the Jewish Community Council staff.

Margot Zemach, a former Newton resident and illustrator of "Duffy and the Devil," published by Farrar, Strauss & Giroux, and Paula Fox, author of "The Slave Dancer," published by Bradbury Press, are the respective winners of the John Newbery Medal and the Randolph J. Caldecott Medal, awarded by the Children's Services Division of the American Library Association for distinguished books for children published in the United States in 1973.

Mrs. Zemach's award-winning illustrations are for a story retold from a Cornish tale by her husband Harve Zemach.

The Zemachs have collaborated on a number of books and have been honored in recent years by having two titles selected as notable children's books by the Children's Services Division; one of these, "The Judge," was a Caldecott Honor Book.

Caldecott Honor Books for 1973 are "Cathedral, The Story Of It's Construction," by David Macaulay, a teacher at Newton South and on the faculty of the Rhode Island School of Design, and "Three Jovial Huntsmen," (Bradbury Press) adapted and illustrated by Susan Jeffers.

The Caldecott Medal has been awarded annually since 1938 to the illustrator of the most distinguished picture book for children published in the United States during the previous year.

The Newbery Medal has been awarded annually since 1922 to the author of the most distinguished contribution to literature for children published in the United States during the previous year.

Selection of the winners of the awards and honor books is made by a committee of twenty-three, including Mrs. Beryl Robinson of Newton, a specialist in children's literature and a former staff member of the Boston Public Library where she served as children's readers' adviser.

The Newton Boys' & Girls' Library has "Duffy and the Devil," "Cathedral," and "The Dark Is Rising," a Newbery Honor Book (Atheneum) by Susan Cooper, available for borrowing. They are awaiting delivery of "The Slave Dancer" and "Three Jovial Huntsmen," and would be glad to take reservations on these award-winning books.

Drinal introduces bill to prohibit tax deduction

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass), announced recently that he has introduced a bill to prohibit the giant oil companies from passing on to the consumer, by way of a tax deduction, the cost of certain radio, T.V. and newspaper advertisements.

"We are all too familiar with the ads in question," Congressman Drinan said. "They are not related to the sale of the company's goods or services. Rather, they are deliberate attempts to influence public sentiment, and whitewash the role of the oil companies in the present energy crisis."

The Congressman cited recent information released by the General Accounting Office which reveals, that based on available figures, the country's leading oil companies have been spending more than half as much on advertising as they have been on research and development activities in the last few years.

"This clearly indicates that in the period when oil companies now claim to have been preparing for the oil crisis, they were actually spending exhorbitant amounts on their advertising campaigns, with research and development projects given only slightly higher priority," Drinan said.

"For example, according to the GAO, Standard Oil of Indiana spent the same amount in 1970 on both advertising and research — $28 million each," Drinan said, "while in 1972, the company increased the research budget to $32 million, while cutting back advertising to $26 million."

"At the present time, the oil companies deduct the cost of these massive advertising campaigns, which in turn reduces the already miniscule taxes which they pay," Drinan said. "We, the consumers, end up paying the tremendous costs of these public relations campaigns."

The bill Drinan introduced would deny the deduction of any expenditure of any oil company for advertising not directly related to the sale of products or services.

The Congressman noted that this bill in no way prohibits the oil companies from placing these ads; it simply eliminates their tax deductibility.

Police explain new bike law

Newton bicycle riders should become familiar with the new Saltonstall bicycle regulation bill.

There are many new features and many are old. The intent of Sen. Saltonstall was and is to inculate awareness and responsibility in both cyclist and motorist.

Chief William Quinn stated that Newton has joined forces with Brookline and Wellesley, to study and implement the non–criminal ticket provisions.

"We are not interested in giving tickets for violations, although we shall, if necessary. We are interested in a common sense recognition of the intent of the bill. We will continue our bicycle safety clinics with our schools and any other interested groups. We hope that bicycle riders will be more interested in avoiding accidents than in maintaining their right of way," Quinn said.

For example, after proper signaling, a cyclist may ride to the center point in an intersection to make a normal vehicular left turn. "I hope a cyclist won't just break into a line of traffic. If he does, I hope the motorist will be reasonable. It is in this provision of the act that we must use a great deal of common sense," Quinn said.

Bicycle clinics, conducted by Sgt. Charles Feeley, accent observation, looking around during the ride, and looking back before any change in direction, particularly the left turn, that carries a cyclist into the traffic flow.

Other provisions include the following: All riders must ride with the flow of traffic on the right side of the street; the rider must obey all traffic signs. signals and devices including one-way streets, and obey all vehicular laws; the rider must have lights and reflectors for night riding; the bicycle must carry only one rider unless the cycle is engineered for more than one; passenger seats (child seat), must be firmly attached with stirrups for the child's feet.

"Under the new bill, it is left to the chief of police to decide whether or not sidewalks may be used outside of business districts. I have not declared this as an acceptable provision. In the past, we have not made a great to-do about sidewalk riding, although we have always instructed children that sidewalks were no safer than streets due to many hidden driveways, side streets, and the fact that many young people fail to look before leaving the sidewalk at a side street before entering the traffic flow. However, with the great influx of adult riders, I am going to study the effect that increased sidewalk riding would have on pedestrians, especially older citizens," Quinn went on.

The Chief continued, "We cannot leave it to the common sense of the individual rider. Some may argue that they feel safer going in an opposite fashion than that indicated by the bill. We have the Saltonstall bill, and we are going to do our utmost to make it workable.

Working women build own S.S. protection

NORWOOD — "Today, over 32 million women are building social security protection for themselves and their families through their own work," according to Arthur H. Birkett, Jr., manager of the Norwood social security district office.

The working woman has both disability and survivors protection. If unable to work for a year or longer because of a disabling accident or severe illness, she and her dependents may be eligible for monthly cash payements from social security. If she dies prematurely, monthly cash payments from social security can help her children through school–until they're 22, if they remain full-time students and unmarried.

Even though her husband may be working at a full-time job, her children are still eligible for beneifts on her work record.

On her own work record, the working woman can retire at 62 with reduced monthly cash payments. Or she can wait until she's 65 and get full monthly cash benefits.

Jeffrey A. Grossman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Grossman of Newton Highlands, has pledged the Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa. South cagers win, 54-53

By BRUCE BOYNICK

The Newton South basketball team gained a 54-53 victory over the Acton-Boxborough Colonials last week at the Newton South High Gym, to remain deadlocked with Bedford for the Dual County League lead

The South cagers are 6-1 in league play, 10-1 overall, and need to win in two of their final six outings to qualify for the State Tourney.

The contest was almost reminiscent of a previous encounter in which the Lions lost 59-58 to Bedford after holding a 57-44 lead with four minutes remaining in the game. Almost. This time South survived a nearly disastrous final 2:26 seconds, in which Acton outscored the Lions 11-1, to win by a point.

Acton got off to an 8-2 lead, but the Lions roared back to tie the contest at 8-8. Acton, shooting 40 per cent, surged ahead to lead 14-10 after a quarter.

The Colonials extended their lead to 24-17, midway through the second stanza, but some accurate Lion shooting (8 of 13, 61.5 per cent) helped the Lions to a 27-26 lead at intermission.

A looping layup by Bob Harris made the score 33-28. The teams traded hoops twice until a Mark Jefferson to Harris pass resulted in a three point play for Harris, and a 40-32 lead for Newton South. A corner shot by Aronson, and a Chandler Bosworth free throw with no time remaining, made the score 43-32 after three quarters

Two free throws by Acton's Kevin Harrington and a bomb by Steve Janson made it 43-36. A minute later, Janson sunk a free throw that brought the Colonials within six points, 45-39, with 4:44 remaining in the game. South came back as a pass from Ricky Sharton resulted in an uncontested layup for Steve Korn. A Bob Harris bucket with 3:17 made the score 51-40

The Lions would score only three more points the rest of the game, all from the free throw line.

Two free throws by Rich Spector put South ahead 53-40. In the final 2:26, after the score became 53-42, Acton outscored South 11-1.

Free throws by Janson and Kevin Harrington made the score 53-45 with 2:13 left. The Colonials Joe Harrington hit three unanswered field goals and presto, it was 53-51.

Acton regained the ball via a steal but lost it on a turnover with 41 seconds remaining.

The Lions worked the ball around for 15 seconds but the Colonials regained it. A missed shot was rebounded by Spector.

Spector gave the ball to Jefferson, who was fouled in the backcourt with 20 seconds remaining. Jefferson made a free throw to make the score 54-51

Acton's Janson then made a jumper from the corner. The score was 54-53 with 11 seconds left. Spector was fouled with five seconds left, but missed a foul shot.

The Colonials stormed down the court and once again found Janson free on the side. But this time he missed a twelve foot shot at the buzzer.

Leading the Lions in scoring was Jefferson with 14 points. Jefferson and Mark Aronson (10 point) were superb in guiding the Lion offense, and providing clutch shots when needed. Lion center Rich Spector had 10 points and pulled down 10 rebounds, while junior forward Bob Harris tallied 11.

The Harrington brothers led the Acton scoring, as game high scorer Joe had 17, and sophomore Kevin threw in 13.

The Lions outshot Acton from the field, hitting 23 of 55 shots (41.8 per cent) to the Colonial's 20 of 69 (28.9 per cent).

South made 8 of 22 free throws (36.4 per cent).

Newton South had beaten Acton earlier this season 50-44 at Acton. The Conials are now 3-4 in league play

South's next game will be a long awaited rematch against the Bedford Bucaneers. Both teams are 6-1. The only Bedford loss was against Acton, while South's only defeat was against Bedford. The rematch will be played at Bedford on Friday, Feb. 8 at 8 p.m

North swimmers show improvement in losses

By RICK GORDON

The final results of last week's Newton North swim meets varied little from previous contests but the first year Tiger swimmers continued to steadily improve in defeat.

At hom, against Winchester, the Tigers hopes were crushed early in a 97-74 loss.

Newton was 30 points astern after four races. The Tigers finally regained form and in the final seven events outscored Winchester 58-51.

The highlight of the comeback, which left Newton still in contention until the next to last event, was the team's first one, two, three sweep in the backstroke. Jay Jassett outswam Nick Antoniades for first and Peter Katseff finished third.

Newton coach Benn Merritt lauded Katseff's showing citing him as one of the "most improved" members of the team

Another bright spot was Gil Pementel's victory in the 500-yard free-style and a strong third for Steve Schaefer.

Scott Pohlman and John Volante finished first and second in the 100-yard freestyle.

"Pohlman's win in the 100 was impressive," said Merritt

Dave Fishkind, by far the day's best diver, totaled 170.75 points in winning that competition for Newton

Other high placers included Antoniades, Kurt Pohlman, John Wish and Jassett who were runners-up in the medley relay Wish finished third in the butterfly. Kurt Pohlman and Rick Mazzola placed second and third in the breaststroke.

In the final event, Arnie Benack, John Volante, Ed Devine and Scott Pohlman finished second in the freestyle relay.

Merritt said he was "reasonably" happy with the performance. "They kept going. They didn't quit. It would have been easy to give up," explained the coach.

The Tigers' third consecutive defeat came in Wakefield against a team from Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School.

Jassett, Kurt Pohlman, Wish and Scott Eston won the medley relay. In the 200-yard freestyle and individual medley the Tigers earned no better than third place finishes in the four lane pool.

Scott Pohlman won the next event, the 50-yard freestyle in a time of 25.9 seconds.

A strong diving performance by Ken Freedberg gave Newton its second in a string of three consecutive first place spots

Wish closed the score to 23-22 with a triumph in the butterfly.

Scott Pohlman finished second in the 100 freestyle and Steve Schaefer earned a hard fought second in the 500-yard freestyle to leave Newton seven points down. "The 500 was the great race of the meet," noted Merritt

Once again the backstrokers came through under pressure as Jay Jassett placed first and Antoniades second

Kurt Pohlman finished third in the breaststroke and the freestyle relay team of John Volante, Dale Syphers, Bob Hershfield and Scott Pohlman took second.

The final score was 47-36. "It was a really good meet," said Merritt. "Our biggest problem is lack of experience."

Donovan scores four goals in win

By KEITH GLASSER

Steve Donovan scored four goals and linemate Dave Solomon assisted on all four to lead Newton North's hockey team to a 6 to 1 victory over Weymouth South last week.

Jay King gave the Wildcats a shortlived 1-0 lead at 2:49 of the first period. Donovan tied the score three minutes later, assisted by Solomon

Senior Fran Colantonio scored the game-winner at 9:51. Mike Tocci passed to Rick Cavanaugh at the point. Colantonio scored from Cavanaugh's rebound off the Weymouth South goalie.

In the second period Joe Steele came up with two great saves. With 15 seconds to go, Cal Moffie socroed for Newton. Gus Quaranto and Dave Chapman were credited with assists.

Donovan scored a third period hat trick at 1:17, 1:43, and 7:08.

"John Carey and Dave Solomon did a good job digging it out and laying it off for Steve (Donovan)," commented Tiger Coach Don Crowley.

Crowley praised the goal tending of Joe Steele. He added, "We're playing better. The forwards are forechecking and the defense is getting the puck out much better which is preventing teams from getting as many shots as they had previously."

An earlier meeting between these two teams resulted in a 4-4 tie.

The Tigers had a week layoff without a game. They had two good scrimmages with Charlestown and Melrose, according to Crowley.

South skaters halt loss streak, defeat Westwood

Newton South's hockey team split a pair of Dual County Le;ague games last week.

A loss to Wayland and a victory over Westwood brought South's record to 2-7-1.

In their first game of the week, the Lions lost to Wayland, 6-2.

"Chic" Johnson scored three goals for Wayland, and his brother, Todd, scored twice.

Newton South was behind 5-0 after two periods of play. South Coach Neil McPhee gave some younger players some ice time in the final period.

Newton South scored twice in the third period. Steve Tresca scored and defenseman Joe Donlon, who set up the play, and Brian Cain received assists.

Tresca scored the second goal also. Defensemen Mark Cooper and Donlon assisted.

Todd Johnson scored the final goal of the game with a slap shot which went into a top corner of the South net.

On Friday, Feb. 1, South gained a 4-3 win over Westwood at Natick.

The victory broke a six game South losing streak.

The Lions scored in the first period for the first time this season. Cain shot into the far corner of the Westwood net and was assisted by Tresca

South's Ken Bianco scored laer in the period. Donlon stole the puck at center ice and flipped a pass to Bianco Bianco skated into the Westwood zone and scored with a 30-foot shot.

Westwood rebounded in the second period when it pressed in the South end for five minutes. Westwood scored against Lion goalie Dave Satter to make the score 2-1.

Tresca scored two goals for South in the second period. Before his first tally, Cooper rushed with the puck and passed to Cain in a Westwood corner. Cain gave the puck to Tresca behind the Westwood net, and Tresca stepped out in front and jammed the puck under the Westwood goalie's pads.

Moments later, Tresca deflected a Cooper shot into the Westwood goal. Cooper had received a pass from Bianco.

It was Tresca's ninth goal of the season.

South's next game is against Acton-Boxboro on Friday at Wesst Concord Arena at 7:30 p.m.

North basketball team wins twice

By JACK GREEN

After losing a close game to Arlington, Newton North's basketball team has won four straight games.

The Tigers' most recent victims were Waltham and Cambridge Latin. Newton North has now beaten each team twice this season.

Newton North had little difficulty defeating Cambridge Latin. The Tigers won 78-38.

Newton led 22-16 at the end of the first quarter. In the second period, Steve Forte shot well from the outside and Newton gained a 43-22 advantage.

The Tigers went ahead 61-28 by the end of the third quarter. Newton North played fine defense and Peter Laskaris was impressive in rebounding action.

Newton substitutes played in the fourth period. Reserve center Peter Norwig scored eight points.

A good all-around effort by Laskaris and fine shooting by Keith Glasser helped Newton North to a 58-54 win against Waltham.

The Tigers have upped their record against Suburban League opponents to 9-4. They are 11-4 overall.

Former winner returning for local marathon race

The champ is back, in shape, and if last weekend's weather is any indication of what's in store for the eighth annual Silver Lake Dodge Washington's Birthday Marathon, Terry Gallagher must rate as one of the favorites.

Gallagher, a 28-year-old North Medford Club competitor, won the 20-mile race in 1:48:30 in 1972 over icy streets following two days of snow.

A year ago, the veteran of five BAA marathons chose to run in a Philadelphia 15-miler the same day as the Silver Lake race (he won), but is back and ready to regain his crown on Feb. 27.

"I don't mind the cold," said Gallagher, who originally hails from Kentucky, but left that state for Massachusetts because of its colder climate and accessibility to more races. "I just don't like running in heat. I'm different from most guys."

Gallagher admits he woke up smiling on the day of his 1972 Newton victory and saw nothing but white.

"I knew I was in good shape when I looked outside," he said.

The University of Kentucky grad, who was inspired to begin long distance running by his older brother when he was 17, has been training 80 miles a week, almost exclusively on the roads.

"I don't go in much for the long, slow, distance routine," he said. "I like to go hard and finish a workout tired. Sometimes it brings me into a race tired, but I like to go all out."

Gallagher doesn't like to return to races he's already won, but he is returning to the Silver Lake run after third and first place finishes in his only tries.

"It's a top race," he said. "It's a good race, handled well," and it comes at a good time of the year for me," he said.

Gallagher is one ot 150 entries for the race, which follows the first 17½ miles of the marathon course from Hopkinton to Newton before veering onto Rte. 16 and finishing in front of the Silver Lake building on Watertown Street.

There were 146 starters last year, and meet director Frank Campion thinks the race could attract over 200 starters for the first time in its history.

Other competitors expected include Johnny "The Elder" Kelley, famed BAA marathoner, 1971 champ Ed Walkwitz, twice runner-up Peter Stipe, 1973 North Medford marathon winner Roland Kmiec, and Peter Kuchinski, NEAAU marathon titlist. Defending champ Amby Burfoot is in the Peace Corps in South America.

The race will begin at noon in Hopkinton Center.

Boston College cagers defeat Fordham, 74-64

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

For a while it looked like the first UCLA-Notre Dame game. Boston College scored the game's first eight points and ran up a 25-8 lead before Fordham turned last Saturday's encounter into a ballgame.

UCLA also led by 17 early and then lost by allowing Notre Dame to score the last 12 points.

The Eagles threatened to let Fordham do the same, but 5-11 guard Jere Nolan pulled the B.C. squad together to spark a 74-64 win.

Fordham was not as bad as it looked in the opening minutes, but B.C. was not as bad as it looked during the four minutes when there were between nine and five left in the game.

After trailing by 15 points for most of the game Fordham cut B.C.'s lead to 10, 57-47 before Nolan, a southpaw senior guard made nine points in four minutes.

"We've faced a Fordham press for the last five years," said Eagle coach Bob Zuffelato before the game, "so I imagine we'll see it again. We've got to handle their press. We've got to have poise."

Nolan, who finished with 20 points, was one player who didn't lose his poise.

Forward Bob Carrington, B.C.'s leading scorer with an 18 ppg. average, made 17 points in the first half, including a backwards, twisting layup. Carrington finished with 27 points.

Fordham couldn't hit much from outside all day, but utilized the inside strength of 6-7 forward Darryl Brown to make dents in the Eagle lead. Brown ended up with a game-high 31 points.

Earlier in the week, the Eagles (12-5) topped a tough Rhode Island squad, 85-80, on the strength of Carrington's 30 points. Sophomore Wilfred Morrison fired in 18 points and Nolan contributed 12 points and 14 assists.

North riflery team loses to Marlboro

By KEITH GLASSER

The Newton North riflery team fired a nifty 877 but it was not enough as it lost to Marlboro, 889-877. Newton North's record dropped to 2-4 while Marlboro is 3-3.

Newton's top five shooters were Sal Yerardi (184), Ed Hines (179), Dave Palmieri (178), Tony Tambascia (169) and Susan Kell (167).

Hines and Susan Kell placed for the first time.

Tony Rufo (163) and Matt Berry (162), two of North's top shooters, had an off night and did not place for the first time in the six matches. Both are usually in mid 170's.

Coach John Meyer commented, "Usually an 877 is good enough to win." He added, "We were beaten by a very good team."

Last season's Newton team only shot over 877 twice enroute to a 6-4 season.

Newton fires against Braintree at 3:30 p.m. at the West Newton Armory on Tuesday Feb. 12. They close out their season against Acton at the Acton Police Station on Feb. 14.

Xaverian Beats MC

WESTWOOD—Jim Bailey combined with teammate Brian McMorrow last night for 38 points as the Xaverian High basketball team beat Malden Catholic for the second time this season enroute to a 69-60 victory.

Both Bailey and McMorrow scored 19 points in the contest as the home team stretched its winning skein to three games. The Hawks presently are 7-4 in Catholic Conference action.

Xaverian was never in trouble and got a solid performance out of their big center, Jim Bailey, as he pulled down 22 rebounds to go alongside his offensive prowess last night.

Len Wrighten followed his two teammates in scoring with 12 points as Len hit on six field goals, and Paul Murphy scored nine.

The Hawks will be facing Archbishop Williams this Friday.

Junior high cagers near end of season

On Tuesday, Jan. 29, Weeks Junior High displayed a fine defense and defeated the Newton South High School sophomores, 36-31. Mike Stollar and Andy Linn scored 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Newton's five junior high schools are now moving into the final two weeks of their basketball season.

Bigelow defeated Meadowbrook, 61-38 in another recent game. High scorers in that contest included Kevin Hinchey, 14 points; John Dimambro, 13 points and Bob Martin, 10 points.

Warren gained a 72-60 win over Bigelow. Bigelow's Bob Martin scored 18 points and John Dimambro scored 17 points.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Dennis Murphy, president of the World Hockey Association, Tuesday said the Los Angeles Sharks had been sold to Metro-Sports Associates of Detroit.

Charles H. Nolton, 43, and Pete Shagena, 38, Detroit industrialists, are general partners in Metro-Sports Associates.

No purchase price was reported.

"The Sharks will remain in Los Angeles," Nolton and Shagena said in a statement. "...It is our desire to bring a winner to this area, and the first order of business is to start winning and making the WHA playoffs."

7 SIGN CONTRACTS

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — David Clyde, the teen-aged hurler who, in his debut last season with the Texas Rangers, lured the only capacity crowd ever at Arlington Stadium, signed his 1974 contract Tuesday.

NCDF, Towers pass

NCDF was that he doesn't like the location because of the danger to the Vale (from pollutants), and "the deal with the Towers."

The Towers debate took little time, with only two aldermen, David Cohen and Mark White, speaking against it.

Cohen and White both pointed to the cloudy financial picture for the Towers, the failure of the Towers to comply with the "10 per cent policy" requiring developers to lease 10 per cent of new units to the Housing Authority (20 of NCDF's 50 units will be leased to the Housing Authority), and traffic problems.

The site plan was approved 19-3, with Ald. Jason Sacks excused because of a business connection with the Tower. In addition to White and Cohen, Ald. Richard McGrath voted "no."

Ald. Joseph McDonnell, new Land Use Committee chairman, was absent from the entire meeting.

Of the 19 conditions attached to the Towers site-plan approval, one added at the last minute nearly caused a reconsideration and therby a postponement of the vote.

Added to the already printed list was a requirement that sprinklers be installed throughout the building in accordance with Standard 13 of the National Board of Fire Prevention, since it was reported at the meeting by an alderman that the fire ladders in the city would not reach beyond the eighth or ninth floor.

Ald. Robert Tennant objected, saying that codeveloper Mario DiCarlo claimed a sprinkler system would cost "a million dollars and would require lowering all the ceilings by eight inches, which is not possible."

Tennant tentatively moved a reconsideration of the vote, but was dissuaded by an outcry from fellow aldermen.

Zenith announces solid state television

Robert E. Bumpus, Needham resident and merchandising manager of Northeastern Distributors, Inc. Cambridge has announced to Zenith dealers a major advance in Zenith color television.

The breakthrough, called "Power Sentry", is a new system of magnetic voltage regulation. It is standard in the chassis of Zenith's all solid-state sets in its 1974 color television line and cuts down on the amount of electricity needed to operate sets, contributes to energy conservation and at the same time helps the pocketbooks of television viewers.

Noting additional advantages that mark the use of the first magnetic voltage regulating system built into color TV sets, Bumpus said that "the Power Sentry enables these sets to maintain a bright picture even when pictures on many other TV sets shrink, distort, roll or lose their color and brightness because of low household voltage. It also provides longer life for the picture tube and other components by providing isolation from high voltage transients or surges."

Zenith 1974 solid-state Power Sentry color TV may now be seen at local Zenith dealers stores.

Bird census Feb. 9 weekend

Thousands of brilliant red Cardinals and grey Tufted Titmice apparently have decided Massachusetts is a good place to call home. The Massachusetts Audubon Society aims to measure the numbers of these new feathered residents with the help of citizens throughout the Commonwealth. A New England wide census is scheduled for the weekend of Feb. 9-10. Everyone interested is urged to take part. Participation is simple - count and record the numbers of the two birds seen during that weekend on a card provided by the Society and send it to Mass. Audubon in Lincoln.

Cardinals and Tufted Titmice are particularly interesting because they are newcomers to the area, and offer a good opportunity to study their population growth and distribution.

In the fall of 1957, Cardinals and Tufted Titmice "exploded" in central New England, and the following year both species were reported nesting in Massachusetts. Up until this time they were birds seldom seen here.

There are several theories about Massachusetts' popularity with the two species. The growing number of people who feed birds and a warming trend in the New England climate are possible factors that may have caused the surge Northward.

Male cardinals are bright red and females are a warm orange-brown with a red bill. Titmice are essentially all grey. Both birds have crested heads.

If you would like to be a Titmouse and Cardinal counter on February 9-10, write Mass. Audubon, Lincoln, 01773, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope and a census card and instructions will be mailed to you.

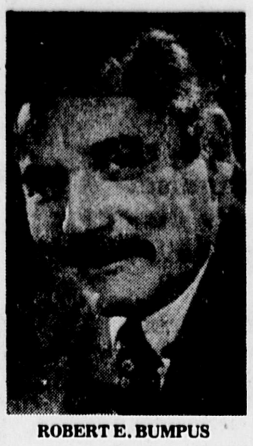
VA information

Q — I understand the Veterans Administration is paying a record dividend this year on "V"-prefixed National Service Life Insurance and "K"-prefixed U.S. Government Life Insurance policies. When may I expect the dividend on my NSLI policy?

A — Your dividend is payable on the anniversary date of your NSLI policy, and no application is necessary. If you have elected to buy paid up insurance with your dividends, you will get a statement of your account rather than a check. Dividends amounting to $303.8 million are payable throughout 1974 on anniversary dates of policies carried by 3.9 million eligible veterans.

Q — I'm a World War II veteran who never used his GI home loan entitlement. I hear the Veterans Administration will still guarantee loans for such veterans. Is that true?

A — Yes. In 1970, Congress removed expiration dates on all unused, VA expired loan entitlement. Henceforth, veterans retain entitlement until used. Apply to nearest VA office if you want to use this benefit.



ROBERT E. BUMPUS

Concert by Zamir Chorale on Feb. 24

The Solomon Schecter Hebrew Day School of Newton Centre is planning a musical evening with the Zamir Chorale of Boston, Joshua Jackson conducting, on Sunday, Feb. 24 at Mishkin Tefila Temple, Hammond Pond parkway, Newton Centre, at 7 o'clock.

The young, dynamic Harvard and Boston Conservatory trained conductor will be leading the chorus of 70. Included are the talents of a lively percussion section in an exciting feature for school children.

The program offers a wide range of songs from the Middle East, both ancient and modern, sung in Hebrew.

There will be refreshments during intermissions and the early hour has been chosen with young children in mind.

Tickets are obtainable by calling 332-7744 or 734-4215. Sponsors and patrons are offered reserved seating.

Peace Corps/Vista seeking tradesmen

"Who, me?" Join the Peace Corps or VISTA? I have only a trade and no college education, and I'm 36 years old. Why would the Peace Corps want me when they can get all those college kids?"

The above statement would be a pretty likely response if you were to ask the mechanic, plumber, electrician, or machinist in your neighborhood why he didn't join the Peace Corps.

What he doesn't know is that over 12 percent of all Peace Corps Volunteers are older, married tradesmen, who do not have a college degree. And the number keeps growing and growing.

In recent years, developing countries throughout the world have found out the American Blue Collar worker gets the job done. Since 1968, tradesmen participation in the Peace Corps have grown by leaps and bounds. All levels of tradesmen have joined from the apprentice to the journeyman to the master. They come from all walks of life, both young and old.

Some came because they were tired of the nine to five grind, others came for adventure and a chance to teach their skills to others. Still others came because they felt that two years out of their lifetime was some small contribution that they could give to people throughout the world.

Since 1970, the Peace Corps has invited a limited number of families overseas. The Peace Corps provides all transportation costs to and from the country, complete medical coverage, housing, a reasonable living allowance, and saves $2,000 for you. If married, everything doubles. The Peace Corps is now working in 61 developing countries in Latin America, Asia and Africa.

On the domestic side, a smaller number of tradesmen are at work as VISTA's (VOLUNTEERS IN SERVICE TO AMERICA). In Redding, California, for instance, two tradesmen are using their carpentry experience to assist a community action program in the renovation of 66 houses. The majority of homes under renovation are occupied by old Americans and American Indians.

A special team of Peace Corps and VISTA representatives will be in Eastern Massachusetts, February 11-15 located at the Carlton House Motor Inn, 29 Hancock Street, Quincy, Mass., from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. A special telephone number is available if you would like to call (617) 328-5503 during the campaign. A movie on Peace Corps will be shown Thursday night at 8:15 p.m.

Everyone is welcome to come in and talk with a Peace Corps and VISTA representative Monday, February 11 thru Friday, February 15.

Taxpayers ask IRS

Editor's Note — The following questions and answers are prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

Q. My neighbor says that the later you file the longer you wait for your refund. Is this true?

A. It certainly usually is true. As the filing season progresses the Service Center has more returns to handle so each return cannot be processed as quickly. File as early as you can!

Q. I'm pretty sure I've done my tax return correctly but I wish I were more certain about the way I'm reporting my rental income. Can I get any help from IRS with this?

A. Yes, if you'd like someone to review the work you've done, stop by your local IRS office during office hours and your return will be discussed with you.

Q. Are all IRS offices offering this kind of help. Where are the local IRS offices?

A. The nearest local office is in the John F. Kennedy Building, Boston, Room E-100, which is open Monday - Friday from 8:15 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

Q. I'm sure that the questions I have about my tax deductions are pretty simple. Can I call IRS for help with them?

A. Yes, you should call whichever of these numbers is appropriate for your area: Metropolitan Boston 223-3431, Metropolitan Worcester 757-2712, Metropolitan Springfield 785-1201, and the rest of Massachusetts call 1-800-392-6288.

Q. I bought our single family home last year and realize that this may affect my tax situation. What differences does this make for me?

A. If you choose to itemize your deductions you may deduct both mortgage interest and real estate taxes for which you were liable which you paid during the year. Real estate taxes must be prorated during the year as the deduction is limited to the tax attributable to you since you acquired ownership of the home.

Q. My brother was in pretty bad financial straits this year, so I helped him out by paying his real estate taxes for him. May I deduct this?

A. No, you may only deduct expenses for which you are personally liable.

Q. Our landlord increased our rent because real estate taxes have gone up. May we deduct the additional rent we have to pay?

A. No, only your landlord is legally liable for those taxes, so only he may deduct them.

Q. I can't possibly keep all my receipts for sales tax. Have I any option if I want to itemize a sales tax deduction?

A. You may compute your sales tax by using the optional state sales tax tables provided with the Form 1040 instructions. These allow you an average amount based on your income and family size. You may add to the average amount allowed any sales tax paid on the purchase of automobiles, mobile homes, airplanes, boats, and materials purchased for construction of your home if you purchase the materials personally.

Q. Is there any easy way to figure how much I've spent for gas tax this year?

A. Yes, if you know approximately how many miles you drove in the year you may use the state gasoline tax table listed in the instruction book.

Q. May the Massachusetts Meal Tax be deducted?

A. No, this is not a deductible tax.

Q. Every month I pay a tax on my telephone bill. Is this a deductible tax?

A. Telephone tax, like all other federal taxes, is not deductible.

Q. It seems that I pay for a lot of medical care and drugs. Is it true that I can't deduct the whole amount?

A. Your medical and dental expenses can only be deducted to the extent to which they exceed 3 percent of your Adjusted Gross Income (from line 15, Form 1040). Your drugs can be included in the total of medical and dental expenses only to the extent that they exceed 1 percent of your Adjusted Gross Income. You may not deduct expenses for which you were reimbursed.

Q. My husband died four years ago and I'm still paying some of the bills from his last operation. Are they still deductible?

A. They are deductible in the year in which they are paid.

Q. My mother, who is my dependent, went to a plastic surgeon for a face-lifting operation. Can I deduct this expense?

A. Cosmetic surgery is non-deductible.

Q. Is any part of my Medicare payment deductible?

A. Medicare A is not deductible, but 50 percent of the premium for Medicare B would be deductible on Schedule A without reducing it by the 3 percent limitation and the other 50 percent of the premium can be added to your other allowable medical expenses subject to the 3 percent limitation.

Q. How can I compute these medical deductions? Those percentage limitations seem confusing.

A. Follow the steps listed under Medical and Dental Expenses on Schedule A and the percentage limitations will be applied automatically for you.

Q. My sister is a nun in Nairobi. If I send her money may I deduct it as a charitible contribution?

A. Gifts to an individual usually are not deductible. Money or gifts of merchandise given to a charitable organization recognized by IRS may be deductible charitable contributions. Members of organizations which qualify as such charitable organizations who have taken a vow of poverty cannot be personal recipients of gifts, so any gifts to them are effectively gifts to the organization and thus are deductible.

One alternate to the gas line

By Peter Gluckler

"I'm waiting in line and they ran out of gas, doo dah, doo dah..."

Gasoline lines aren't so bad. For the first time in years the driver can spend untold hours listening to himself or the radio without the plague of screaming kids and nagging spouse.

Then the gas station attendant walks up and plants a sign on the car in front.

"No more gas" it stated indifferently.

And so, after reading seven volumes of Will Durant's "History of Civilization" and three copies of the Sunday New York Times, the embittered driver must search elsewhere for fuel. Too bad. His library is reduced to antiquated copies of Playboy magazine published when the models wore clothes and Hefner wrote about the merits of petting in the back seat.

Life assumes a pallor of gloom. Where else to go? Another line, another wait, then, "Eureka!", 3.46 gallons of regular just when the driver was down to reading a matchbook cover ad on how he could get a high school diploma and make big money in the auto repair business.

It could be worse. Let's take public transportation, for example, or "How a young man travelled from the town of Acton to the town of Dedham via the MBTA."

The schedule went something like this:

5:45 a.m. — Leaped out of bed realizing alarm clock failed to alarm.

5:46 a.m. — Ran into the bedroom door in the dark. Bruised toe, lacerated face.

5:59 a.m. — Stuffed dry, untoasted bread into mough after coffee blistered taste buds off tongue. Crashed through back door evading snow shovel and two bicycles.

6:03 a.m. — Puff, puff, puff, puff...rest...puff, puff, puff, puff...

6:13 a.m. — Vaulted three steps aboard train in South Acton

6:20 a.m. — Train still in South Acton station.

6:22 a.m. — Off to Boston. Arrival time on schedule: 7 a.m.

7:13 a.m. — Arrived Boston.

7:14 a.m. — Waited for subway train.

7:20 a.m. — Mashed aboard subway. Head for Forest Hills, end of the line.

9:00 a.m. — Arrived Forest Hills after one small fire, brace of muggings, one arm caught in sliding doors and three attempted panhandlings.

9:02 a.m. — Awaited bus to Dedham Square.

9:15 a.m. — Awaited bus to Dedham

9:30 a.m. — Awaited bus

9:45 a.m. — Awaited.

10:00 a.m. — Waited.

10:11 a.m. — Official reported no bus to Dedham Square for an hour due to argument with union.

10:45 a.m. — Official promoted to executive position in MBTA. Bus to Dedham Square arrives.

11:30 a.m. — Arrived at Daily Transcript in time to pick up edition of day's paper and head home for dinner.

6:32 p.m. — Arrived home just in time to take car out in search of gasoline

State government needs curbed

Three times as many people in Massachusetts believe state government is in more need of spending controls than local government, according to a poll taken for Citizens for Economy in Government.

In response to the question: "There are two broad areas of spending responsibility - state and local. Which of these areas is most in need of better control?" 41.1 percent said state government. Only 14.9 percent chose local government, while 30.5 percent believe both are equally in need of controls.

Illegal or unethical dealings are not considered very important to Massachusetts citizens in controlling spending. Fewer than 6 percent attributed graft, corruption or patronage as the primary reason for needing more controls in either or both state and local government.

People believe that state government needs to be controlled primarily because of wasteful mismanagement. Those who feel local government is more in need of control attribute it mainly to money being spent on the wrong things and secondly to wasteful spending. However more than three-quarters of the people who equated the need for state and local controls did so because of the belief that there is too much waste at both levels.

Citizens for Economy in Government, a group that is educating the public about the need for fiscal reforms in state and local government, conducted the poll in order to understand the public's awareness of inefficiency at different levels of government.

Commenting on the results, Henry S. Lodge, executive director of "Citizens," said: "I'm encouraged by the public's feeling that waste and inefficiency, not corruption or graft, are the main reasons we are not getting our money's worth from government.

"This indicates a reasonably sophisticated level of understanding which will make it easier to get to the root of problems."

Lodge believes that the real problems leading to waste at the state level are caused by an antiquated budgetary process - the line item budget. "Citizens" is presently conducting a radio and newspaper campaign across the state which will focus attention on the importance of reforming the budgetary process. The campaign emphasizes the lack of information in the present budget with the result that legislators cannot make good decisions.

"A good deal of legislation has been filed in the legislature this year to reform the process," Logan said. "We'll be telling citizens about it and try to create public pressures to see that the best of it becomes law."

The Citizens survey, taken by Joseph Napolitan Associates of Springfield, is based on 798 personal interviews conducted with Massachusetts citizens 18 years of age or older. Interviewing was done in homes during August, 1973, with a sample reflecting Massachusetts' population characteristics.

Responses to; Why is state or local government more in need of controls?

State Government (41.1 percent)

Waste money, mismanagement - 32.9 percent.

They have more money - 29.3 percent.

Spend more than they have - 8.8 percent.

Graft, patronage, corruption - 5.2 percent.

Both Equally In Need Of Controls (30.5 percent)

Waste on both levels - 76.5 percent.

State passes costs to local - 16 percent.

Both corrupt - 5.3 percent.

Local Government (14.9 percent)

Spent on wrong things - 30.3 percent.

Too much waste - 23.5 percent.

Because I live here - 11.8 percent.

Corrupt - 7.6 percent.

MAZEROSKI RESIGNS

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Third-base coach Bill Mazeroski, whose famous home run gave the Pittsburgh Pirates the 1960 World Series over the New York Yankees, announced Monday night he was retiring from the Pirate organization after 18 years of service with the club.

Mazeroski informed Pirate General Manager Joe Brown of his decision in a brief telephone call from Bradenton, Fla., the Pirates' spring training camp.

"Bill said that as training camp drew near he decided he'd had enough of baseball after 20 years and that he should spend more time with his family," a Pirate spokesman said.

Senior citizens meet

The Auburndale Community Schools, under the direction of Mrs. Joan Chaisson, coordinator, has developed a program for senior citizens.

Last fall Mrs. Chaisson met with Mrs. Marjorie Glassman, director of the Newton Wellesley Weston Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and planned for a group that could combine social activities with community service.

The Auburndale RSVP community helpers group has ten members and meets every Tuesday at the community room of the Norembega Gardens senior housing project from 1 - 3 p.m. New group members are welcome. For additional information about the Auburndale RSVP Community Helpers Group call RSVP, 969-5906.

The community helpers group has been working on a variety of projects for central supply at Newton Wellesley Hospital. They have made bandages and prepared surgical supplies. Group members also participated in the City of Newton census forms mailing project.

The Auburndale Community School's newest project is the development of a quilting circle. Experienced as well as novice quilters are welcome. Other new programs will include puppet and dance workshops for children.

Offer winter camp program

"Who says kids should only go to camp in the summer?" asks Carolyn Norman, program director of the YMCA's Ponkapoag Outdoor Center in Canton.

For the first time this winter, the Ponkapoag Center is offering a week-long "overnight" camp for boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 14. It will run from Feb. 18-22 during the Washington's Birthday school vacation.

Although it is located in the middle of the Blue Hills Reservation, the center is less than 20 minutes from downtown Boston off Route 128, and expects to attract youngsters from all over the Greater Boston area.

Among the activities offered will be: horseback riding, cross-country skiing, ice skating, tobogganing, winter hiking, and nature crafts such as wood carving, candle making, and macrame.

In a leather workshop, the youngsters will make their own sheepskin mittens or mocassins - which should come in handy for the rest of the winter.

They'll also take home their own maple sugar, tapped from trees and boiled down on the camp's 200-gallon maple sugar evaporator. It might go well with the "granola" they'll make in nature cookery.

Other activities will include map and compass reading, guitar lessons, and environmental studies - with the entire woodland reservation as a laboratory.

The "Y" facility is limiting enrollment to 60 campers, who will stay 5 days and 4 nights in newly-winterized, heated cabins.

Parents interested in enrolling their children can contact the center by calling 696-4466.

How the gas plan works

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts has become the third state in the nation to adopt a plan to regulate gasoline sales.

Under the modified Oregon system unveiled by Sargent, motorists with odd numbered license plates will be allowed to buy gasoline on odd-numbered days. Those with even-numbered plates will be allowed to buy fuel on even numbered days.

For drivers whose licenses end in letters, the last digit would determine when they could buy gasoline.

Drivers with so-called vanity plates will purchase their gasoline on odd-numbered days.

30 Days

The plan will be in effect six days a week and 30 days a month. It continues the current voluntary shutdown of most stations on Sunday. The program is suspended on the 31st day of any month when all vehicles are eligible to buy gas.

Boxer injured in shootout

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — One-time top heavyweight boxing contender Thad Spencer, 30, Portland, was in serious condition today after being shot three times in a shootout at a bar that left one man dead.

Elvin L. Alexander, 34, Portland, was dead on arrival at Emanuel Hospital here after being shot in the face Sunday.

Portland Police said no one has yet been charged in the shootings. They said the shootout took place at "Fred's Place" about 2 a.m. Sunday, and Spencer had been shot at least three times.

Spencer retired from boxing three years ago with a record of 33-13-1, including a victory over then-World Boxing Association Champion Ernie Terrell at the Houston Astrodome in 1966 in a non-title bout.

Xaverian six nipped 3-2

By PAUL BROOKS

John Dunderdale's second goal of the game at 9:06 of the second period provided B.C. High with a 3-2 victory over Xaverian Sunday. Xaverian was leading 2-1 before Dunderdale lit the lamp for two goals and a B.C. High victory. Mark Son scored Xaverian's goals while Kurt Ochs got the other for B.C. Jim Boyle played well in goal despite the loss, making 20 saves while Pat Costello kicked out 27 for B.C. High.

B.C. High took an early lead at 2:15 of the first period when Kurt Ochs scored. Fran McCarthy broke in on Boyle, he made a good stop, but Ochs put in the rebound.

Mark Son got his first of two at 5:46 of the period to tie the score, 1-1. Tom Lee was digging for the puck when he was pushed down from behind. He managed to get it to Jay Driscoll, and he pulled off a 2-on-1 break with Son. Jay waited for the defenseman to make his move, then passed over to Son, who drilled it to the far side.

Son put Xaverian in the lead at 9:07 of the first period when he was once again set up by Lee. Lee had the original shot, but the rebound fell in front and Son tucked it under Costello's pad to make the score 2-1.

At 8:18 of the second period, John Dunderdale tied it up for B.C. High. He took the puck at center ice and broke down the right side, cut around a Xaverian defenseman, and drilled it to the far side of Boyle.

Fran Robinson set up Dunderdale's game winner at 9:06 of the second period to give B.C. High the lead. Robinson was at the right point, and found Dunderdale open to the left of the cage, and Dunderdale just redirected the pass into the open net.

Jim Boyle's goaltending kept Xaverian in the game as he made a total of 20 saves, and most of them were good scoring opportunities.

It was wide open hockey in the third period, as the score remained the same, but Xaverian's forces were weakened when Mark Son and John McGourty got six minute misconducts. Jim Boyle was pulled during the last minute, but Xaverian was frustrated with six skaters to five.

The Hawks go against Don Bosco, Thursday, February sixth, at Boston Arena at 9:30 p.m.

Gas lines long, tempers short!

BOSTON (UPI) — If you want gasoline in New England this week, you have to get up pretty early in the morning to be sure of getting it.

According to the American Automobile Association (AAA), service stations in all New England states but Maine are pumping gasoline in the morning and locking up as soon as they have sold their daily quota.

An AAA survey announced Monday showed a good supply in Maine; fair to low in Massachusetts, and fair in Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Individual communities hit hard are Worcester, Providence, R.I., Manchester and Portsmouth, N.H., and Burlington, Vt. The AAA said most stations are limiting purchases to $2 and $3.

The longer the gas lines, the shorter people's tempers are becoming.

Some are even taking action. A hearing is set tomorrow in Norfolk County District Court to see what can be done about a gas station line so long on Route 1 in Norwood that it blocks the entrances to a local business.

The Harp and Bard Restaurant is seeking the action tomorrow against the Scot Bay State Petroleum Co. on Route 1 in Norwood.

Another local gas station dealer has taken to serving coffee to his customers waiting in line to ease their fiery tempers when they reach the pumps.

"People are really getting grouchy about the situation," the manager of a Texaco station in Norwood said.

"And watch out if someone tries to edge in ahead of someone else - they're touchy about that!" he exclaimed.

The manager recalled the other day one unknowing customer went in the middle of the line without realizing it and the person in back of him stood in front to block the intruder's car and directed the rest of the line around it.

A cordwainer by any other name . . .

By PENELOPE WRIGHT

Whatever happened to the "cordwainer"?

Well . . . he's still very much around, as Al Apone can testify, because he's been a cordwainer for the last 25 years.

Cordwainer is a term which disappeared centries ago, but the craft is still with us . . . and thank heavens for that! In today's terminology, we know him as the cobbler, shoe repairman, or shoemaker . . . and it's too bad we can't find a better word for Al's trade because he really does more than any of those terms imply. Even a "cordwainer" isn't quite right.

When you walk into Al's store . . . (the Oakdale Shoe Service, in Oakdale Square) . . . it smells of leather, shoe polish and glue. A nice smell which brings back memories of penny loafers and oxfords and shoe-shine boys. The old, but familiar Singer sewing machine is there, as are shelves with dozens of shoes neatly mended or in need of repair.

Five days a week, Al can be found working over one or the other of his twelve machines . . . deftly and swiftly putting back together shoes that, with hours of walking and wearing have broken down. He is a gentle man, both in speech and actions. . . a complement to his trade. He states: "I will never be rich in this business . . but neither will I starve."

Throughout the years, Al has repaired many things besides shoes. His hands have worked on purses, leather pants, saddles, broken straps, and jackets. Just recently, a customer brought in a leather jacket with a missing button on the front and asked if Al "couldn't take the (ornamental) buttons off the sleeves and use one of them to replace it (the missing button)." "Sure", Al said, and not only that . . . but he would also reinforce the other buttons (at the owner's request). This sort of service is what makes Al, and others in his trade, more than just a shoe repairman.

Even though the word 'cordwainer' has long been gone, shoes are still around. But they have undergone quite a change over the last century and Al isn't sure what will happen to the shoe, or the shoemaker in years to come.

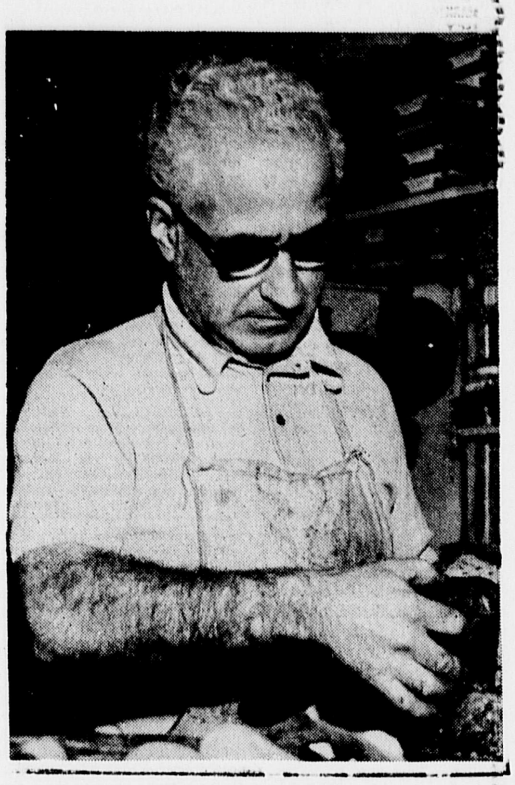
"The workmanship and materials are not the same", Al stated. "Heels are hollow instead of a solid piece, and most of them are made of plastic today. Men's shoes (require) cement work, instead of stitching, and the soles are lighter and thinner. The inner sole, which holds the shoe together, is no longer made of leather but what I call "paper" . . . and it falls apart with perspiration. The inner sole you can't replace."

Centuries ago the cordwainer was the most important person in a community because there was no other mode of transportation besides the feet or on horseback, and he was the man who made the shoes...from scratch.

Today, industry provides shoes by the millions . . . and they are made only to last as long as "what's in vogue" . . . certainly not a life time. As a result, Al's present customers are mostly middle class. "The poor can't afford to buy expensive shoes or even have them repaired, so they buy a cheap shoe and then replace it. The (affluent) people buy more expensive shoes, and usually have so many pairs that they seldom wear them out." Middle class people can usually afford a good shoe, but not many pairs . . . "and since we're in the business to save people money, these people are our usual customer", Al stated.

The way shoes are made has changed . . . and Al is wondering about the future of his trade. He has three sons and two daughters, none of whom are interested in becoming shoemakers, and Al thinks it's because there are more exciting things luring the young into other fields. Outside of his own family, and their personal reasons for not going into the trade, Al stated: "The oldtimers are closing down and there's nobody taking their place. I feel it's the oldtimer's fault because he never kept up with the times. . . didn't make his business look attractive to outsiders."

And yet . . . "Old crafts always collect . . proverbs. . . the shoe trade is no exception. It is said that "A cobbler should stick to his last," and for the sake of comfortable feet, let us hope this old proverb is forever true.



Ye olde cordwainer

WORKOUTS RESUMED

PARIS (UPI) — Argentina's Carlos Monzon, the world middleweight champion, was scheduled to resume his workouts at the Neuilly gym today in preparation for his title defense against welterweight titleholder Jose Napoles of Mexico on Saturday night.

Monzon refused to make any predictions on the fight and also declined to talk to Napoles on a direct television hookup.

"I don't know Napoles but I will soon know him," Monzon explained. "I don't want to talk to him now."

Deadlines Tuesday Noon — Friday Noon

on Broadway

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Producer Joseph Papp's ability to get major players to work for him in his limited-engagement productions at the Vivian Beaumont Theater in Lincoln Center at salaries that must be far below those to which they have become accustomed is being well demonstrated this season.

Julie Harris starred at the Beaumont in Papp's second production of the season, "The Au Pair Man," to high praise and, for her, low remuneration.

Now, Papp has scored a double for his fourth Beaumont play in signing England's Robert Shaw and our Joanne Woodward for a revival of August Strindberg's searing drama of marital discord, "The Dance of Death." These stars are just about as big as they come in the current market.

The Strindberg play, the season's last at the Beaumont, opens April 4 for approximately six weeks after a break-in visit to Philadelphia's Annenberg Center that begins March 4. These two stars are virtual insurance that Papp will end his first year of tenancy at the Beaumont with a sold-out engagement.

It is coincidental that a current much-praised motion picture, "The Sting," has Shaw co-starring with Robert Redford and Miss Woodward's husband, Paul Newman. And that is a reminder that the last time Miss Woodward appeared on the New York stage was in 1964 in "Baby Want a Kiss," with her husband as co-star.

This will not be the Beaumont's first brush with this Strindberg drama, although the original contact was not with the original Strindberg. In the Beaumont's small experimental threater, the Forum, now renamed the Newhouse, there was presented in 1971, before Papp's takeover, an antic paraphrase of the original titled "Play Strindberg" written by the successful Swiss playwright, Friedrich Duerrenmatt

Shaw, incidentally, is no stranger to the New York theater. He has been seen here in "The Caretaker, "The Physicists,""Gantry," and Harold Pinter's "Old Times," the latter as recently as 1972

Ireland's Brian Friel, who had one Broadway hit in "Philadelphia, Here I Come" in 1966, will be back with a new play Feb. 17 at the Alvin Theater.

It is "The Freedom of the City," dealing with contemporary Ireland, and the star will be Kate Reid, one of Canada's major contributions to the New York theater over the years.

The play, a success at Dublin's Abbey Theater and at London's Royal Court, had its American baptism last October at Chicago's Goodman Theater Prior to arrival here, it is being seen for three weeks at the Eisenhower Theater in Washington, D.C

Star Zero Mostel and director Burgess Meredith are not the only survivors of the original 1958 off-Broadway production of "Ulysses in Nighttown" who will be with the Broadway revival in March. A third is dancer-actor Swen Swenson, who not only will have his original role of Bella-Bello but also will choreograph the movement in this unusual adaptation of a portion of James Joyce's classic novel, "Ulysses."

91.—SALE REAL ESTATE

Hi George,

Remember last Thursday at the Club, I was telling you about Waterville Valley Gateway? A local firm, First Waterville Corporation, showed Helen and me around the Gateway today. Recall how skeptical I was? Well, seeing is believing! The Gateway has to be the most terrific year-round second-home area in the northeast, and, as you know, we've looked at most of them.

These townhouses are unbelievable! Get this — 4 bedrooms, 4 baths — completely furnished from the pictures, to drapes, to a corkscrew in the kitchen.

But that's only part of the story — we have use of not only the usual pools, tennis courts, riding stables etc., but in addition — there are 3 restaurants, 2 lounges, indoor ice skating, an archery range and more. We're only 10 minutes from Waterville Valley and 15-25 minutes from the other Ski 93 areas. Most important of all, however, HELEN AND THE KIDS LOVE IT!

If you haven't guessed by now — we've bought a unit, and as soon as First Waterville obtains the bank financing, we're moving in. (Moving in consists of bringing our ski equipment and a bottle of champagne. No furniture to move, no drapes to hang, etc.)

If you and Peggy are interested, call First Waterville COLLECT at 603-726-3090. Their office is on Route #49 on the way into Waterville Valley. They're terrific people and fun to do business with.

My pun for the week is "GATEWAY IS GETAWAY." Get it? Ugh!! I was never too good at puns, anyway. See you next week.

As Always,
Stan

P.S. First Waterville is giving us a season family ski pass to any area we choose for 1974-1975. With the size of our family, that amounts to almost $1000.

Husband-wife team star in 'Black Comedy'

In a unique bit of casting magic, Newton Country Players' director Bob Reed has selected a husband-wife team to portray the star-crossed lovers in Peter Shaffer's farce. "Black Comedy."

John and Sheila Deming of Newton Highlands have been tapped to play the romanticists from opposite sides of the track in the Players' mid-winter production, with performances slated for Friday and Saturday evenings, March 1-2 and 7-8, at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

The production will be available for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising at the Pomroy Playhouse, with its seating capacity of 175. Organization bookings for alternate mid-week or Sunday dates will be considered for the show, which will be staged cabaret-style, with tables and chairs.

For the Players, John Deming directed last season's mounting of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," an entry into the NETC Drama Festival, and has appeared on stage as Sir Gramercy Ghost in "Gabriel Ghost" and as the villain Richard Murgatroyd in the new nineteenth century musical melodrama "Gold in the Hills," a character not dissimilar to the one he portrayed in his initial outing as an eighth grader.

Deming acted in or directed approximately 15 plays while an undergraduate at Marietta Colle, Ohio, where he received a BA in public speaking, drama and English. He was awarded a master of science degree in speech pathology and audiology at Emerson College and has taken a number of extension courses at the University of Maryland and University of Vermont.

His characterizations include Red Chief in "Ransom of Red Chief," a messenger in Anouilth's "Antigone," the butler in "Importance of Being Earnest," Charlie's aunt in "Charlie's Aunt," Angel Gabriel in "Green Pastures," a member of the weddng in "Blood Wedding" and Gregis Werle in "Wild Duck."

He essayed also the roles of John Proctor ir. two separate versions of "The Crucible," Father in "Six Characters in Search of an Author," Valentine in "Love for Love," Arnold in "Ghosts," Richard in "Ah Wilderness," W.O. Gant in "Look Homeward Angel," the title role in "Richard III," Bottom in "Midsummer Night's Dream," Young Man in Gertrude Stein's "Brewsie and Willie," Darcy in "Pride and Prejudice," Husband in "Rashomon," Charlie Reader in "The Tender Trap," Ernest in "Impormptu," Truffeldino in "Servant of Two Masters" and Grandma in "The Sandbox."

Among plays he has directed are "Antigone," "Remarkable Incident at Carson Corner," the musical "Sky High," "Ten Little Indians," "12 Angry Men," "Impromptu," "A Trophy for Mr. Heartfelt," "The Marriage Proposal" and "The Lottery."

An ardent worker both on stage and behind the scenes, and currently in her second term as Players' president, Sandy Deming appeared as Anne Reardon in the group's 1973 production of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," repeating her performance in the NETC Drama Festival.

She served as stage manager for the Fall mounting of "The Pajama Gae" and for "See How They Run," in the capacity of producer for "Gold in the Hills," and both the Fall and Spring tours of the Players' highly acclaimed "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," and its entry into the NETC Drama Festival as well.

On stage for the group, Mrs. Deming created the roles of Helen Clark in "We Have Always Lived in a Castle" and Cynthia in "Everything in the Garden."

A native of England, she played Hermia in "Midsummer Night's Dream" and Viola in "Twelfth Night" while attending high school. She studied elocution and drama under Louise Senior, well-known British acress and teacher, winning awards for interpretive readings in a number of regional drama festivals and at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Working with the Bradford Civic Theatre, an English repertory company, Mrs. Deming portrayed Olivia in "Midsummer Night's Dream," the madwoman in "Jane Eyre," as well as executing roles in chairs," "The Lesson," "The mikado," "Separate Tables," "The Matchmaker" and "Pirates of Penzance."

During her husband's tenure of service in Germany, she was involved in many theatrical ventures for Special Services and the USO, including her creation of Sylvia in "The Tender Trap." Her initial dramatic efforts upon arrival to the United States in 1966 was the title role in "Antigone" at Marietta College, Ohio.

Now in their 18th year of community theatre activity, the Newton Country Players are a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents, who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

For additional information concerning theatre party sponsorship, phone Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

WCRB presents BSO fourth annual music marathon starting March 7

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's fourth annual musical marathon presented by radio station WCRB (1330 AM-FM 102.5) to benefit the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops Orchestras begins at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 7, and will continue around the clock 24 hours a day until 1 a.m. Monday, March 11. Sponsored by the Council of Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the goal of this year's musical marathon is a record $85,000. The 1973 musical marathon had a goal of $65,000 and raised a total of $78,000.

Listeners will again have the rare opportunity to choose from over 2,500 exciting and historic performances by the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops listed in the 1974 edition of the musical marathon catalogue. The commercially unavailable performances were taped live in Symphony Hall, at Tanglewood and on tour in Europe, and were conducted by Music Director Seiji Ozawa, Arthur Fiedler, Serge Koussevitzky, Erich Leinsdorf and many other outstanding conductors who have directed the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Music requested will be broadcast for two full weeks beginning March 7.

Donors wishing to contribute to the musical marathon pledge $1 for every minute of music they wish to hear with a minimum contribution of $20. In addition to choosing their favorite music, donors may choose from several hundred premiums, many listed in the musical marathon catalogue. A sampling of the premiums listed in this year's catalogue include a Seiji Ozawa jigsaw puzzle in a can (available to all donors of $20 of more), BSO and Boston Pops tee shirts, canvas BSO tote bags, a ride (round trip, of course) in BSO bass player Joe Hearn's Schweitzer 2-33 sail plane with Mr. Hearn at the controls, a day of lobstering in the Boston harbor with bass player John Salkowski, a full day of ski instruction for six at a New Hampshire ski resort with BSO trumpet player Jerry Goguen, and even the chance to be a soloist with the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall this spring. There are squash and tennis games and golf matches with orchestra members, a chance to challenge the BSO softball team (undefeated last year), gourmet dinners, outstanding recitals by members of the orchestra, conducting lessons (for those of you who never quite mastered your conductors kits from the 1973 marathon), a concert by the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, and lots more.

Waban resident has one-woman showing

Tedde Wise Field of 8 Jaffrey Cir., Waban, has brought her "art footnotes" theory to New York in a six-week one-woman art exhibit which began Jan. 13 and continues through Feb. 23.

Interpreting notations accompany each work in the exhibit, which features Ms. Wise Field's abstract and non-objective paintings in enamel, acrylic and mixed media.

Footnotes describing her acrylic "Raison D'Etre," for example, read: "Beauty is here celebrated in an exuberance of bright, singing colors. Ever-turning black roadways are alive with small unexpected designs representing the lively experiences and unpredictable opportunities tomorrow may bring."

"Cosmic Symbols," another acrylic, combines the basic shapes of the universe with the mysticism of the good luck hex, magic circles to ward off evil, sun-eggs symbolizing birth and life.

"Fantastie Impromptu," a free-flowing enamel, interprets the designs of oil floating on water in street puddles that fascinated her when she was a child.

Ms. Wise Field, a member of the National Art Workers' community, is of the opinion that the general public is frustrated by abstract art and unaware that some paintings make philosophic comments and personal statements, while others represent reactions to experiences, experimentation in form and color and pure design.

"Let the public in on the secret," she said, "or the public will turn away altogether and embrace only new realism."

Her paintings won acclaim last summer when her artworks in oil, acrylic, enamel, ink and pastel were featured in a one-woman show at the Onset Bay Art Gallery on Cape Cod.

Florence Ottke of the New Bedford Standard Times wrote, "gifted artist - the essence of love," and New York Arts Commentator Lucie Wies reported "The works are marked by inventiveness. . . carry an unusual luminosity of a great emerging talent."

Included among Ms. Wise Field's paintings, sculpture and ceramics are strictly representational works requiring no explanation whatever.

School budget may up tax rate $5

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

The Newton School Committee gave final approval this week to a School Department budget of $29,131,917 for the fiscal year 1974-75.

The School Committee cut $249,553 from an original recommendation by the school administration. The approved budget represents a 6.9 per cent increase over the 1973-74 budget, according to the administration.

There were a variety of responses to the final budget. Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith noted that his recommendation to cut approximately 40 professional positions this year was turned down by the School Committee. A reduction of 31.3 professional positions was approved.

"I feel that the country is in real sad condition right now economically," Beckwith commented. "I've wondered where the break comes in tightening the strings on the purse."

Beckwith asked the administration to study the possibility of closing down one or two elementary schools.

Beckwith expressed concern about the budget for fuel. He said that he has felt that the Division of Support Services did not plan sufficiently for increases in costs.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell said that he could not vote in favor of the budget.

"We will add about $6 to the tax rate," Mandell commented. "In all conscience, I can't vote in favor of increasing the budget to this amount."

School Committee member Mrs. Joan Needleman asked that ways be found to save money before next year's budget meetings.

School Committee member Mrs. Dorothy Reichard said that she thought "heat, utilities and Chapter 766 are going to be more costly than we anticipate in this budget."

School Committeeman Herbert Regal commented that he thought the administration initially proposed a reasonable budget.

First term School Committeeman Henry Delicata said that he would not vote for the budget, "I can't let myself be a hyprocrite, Delicata commented.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann noted that 85 per cent of the school and municipal budgets is for salaries. "The only way to have a drop back in the budget is to let people go," Mann said.

Mann remarked that he would abstain on the school budget because he still had to go through collective bargaining with several unions.

He said that budget increases would first show in the October tax bill.

Mann commented that he had heard the possibility raised of deferring implementation of Chapter 766. "We don't want to defer Chapter 766," Mann said.

Six School Committee members voted in favor of the budget. Mandell and Delicata voted opposition and Mann abstained.

The School Committee also voted approval to a motion to keep the starting time of elementary schools at 8:45 a.m. while Daylight Saving Time is in effect.

It was noted that communications indicate that parents are generally in favor of maintaining the 8:45 a.m. starting time, while a majority of the staff, for educational reasons, prefer 8:15 a.m.

A member of the audience commented that young children can become tired after lunch on long days.

The School Committee unanimously approved a report form for the Spaulding School.

The form, of which there were three variations, asked children to evaluate themselves. A form for third and fourth graders asked questions such as "do I speak clearly," and "am I able to write paragraphs."

It was suggested that it might be painful for children to admit limitations.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink commented that "I think its important for youngsters to realize that there are some things they don't do well."

Director of Support Services John Gilleland presented a report on his division. He noted that energy conservation measures have been encouraging.

How odd Massachusetts became a voluntary "Oregon Plan" state Monday in an attempt to alleviate some of the pressures of buying gas. Voluntary, is the key word, and not everyone is strictly complying. Here, for example, is a car with an odd number plate that got gas Tuesday, Feb. 12, at the West Newton Shell Station. After snapping this photo, the Graphic photographer was ordered off the premises. Odds are even on gas

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Newton gas station participation in the Oregon plan for gasoline distribution seemed spotty Tuesday, the second day of the voluntary plan announced last week by Gov. Francis Sargent.

Stations in several Newton villages checked on Tuesday, an even-numbered day, seemed to be following the rule for selling gas only to cars with registration plates ending in an even number but no red, green, or yellow flags were being displayed, and no signs were seen indicating station hours.

Lines of cars around stations selling gas were somewhat shorter than last week, but so were tempers.

Drivers were heard asking, "How do I get to be a regular customer?" as they were faced with another of an increasing number of notices saying "regular customers only."

(The practice of selling gas only to regular customers was declared illegal Tuesday by William E. Simon, federal energy chief. Simon suggests that persons who feel they are being discriminated against on this basis contact the Internal Revenue Service. Violators may be subject to a $5,000 fine.

The $3 minimum amount of gasoline that is part of the Oregon plan has, as a rule, become a maximum, as many dealers found their monthly gallonage allocations sharply cut.

One station owner, who did not wish to be identified, received word that he will receive only 65 per cent of what he expected this month. He is selling only to regular customers.

Another dealer said the absence of flags (green to indicate gas available, yellow meaning gas for commercial and emergency vehicles, and red showing that no gas is being sold) was due to the cost of the flag set, which he reported as $15.

Newton station operators still sell gas only in the early morning hours, it appeared, with most if not all stations closed for gas sales by about 9 a.m.

Dealers generall agreed that lines have been shortened by the new distribution system, but one attendant said, "The same people will just be back the day after tomorrow."

Shorter lines, however, have not improved the traffic problems caused by a line of cars occupying the right lane of a street.

At a meeting last week with Mayor Theodore Mann, Newton gasoline dealers would not agree to a staggered-hours system of operation. Thirty dealers attended the meeting out of a total of 60 in the city; some others sent word that they would agree with the consensus.

The essential points of the "Oregon plan," instituted statewide on a voluntary basis beginning this week, are that on odd-numbered days stations will sell gas only to cars bearing registration plates ending in an odd number, with the same system to be used for even numbers.

Vanity plates are to be considered odd numbers, while zero is considered an even number. Plates ending with a letter will use the last digit before the letter.

Out-of-state cars belonging to students living here will follow the same system as Massachusetts cars.

Exempted are commercial and emergency vehicles, V and HP plates, automobiles used by salesmen, provided the salesman has a notarized letter from his employer, and "vehicles used for medical purposes."

Dealers were requested to sell a minimum of $3 worth of gas to prevent "topping off" a nearly full tank.

The program is to be in effect Monday through Saturday and on holidays. The thirty-first day of a month is a "free" day when all cars may get gas.

Reorganization moves into its second phase

Having achieved most of the first phase of the reorganization of city government last week when the Board of Aldermen approved salary increases for his executive staff, Mayor Theodore Mann Tuesday night moved into Phase 2, the city departments.

The meat of the plan is the expansion of the scope of the Public Works Department, which, under reorganization, would include all maintenance and construction now done by the Public Buildings and Recreation Departments.

The director of the new Public Works Department would have responsibility for and control over the Street, Water, and Engineering Departments, which would lose the relative autonomy they enjoy now.

The Recreation Department would be free to concentrate on development of program, and the Building Department would be responsible solely for inspection and enforcement of building codes and zoning regulations.

Tuesday night's meeting of the ad hoc reorganization committee and the mayor was the first open meeting on Phase 2 of the reorganization, although the plan was given to the Board of Aldermen on Jan. 1.

The mayor and the aldermen both seemed to be feinting politely at each other, feeling each other out, with new Administrative Officer James Salter deflecting thrusts from each side.

Listening to Ald. Edward Richmond and Ernest Dietz questioning the staffing of the Engineering Department, Ald. Richard Bullwinkle said, "There is a clear implication here that it is overstaffed."

Public Works Director Richard Dudman, who is scheduled to leave by March 1, answered that the Engineering Department is still set up to serve Newton in the 1950's, when there was a considerable amount of street layout and construction being done.

It's still staffed that way," Dudman said. "It needs redefinition."

The reorganization plan would put the skills of the Engineering Department at the disposal of the new Public Works Department, where it could be used in building construction.

The name of Gene Larson, Public Buildings commissioner since only last August, arose again in connection with the directorship of the new department.

Salter said, "We are certainly considering Larson," but then went on to say that he, the mayor, and the Board must first "arrange the basic structure" of the job before selecting someone to fill it.

At one point Mann asked Bullwinkle, who is vice-president of the Board and often an opponent of the mayor, "Do you think the approach we're taking is correct?"

"I'd like to see the overall plan first and some estimated costs," Bullwinkle replied.

The Jan. 1 document on reorganization is only an outline of what the mayor is proposing.

Next will come a more detailed outline and chart of the reorganized departments, followed by the final proposal.

According to Salter, some 26 ordinances will be affected, all of which must be approved by the Board. The package of ordinances will not be assembled until the final reorganization plan has been worked out between the mayor and the aldermen.

Asked by an alderman about when he thought the reorganization could take place, Salter replied that it might be possible by July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year.

The timetable for discussion will be tight, since the time-consuming budget review and hearings will be starting in March.

A public hearing on the reorganization is required by the charter.

Salter toold the aldermen pointedly,

Incinerator to be closed

A tentative decision was made by Mayor Theodore Mann Tuesday night to cease operation of the Newton incinerator after Dec. 31, 1974.

Reported recommendations by the consulting firm of Camp Dresser McKee that the city should not upgrade the incinerator for use as a possible Newton-Waltham regional refuse facility agreed in some measure with an earlier report by Arthur D. Little Co. that the incinerator should be abandoned.

Chief Administrative Officer James Salter said at the Tuesday night meeting that the city will inform the state by March 1 of its intention to close the incinerator.

March 1 is the deadline imposed by the state by which time the city must have submitted a compliance schedule for bringing the incinerator up to air-quality standards.

Still to be decided is the method of disposal of the city's solid waste after the incinerator is closed down.

The Arthur D. Little (ADL) report recommended discontinuing use of the incinerator, using transfer-haul as a short-term interim solution for disposal, and either alone, or with Waltham, promoting the development of a large resource-recovery plant.

Camp Dresser McKee's (CDM) conclusions, reported by Public Works Director Richard Dudman, were much the same for the potential Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District.

CDM took an even stronger position against the incinerator, saying at a meeting of the district committee last Saturday that in CDM's opinion far more extensive work, including replacing furnaces and grates, would be needed than ADL suggested.

CDM has not yet made any recommendation on what the interim solution should be, but downplayed the transfer-haul method because of the scarcity of landfill sites and the lack of a guarantee that the chosen contractor could fulfill his contract.

(Transfer-haul is an arrangement whereby rubbish is compacted at a transfer station in the community and hauled away in large tractor-trailers to a landfill area, incinerator, or resource-recovery plant.)

Kenneth Smith, project engineer for CDM, called transfer-haul "the least attractive proposition right now."

By July 1 a decision must be made on whether to form a Newton-Waltham disposal region under extended terms of the contract approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which funded the district study committee with a $112,500 grant last summer.

Dudman, Salter and Mann all seemed to lean toward the Consumat incineration process as the answer until a regional resource-recovery plant is built either as a joint effort by Newton, Waltham and other communities or by the state.

The Consumat incinerator is a modular unit with a capacity of 12.5 tons per day. A Consumat representative recently recommended about 8 units each on two sites in Newton and eight units for Waltham, if the Consumat system were undertaken by the two-city region.

This number would give Newton a burning capacity of 200 tons per day, and Waltham 100 tons per day, which is sufficient.

Advantages of the Consumat, according to Brian Hogan, president of Resource Systems, Inc., which installs Consumat units, particulate emission from the Consumat stacks is below the federal allowance, and the units achieve 95 per cent reduction of combustibles, volume reduction to 1-20, and weight reduction of 75 per cent.

A typical 100-ton-per-day installation can be set up in a space of 235 feet by 137 feet.

The city could enter into a five-, seven-, or 10-year contract. Hogan said that on a five-year contract, incineration cost could be $10.65 per ton, which includes the cost of installation and training of operators.

The current cost per ton for incineration at the Newton incinerator has been estimated at $11.

A resource-recovery system offers the best long-term answer to disposal of solid waste, according to both ADL and CDM, but ADL's report estimates the capital investment at $6.6 million.

Partially offsetting the high cost is the Housing target of latest legislation

In an attempt to end deceptive practices and excessive closing costs in housing sales and protect purchasers of new homes against faulty construction and unsuitable land Representatives David Lane (R-Essex) and Lois Pines (D-Newton) have filed a Home Buyers Protection Bill in the Massachusetts Legislature.

"When families buy a home it is usually the biggest investment they will ever make. Our goal is to prevent real estate transactions which involve unfair, deceptive and anti-competitive practices, unreasonably high settlement charges and to protect families from unsuitable land purchases, faulty constrcction, unsafe or otherwise defective home," Pines said.

This comprehensive consumer legislation covers the gamut of home purchase transactions. It requires full and uniform disclosure of suitability of land for dwelling purposes and of dwelling conditions as well as dwelling components such as plumbing, sewage, heating and electrical systems. Builders must furhish the buyers of new houses a five-year warranty against serious defects. The bill makes sure the home buyer obtains the facts necessary to make an informed choice about the feasibility and cost of purchasing and maintaining a dwelling and is warned about unfair practices and unnecessary charges by requiring information booklets to be distributed by the real estate agent and bank.

Conflict of interest situations between lenders, sellers, and all others providing dwelling real estate transaction services would be prohibited. Real estate settlement costs must be disclosed in advance and are subject to a maximum fee schedule.

Finally, this measure allows the home buyer to choose his own attorney for title search and closing.

Under this bill, written disclosure of substantial defects on used homes occupied by four families or less must be made to buyers before a purchase and sale contract is signed. Builders must furnish the buyers of new houses a five year warranty that the house has no serious structural defects and back that warranty with a committment to correct any defects or through insurance provide reimbursement for the homeowner for repair of the defects.

Before selling house lots the seller must furnish a Board of Health certificate that the land has been tested and meets the standards required by local or state law for the construction of a dwelling.

The penalties for violation of this proposed law are severe. In addition to civil remedies available to the purchaser who has suffered a loss, sellers who fail to disclose defects or builders who fail to deliver warranties are subject to a fine of up to $5,000 or imprisonment of up to 2½ years or both. Similar penalties apply to those who accept illegal fees or kickbacks.

A Louis Harris poll a couple of years ago showed the public giving housing the lowest marks among 11 major consumer items. Defects were found in almost one fourth of the new homes and 39 per cent of used houses that were inspected under a federal subsidy program according to a recent GAO report.

Gun control legislation filed again this year

Rep. Peter Harrington (D—Newton) and Sen. Jack Backman (D—Brookline) have filed legislation in the 1974 session of the legislature to regulate handguns.

Under this legislation, law enforcement officials, members of the armed forces, authorized pistol clubs, employees of armed guard agencies and licensed businessmen will be the only persons allowed to possess handguns. Even this will be under the strict control of the Commissioner of Public Safety.

For the past three years, similar legislation filed by Backman has been defeated by the nationwide lobby of the National Rifle Association and its affiliated clubs and gun businesses.

On the opening day of the legislative session, Jan. 7, Gov. Francis Sargent announced that a prime target for this session must be the handgun, "menace to all of us, but an everyday threat to our police." As a show of good faith he has announced that his own sporting goods business will no longer sell handguns.

A hearing on this legislation will take place on Feb. 25.

"The tragic pattern of violence and gun killings must be erased. Our nation, addicted to guns, has accumulated 90 million private gun weapons, more than 25 per cent of which are handguns. The homicide rate in the United States is shamefully 50 times higher than Great Britain and 60 times higher than Japan," Backman said.

Last year over 50 per cent of the record number of killings in Boston were from handguns and 75 per cent of these cases involved husband, wife, friends, neighbors or acquaintances, according to Backman.

Going South

Perspective on low income housing

By ANDY FIELDING

Newton, thank heavens, is finally going to see some low and moderate income housing.

As a result of a recent decision by the city's Board of Aldermen, 50 units of housing will be built on Hamlet street in the city come 1975.

Though this really is a start, and Newton deserves some sort of a pat on the back, it also is sort of a letdown. Five or six years ago, a group of citizens comprising the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) had some big plans–they had some very inspiring and innovative goals for the city. Their plan seemed simple enough: they wanted to reach out to people in the inner city who needed help–poor people, which means both black and white people–and create housing for them on a wide scale level right here in Newton.

But it wasn't so simple. The NCDF proposals encountered a great deal of opposition from a number of Newton residents, ans so over the years, those proposals remained just proposals.

What, you may ask, does the subject of low and moderate income housing have to do with a column about Newton South? At least from my viewpoint, which is the viewpoint of a student, it has a lot to do with Newton South. And it has a lot to do with every other school in Newton, as well as in the schools of suburbs like it.

I must say that I enjoy living in Newton very much. But I do think that the children in the city–as well as their parents–are living in a rather "unreal" atmosphere. Go into any school in the city, such as Newton South, for example, and take a look into any one of the classrooms there. If you see one black student, you'll be lucky. More often than not, however, you just won't see any black students. At Newton South, there are a total of 53 black students (32 of whom are in the METCO program), as compared with some 1400 whites.

There really is, it seems, something terribly wrong with this. If we are at all to survive in this world, it seems so crucial that we live with and get to know other "kinds" of people. The children in our school system just aren't being exposed to those other people.

We made a start with METCO. But a program like that is obviously limited in terms of the numbers of people it can involve. The real problem, it seems, is that there just aren't very many non-whites living within the city–we do have de-facto segregation in Newton.

With NCDF–with its original proposals–we would have been making a real step in the right direction. Had those proposals been acted upon, we would have seen more black people and some poor people, living here. They would have become citizens of our community, and their children would have attended the schools here. This to me, at least, would have been kind of nice. Culturally, it would have been a much healthier situation, at least, than the one we're living in now.

The crucial point, it seems is that while the people who will reside in the low and moderate income housing will benefit, the overall community will benefit just as much, or even more, by the very presence of the new residents. The program would undoubtedly serve as a sort of mutual enrichment program.

The recent action by the city's Board of Aldermen is a good start. We should pat the Board on the back. But we shouldn't pat too long. There's still a lot to be done.

Man charged with breaking and entering

A 19-year old Roxbury man was arrested for breaking and entering in the daytime and intent to commit a felony this week, according to Newton police.

Charles Ellis Core was arrested by Detectives William Fitzsimmons and Robert Whelan when he was allegedly coming out the front door of 46 Collins rd., Waban at approximately 1 p.m. on Monday.

According to police, the suspect was flushed out of the house by Det. Thomas McInerney.

The arrest was made as a result of a phone call by a neighbor.

A window was broken in a kitchen door.

In other police action, two Newton firefighters were brought to Newton-Wellesley Hospital on Monday after responding to a fire at 1667 Centre St., Newton Highlands.

According to police, Joe Farrigamo called to report that there was a fire in the home at 12:19.

Police reported that the home was fully engulfed. The fire reportedly began in the cellar.

Police officers Edward Pendergast and Ronald Redd took Capt. William Greeley, 44, to Newton-Wellesley Hospital. He was treated for facial injuries due to burns received when he opened a cellar door, according to police.

Officer George Austin took Lt. Robert Quinlan, 47, to the hospital. Quinlan was treated for burns on the left side of his face.

Oak Hill gets better telephone facilities

Crews are working in Newton on the final phase of a $770,000 New England Telephone project to provide additional call-carrying facilities to serve the Oak Hill Park area.

Local telephone manager Paul C. Duncan said the project involves placing both cable and conduit, the underground duct system that houses telephone cable.

"The conduit for this project," Duncan said, "was completed last year. Nearly two miles of new ducts were placed on Walnut and Dedham streets from Boylston street down to Brookline street.

"Nearly 5.5 miles of underground cable has since been fed into these and other duct systems through manholes apced at intervals along the route," Duncan said.

Telephone personnel are at work now putting the new facilities into operation to serve the growing number of residents in the Oak Hill Dudley street and Hartmann road area.

A separate cable project–also nearing completion–involves placing cable in this same conduit system to provide more calling pathways between Newton and West Roxbury.

"We plan the expansion of our telephone facilities in each community very carefully," Duncan said, "since we serve many communities throughout the state and each is growing or changing in its own way.

"We gather statistics on residential and business growth in each community and on changes in the numbers of telephones in that communityl We also consider how many calls the average customer is making and how long he is talking.

"Each of these things is a factor in determining when we will need to add to the cable or call-handling equipment serving each community, so that we can ensure that the money we spend each year to expand is spent where the facilities will be needed soonest."

PTA Council tackles school vandalism topic

By TOM GRAVES

The Newton PTA Council sponsored a discussion of vandalism and anti-social behavior in the Newton Public Schools at its monthly meeting last week at the Beethoven School.

Moderator Peter Scott asked a nine-person panel to deal with three questions: what is the extent of vandalims; what are its causes; and what can be done to alleviate and remedy vandalism.

Director of Support Services John Gilleland said that there were approximately 1100 reports of vandalism in the schools in 1973. He noted that approximately $66,000 worth of damage was done, about $63,000 relating to window breaking.

"The extent is pervasive," Gilleland commented. "It reaches all areas of the schools."

Gilleland added that he thought the situation was "not critical" He said that the number of cases of vandalism differed at different schools.

Newton Police Chief William Quinn said that "the most serious damage glass-wise has been out at South High."

"The amount of vandalism is realted to the amount of ammunition available," Gilleland said.

Quinn remarked that there was an increase in the amount of vandalism in the city after a law was passed granting 18-year olds the right to drink alcohol.

"A beer can makes a pretty good missile," Quinn commented. "I hope to submit legislation to the mayor and to the legislature to get rid of public drinking without the consent of the proper people."

Quinn said that he thought the amount of vandalism had leveled off. He noted that people have been prosecuted and some restitution has been made.

Special Judge and former mayor Monte Basbas talked about the way alleged vandals are dealt with.

"We have a court clinic which deals with people with problems," Basbas commented.

"I do not intend to have kids come in, be slapped on the hand, and then walk out," Basbas said. "We're concerned about reports of probation officers and reports from Jerry Angino (supervisor of attendance).

"We insist on restitution by someone, preferably the young person," Basbas added.

Quinn commented that many vandalism cases are handled out of court. "The judge sees second offenders," Quinn noted.

"We're not having the vandalism now we had several years ago," Quinn continued. He remarked that a few years ago, "if we were too rought, we would have a bad night; windows would be smashed.

"I don't see vandalism all that widespread in Newton schools," Quinn concluded.

Several people noted that vandalism is a problem not just relating to schools.

Scott, a former president of the PTA Council, focused the discussion on Newton North High School when he commented that there is a petition signed by Newton North teachers calling for greater security at that school.

Richard Clark, a teacher at Newton North, said that "we have a unique set of problems." "Some kids are physically mature and emotionally 11-12 years old."

Clark said that there is someone in the parking lot now, and that security has been tightened up.

"We've tried to locate problem areas," Clark commented. He noted that more teachers have been put in Main Street at New North.

Clark said that one house at Newton North has set up a program to deal with "hard core kids."

"We've set up a faculty advisor program where we practically live with kids for three years," Clark commented.

The advisors meet with their kids once a week and talk with their teachers. "We want to give him (a kid) a feeling that there is someone interested in him," Clark said.

Clark said later that the advisors meet once a month. He said that teachers also try to deal with kids who are having problems adjusting to an open campus.

Scott read from a list of incidents which have allegedly occurred at Newton North. The list included false alarms, theft of door knobs, theft from students' lockers, damage to the cars of faculty members, spitting on teachers and smashing of doors.

Gilleland said that "some of the problems are not student-oriented."

Gilleland noted that malfunction of equipment caused some smashed doors.

School psychologist Charles Brinton said that battles for space at a new school create "a great deal of tension."

There was also discussion of student behavior on buses. Several people noted that intimidation seems to exist between students.

Michael Silton, a student at Newton North, talked from the audience.

"Newton North High School is not an unbearable place to live," Silton commented.

"There is a definite problem," he added. "Vandalism goes on every day."

Silton asked for help. "We don't know what the rules are; "I'm crying out for guidelines and enforcement."

Quinn said that anonymous tips have been useful to the Police Department. He said they might be helpful the the School Department also.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said that parents should be in contact with the schools.

When asked if the School Department could identify vandals, Fink said tha "you have a suspicion."

"The problems have to be solved by the people who live there," Fink commented.

Emily Shulman, a student at Newton South High, said that "students need to feel that they are part of the school."

David Geikie, president of the Newton Teachers Assocation, said after the meeting that the petition signed by approximately 160 of 220 Newton North staff members calling for greater security had been forwarded to the superintendent.

Gilleland presented figures on vandalism in 1973 to the Newton School Committee this week.

A report said that expenses in 1973 for theft were $26,227 and for vandalism, $66,188.

'Snow fight' erupts over transfer

An emergency request for transfers of $150,000 within the Public Works Department account for anticipated snow expenses set off another verbal battle between Ald. Richard McGrath and Richard Dudman, director of the department, in a joint meeting of the Finance and Public Works Committees last week.

McGrath questioned the amount asked for sand and salt, asking "Where is the sand and salt? I'd like to see you justify this."

McGrath has been implying for some time that something is wrong with the sand and salt storage and purchasing procedures. He referred again to last year finding "no salt and sand in the city yards, under suspicious circumstances."

Dudman countered, "If you think it has been taken, give me some information on that."

McGrath complained that he has been talking about snowplowing for two and one-half years. "Nevertheless," he said, "we are in worse shape than ever. We haven't even had a real storm."

Ald. Alan Barkin asked McGrath, "What kind of storm are you hoping for?"

When McGrath replied that he hopes there is no storm, Barkin asked, "Then what kind of storm do you hope we don't have?"

Dudman agreed that McGrath had been talking about snow problems for at least as long as Dudman has worked for the city, but said that when he asked McGrath for specifics, McGrath would say, "I know–you find out."

In a rare outburst, Dudman exclaimed, "I've reached the end point with McGrath in his irrational state," and called much of McGrath's charge a "distortion of information."

A list of visual observations made by McGrath on snowplowing and sanding operations included snow being loaded into trucks whose tailgates were missing, so that the loaded snow slid out as the trucks drove away, and the use of two pieces of contractors' equipment each bearing single, identical registration plates.

McGrath said he had seen a truck sanding the street immediately followed by a plow pushing the sand to the side of the street. McGrath saw another truck being loaded by a loader too small to reach over the side of the truck, so that the loader had to stop short and slide its snow load into the truck.

Dudman admitted, "Yes there are problem areas, but I do not accept what I consider these paranoid interpreations."

Ald. Richard Bullwinkle took Dudman to task for creating a crisis requiring a special Board meeting to consider the $150,000 transfer. The transfer had been requested on Feb. 4, the day of the last regular Board meeting, not in time to be discussed without suspension of the rules, which did not succeed.

Bullwinkle wanted to know why the request had come so late, since Street Commissioner Edmund Bolduc had inquired about the possibility of a $100,000 transfer as early as Feb. 15.

Dudman said that he had decided on the request for $150,000, to avoid having to return for another transfer later, after it had been determined that that amount could safely be transferred.

Finance Committee voted 6-0 in favor of the transfers, Public Works 5-1, and the Board 18-1.

Too much salt on roads charged

Too much salt again is being used on snowy Newton streets, the Newton Conservators, Inc., charged last week.

Mrs. Andree Wilson of the Conservators reported in a recent Conservators newsletter that in January nearly pure salt was laid on the driveway and parking lot at the Mason-Rice School in Newton Centre, the sidewalks and driveway at City Hall, and at Bracebridge and Pleasant Sts. in Newton Centre.

Mrs. Wilson pointed out that at the Mason-Rice School salt placed around drains ends up in Hammond Brook and eventually in Bullough's Pond.

In addition to Mrs. Wilson, several aldermen reported complaints from citizens last week on the excessive use of salt on the streets.

Street Commissioner Edmund Bolduc this week defended the salting operation, saying that in general the Street Department has adhered to the established policy of three parts of sand to one part salt on arterial roads, hills, and danger spots, and five parts sand to one part salt on side streets, except during ice storms.

Around public buildings and schools, Bolduc said, it is necessary to use nearly pure salt because the Street Department attends to these areas only once, and one treatment must suffice.

But Richard Dudman, director of the Public Works Department, said that new restrictions will be put into effect for all public buildings, calling for less salt to be used.

Mrs. Wilson also called attention to the fact that below a 20-degree temperature, salt is of no effect in melting snow and ice.

Since 1971 the Newton Conservators has been asking the city to use less salt because of the damage done to street trees and the waters into which storm sewers drain.

Mrs. Wilson noted that as March approaches the use of salt should be paid especial attention, since during March trees and plants begin to take up large quantities of water for spring growth.

Dog fines go up

Dogs running loose may cost their owners up $25 dollars in fines, if the increases asked for by the Police Department become law.

The new schedule, approved by the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee this week, provides fines of $5 for the first offense, $10 for the second, and $25 for the third and subsequent violations of the leash law.

The present system of fines imposes a warning for the first offense, $2 for the second, $5 for the third, and $10 for the fourth and subsequent offenses.

Since the leash law has been in effect the number of dog bites has decreased from about 500 per year to 137 last year, Dog Control Officer Charles Rivers said.

The change in the ordinance will be voted on by the full Board Feb. 19.

Another Newton halfway house proposed

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

A halfway house for people leaving mental hospitals has been proposed for Newton.

Under the aegis of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Mental Health and Mental Retardation Area Office of the state, a public meeting of the steering committee of the N-W-W Committee for Development of Alternative Homes, Inc., was held Monday to explain the concept and find local support.

Dale VanMitter, a social worker at Medfield State Hospital, told the approximately 45 persons present that the plan is to house 14 residents, at the most, in a homelike atmosphere to help the former mental patients adjust to living outside an institution.

No decision has been made, VanMitter said, as to a preferred location for the "alternative house," which he said could be several houses or apartments, not necessarily in one complex. The housing could be bought, rented, or built.

The staff would consist of a residence director, a resident manager, a nonmedical consultant, and a physician available for emergencies.

Live-in volunteers would help run the house.

According to VanMitter, the director would be responsible for program and legal and fiscal aspects of the house.

The live-in manager would have the assistance of two to four persons from either the state Department of Mental Health of Medfield State Hospital.

The residents of the alternative house would be employable or working on a program to make them employable.

Residents would have to be over age 18, and would be at the home a maximum of one year, VanMitter said.

Residents would be accepted at the home by agreement of the other residents and the staff, after being cleared to leave the state hospital.

The program entered into by residents would be in four parts, according to VanMitter.

In the home, residents would participate in housekeeping and shopping chores, have at least one meal together daily, and in general live together in a family-like realtionship.

Outside, every resident would either go to school or work most of the day.

Individual programs would be worked out for each resident before he or she came to the home.

Community facilities would be used for avocational and recreational activities.

Financing for the alternative home would come from several sources. Funds for the staff would come from the Department of Mental Health, from room and board to be paid by

Drug testing at Norfolk Prison

Representative Melvin H. King of Roxbury, one of the most effective black on law-makers on Beacon Hill, has filed a bill which would prohibit medical experiments on inmates in Massachusetts prisons. But the prisoners who would be affected by the law proposed by King, are opposed to it. They want to be able to earn the money they receive for participating in the experiments.

However, State Corrections Commissioner Frank Hall shortly will ban tests prisoners involving drugs not previously used on human beings.

King's bill would prohibit any "clinical research" on prisoners. He and other legislators have raised the question whether it is ethical to ask prisoners to take part in such tests.

"Prisoners do not earn fair wages for the work they do," asserts King. "Because there is money to be made in the experiments, they decide to do it."

New drugs were tested on inmates at the Norfolk Prison after arrangements for the experiments had been made by the Medical & Technical Associates of Needham. This apparently caused the controversy.

A spokesman for the prisoners at Norfolk says that only between 200 and 250 of the 700 inmates at the institution have enough money to buy toilet articles and that the others "are dying to earn money."

"This is one way they can earn $50 to $100 for three or four days work," he declared, adding that if the prisoners had more ways of learning skills and other means of earning money they probably would stop participating in the drug tests.

Allen Williamson, vice president of the Needham firm, reported that Norfolk inmates recently participated in a test of a drug which previously had been used on human beings and were paid $60 to $80 for submitting to the tests on three different days.

Legislators, who have looked into the matter, say that since last October experiments were conducted at the Norfolk Prison with three drugs which had not previously been tested on human beings.

This apparently has caused Correction Commissioner Hall to rule out prison experiments with drugs not previously tried on humans. For the present, at least, the tests with other drugs evidently will continue at the Norfolk Prison.

As far as could be learned, such tests are not conducted at any other state prison in Massachusetts.

The testing of drugs on Norfolk prisoners has been the subject of controversy since last summer.

Officials in the state corrections department report that the new guidelines to be issued by Commissioner Hall are stricter than federal regulations which permit prison experiments with drugs not previously tried on humans.

They also disclosed that the state depends on the nine-member Human Research Review Committee at the Lemuel Shattuck Hospital, which is headed by Dr. Joseph Cohen and includes six physicians, a pharmacist, a lawyer and a minister, to be sure that the tests on prisoners are safe.

Some legislators express doubt whether any tests of new drugs on prisoners should be allowed. All such experiments would be banned if Representative King's bill is enacted into law.

Political Highlights

Handling of gasoline shortage a disgrace

This writer has been covering politics on various fronts since the January day in 1935 when James M. Curley assumed office as Governor of Massachusetts.

In all those years, covering a span of almost four decades, we have never seen a public problem so badly bungled or grossly mishandled as the gasoline shortage.

President Nixon is supposed to be a great administrator who is equal to any emergency. Never mind the Watergate scandal, he should be impeached and Simon Says with him for the incredibly poor job they did at the height of the gasoline crisis.

To be more precise, until very recently they did nothing at all about it except for Mr. Nixon assuring us of his tremendous performance in the White House. Mr. Simon indicated New England could shift for itself.

Then there is Governor Francis W. Sargent, good old Sarge, who repeatedly predicted that gasoline rationing was inevitable but until a few days ago left it to someone else to bring a measure of sense out of the chaos in Massachusetts. Of course, he was in Florida when the crisis was at its worst.

For weeks neither Mr. Sargent nor any of his advisers came up with a constructive idea on how to ease the public panic or lessen the lines of waiting automobiles at the filling stations where gasoline pumps were working.

Competent Beacon Hill observers say Governor Sargent's main action toward meeting the problem was to ask for powers he either already had or didn't need. But at least he moaned and groaned even if he didnt say anything worth listening to. For a long time Nixon and Simon Says didn't even do that!

Finally, one of Sarge's Cabinet members borrowed the idea of having motorists with odd and even-numbered registration plates buy gasoline on on alternate days, and William Simon proposed some changes in the operation of gasoline stations, but no speed was exercised in putting any of the measures into effect.

The fantastic part of the situation was that there did not appear to be a critical shortage of gasoline. There was gas to be found if you were prepared to waste gasoline driving around looking for a filling station where the tanks had not run dry. Once you found such a station, you wasted more gasoline waiting in long lines and starting and stopping before you reached the gasoline pumps which looked like a cherished oasis in the desert.

It is almost unbelievable that over a long period of weeks neither the state nor the federal government took any step to bring even a semblance of order out of a situation which on the basis of all the available evidence was needlessly chaotic.

Some plan certainly could have and should have been introduced, which would have provided for the fair and equitable distribution of available gasoline, discouraged panic buying and saved the thousands of gallons of gasoline wasted by those who drove up one street and down another looking for a filling station selling gasoline.

Many of the gasoline station operators improvised with their own schemes and systems at the height of the shortage. Some sold only to their regular customers and withstood the abuse from those they turned away. Others sold gasoline by appointment only or utilized contract buying.

Most either sold gasoline until their tanks ran dry or until they had used up their quotas for that particular day and then closed down.

Gasoline was rationed much more sensibly and with far less waste during World War 2, when it was in much shorter supply, than in this idiotic catch-as-catch can situation, with Sargent blaming Nixon and Nixon telling the people what a great job he is doing.

If the gasoline wasted by motorists wandering from one filling station to another and finally waiting in line at a station doing business, were saved, it would be a worthwhile accomplishment.

Back in 1946, a Republican trend developed in Massachusetts and across the United States because the people believed the Democrats should have used their ingenuity to provide more butter, meat and nylon stockings during the year after the war had ended.

Next November could well see a Democratic tidal wave in the mid-term elections because of public dissatisfaction with the slowness of the Nixon and Sargent administrations in taking any effective steps to cope with the gasoline shortage—if there really is and has been a shortage.

The Nixon administration certainly is not entitled to many self-administered pats on the back for the manner in which it has handled the gasoline crisis in New England.

Slips that pass in the night

by George Sherlock
Transcript associate editor

Everyone is familiar with the gremlins that frequent the printer's type and practice their deviltry to the chagrin of the author.

Those who earn their livelihoods through the written word read their published stuff with keen anticipation that what they see is what they meant. However, it's not always that way.

During the years that we have been newspapering, there have been some classic slips in the type that altered the meaning of a word or sentence simply by the insertion of an incorrect letter or occasionally an extra one.

For instance, drum and bugle corps are fun things and we'd never direct criticism against any of them no matter how they sounded. So you can imagine our embarrassment when "drum and bugle corps" evolved into "drum and bungle."

Substituting an "i" for a "u" can sometimes lead to trouble. It sounded like a local recruit was about to face court action when "inducted" came out "indicted."

The local church group wasn't exactly serving finger lickin' chicken when they put on their pot luck supper, but when we got through with them they were serving it "pot lick.". We don't often have occasion to take issue with decisions handed down by local governing bodies, but it did sound unusually harsh recently when we referred to a "wrotten" instead of a "written" decision.

The men in Blue are some of our best friends, but it gets embarrassing sometimes when the gremlins play around with the "o's" and the "a's" resulting in a published item about the "police farce."

No doubt it's possible for a person to get swallowed up in the military, but we really didn't intend to say that so-and-so just signed up for his second four-year "enlostment."

Just when we begin to think that the type gremlins have become a vanishing breed, up comes another clinker to remind us that the species is not yet extinct. The only trouble is that every time something like that happens it costs us a few more friends.

And speaking of friends, if we have occasion to convey our appreciation to them for something, we hope the little type devils don't run out of "r's". Otherwise we'll be alienating our followers in one full swoop by turning them all into "fiends."

Faux pas in type are sometimes the fault of the author. We recall the fledgling society reporter who in a wedding account referred to the acolytes "blazing on the altar". This escaped the editor, typesetter and proofreader.

Considering what we see in print today, just about anything goes. But the error made by a hurried linotype operator in our early days would no doubt still be a shocker today, at least to the young lady who was announcing her engagement. Fortunately, before press time, an alert proofreader spotted "Miss —— Enlarged To Wed". The horrified shop foreman, envisioning lawsuits, cut the offending line slug into little pieces lest the gremlins managed to throw away the correction instead of the mistake.

Then there was the wedding account from which the word "bouquet" was inadvertently dropped. The result was a real swinging affair with the bride walking down the aisle carrying an old-fashioned."

But the grand-daddy of them all appeared in the old Norwood Messenger about 15 years ago when a newly married couple were reported to be honeymooning in "different parts of Florida." This received international circulation in the Reader's Digest and even today pops up occasionally as the subject of cartoons, usually with the bride depicted in Miami waving a friendly hello to the groom in St. Pete.

The great matchbook conspiracy

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Don't we live in a world where everyone keeps striving to make everything easier?

Look at our appliances, our technology, our great strides in science and medicine.

And don't forget to look at our matchbooks; because technology is creeping up on them too.

I wouldn't want you to misunderstand, I have nothing against the common ordinary matchbook and rather routinely collect them in banks, restaurants, and the like.

Completely Black

No, my story is not about the matchbook in general, it's about a specific matchbook and what some great advertising genius has done to destroy its character and autonomy.

I'm sure there is a certain amount of matchbook lore around. Not only are they terrific for lighting cigars, cigarettes and candles, at some point in their existence they become handy for writing down small amounts of crucial information — such as names and telephone numbers.

Little matchbooks have become a means of advertising; they've led to great romances, they've saved people trapped in dark, dank caves that can't see where they're going.

Friday, I had lunch at the new "Backyard" restaurant in Piccadilly Square, Newton Centre. I really enjoyed the new restaurant and its atmosphere of cool greens and rich browns. At some point, I picked up the matchbook that was on the table.

It's really quite a normal looking matchbook. It's white and says "The Backyard" on the front cover; it elaborates on the restaurant's facilities on the back.

By looking at it, no one would ever guess that it was any different from any other matchbook. No, the shock comes when you open it up.

And what do you see when you open it up? You face the shock that the long, informal, tradition of scribbling vital statistics on matchbooks has become formalized. Yes, right there in the inside cover this is printed:

Name . . .
Phone . . .

Poof! Away goes the romanticism of the matchbook. If you were a spy and wanted to write down a secret code, you'd have to cross out "name" and "phone" and by the time you were done, you'd have to rip out all the matches to have enough room to write.

Or suppose it's very dark and you accidentally write the name where it says "phone" and vice versa?

What would Humphry Bogart, Alan Ladd, Cary Grant, Clark Gable or Spencer Tracy had done if, at a dramatic moment they'd had to pull out a matchbook and say: "I need your phone number and name, no, make that name and phone number."

I want this infringement on the matchbook to cease, because if it goes on, just imagine what's going to happen to napkins in restaurants!

—o—

On a more serious note, I would like also to print the following request and hope someone can help out:

"There is a Newton Highlands man who is blind and who is looking for work.

He is an able administrator with experience in both nonprofit and business organizations. Yet, the very process of looking for work in his area of interest requires administrative assistance.

Without regular reading of letters, pamphlets and newspapers; without prompt follow-up with letters and proposals; and without systematically keeping in touch with his contacts and keeping his information organized, his job campaign bogs down.

He would like to pay for six to 10 hours of secretarial assistance per week at his home. If you know a mature individual who can read well, who is a skilled typist, and whose interest would be deeper than simply earning pin money, have them call 332-4377."

Junk in the conservation area

To the Editor:

As Secretary of the Newton Conservation Commission, I received a copy of Albert W. Moore's FEb. 6, 1974, letter to you accompanied by a photograph of the "abandoned appliance."

I did not receive a copy of the photo, but do know the whereabouts of an abandoned appliance which our commissioners are also eager to have removed from a section of the Webster Conservation Area east of Hammond Pond Parkway and south of the MBTA Green Line tracks.

Come April when our Saturday trail work parties and trash pick-ups get underway again, we will be requesting the Street Department to pick up not only our bagged trash, which the Department does do, but we shall repeat our attempts of last spring and summer to persuade .the department to remove the reamining heavy items which require machinery to hoist them into the trucks. This will have to be done in the newly acquired Webster Vale also.

In April, 1972, the Street Department performed valiantly to remove an abandoned car, plus a tremendous amount of trash collected by a volunteer party along Elgin Path west of Hammond Pond Parkway. Also in 1972 Street Department personnel trucked out an entire "dump" east of Hammond Pond Parkway close to where I would guess Mr. Moore's photo was taken. One appliance was left behind, probably because it was some distance away from said "dump."

In April, 1973, the commission conducted a successful trash pici-up, except for a few heavy items, along the WCA boundary with Temple Mishkan Tefila. In both instances these were accumulations of trash which had built up over a period of years before the city acquired the conservation area and before the 1968-71 litigation over the eastern portion of the WCA was settled in the City's favor. So far, and our fingers are crossed, the cleaned-up areas have not yet suffered much new dumping.

Summer and fall 1973 saw commissioners, associate members and volunteers restoring trails in the Houghton Garden section of the WCA. As soon as the Street Department can remove the piles of clay and peat excavated last fall from Hammond Brook and Houghton's Pond in performance of a Hatch Act project, there will be a continuous walking path around the little pond.

Within the past two weeks, thanks to a donation from the Chestnut Hill Garden Club, Lowden, Inc., tree specialists, did pruning in the Houghton Garden which is to be visited by members of the Garden Club of America the first week in June. The Commission and volunteers, with some help from the City, will be working in a few weeks to remove and "chip" the prunings.

The MBTA's long boundary with the WCA, from Newton Centre to Chestnut Hill, will have all new fencing installed this spring and summer. The commission has been promised gates in the fence at the Lowell Crossing for the lane which leads to Suffolk road. The Commission hopes for a second gate in the MBTA fence at the Elgin Path crossing west of Hammond Pond Parkway.

The Commission's budget request for 1974-75 includes new and replacement fencing for a portion of the Houghton Garden and for the approaches to the Deer Park. Although Mayor Mann has left most of the requested fencing in the budget, it is not yet known how much of the CC budget will be approved by the Board of Aldermen.

This year, at the suggestion of Ald. Edward Richmond, the commission has asked and been promised by the Building Department the long-awaited razing of the dilapidated chicken houses in the WCA Deer Park, if the aldermen approve the necessary funding.

By this printing, the Street Department may already have posted the new signs along Beacon street, Hammond street, Woodman road, and Suffolk road to guide visitors to the Deer Park. The Metropolitan District Commission has already placed its two Deer Park signs along Hammond Pond Parkway.

By mid-March or early April Dr. Lawrence Kaplan, associate member of the Conservation Commission, expects to begin field trials for the pathways to be included in the Hammond Woods Trail Guide he and volunteers are preparing for publication by the commission.

With the exception of the Deer Park and the Houghton Garden, the Webster Conservation Area is not a "managed" forest. It is not intended to be. It was not so intended by the late Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, who in 1968 voluntarily consented to the city's purchase of the Webster estate upon being assured by the Conservation Commission that with the exception of trail maintenance and trash removal, the woods and swamps would remain essentially undisturbed.

School hours

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to a recent article which I believe appeared in the Graphic. Since it was thrown away by someone else, I cannot be positive, however. Nevertheless, I wish to express my personal feelings concerning the new school hours which were instituted in Newton following the Christmas vacation.

I was given to understand at the tine that these hours would return to normal in the middle of February; however, I now understand that the School Department is considering making these hours permanent.

In the article I mentioned previously a Newton mother wrote in to express her feeling that the hours should not be returned to the earlier opening (from 8:45 back to 8:15 a.m.). She felt it was not necessary for children to get up at such an early hour in order to arrive at school at 8:15.

I feel that a half hour one way or the other really makes a small difference in the day of a child. And to me, as a parent who must work to support my child and myself, that half hour has meant that I an late to work every single day and my mornings are now one big rush and hassle. Previously, I had that all-important extra half hour to get myself ready for work after my child left for school; now I have ten minutes!

From a friend whose child attends the public schools in Brookline, I have been given to understand that parents were consulted before the change of hours was instituted. Because the consensus of opinion did not favor the change, the hours were not changed.

We were not even consulted–we were handed a decision. Now I feel that it is important to make my feelings clear. I hope that parents who do not iave to work to support their families will consider the parents who do. That half hour can make all the difference to the working parent who has to get to work on time.

Throw the snow

To the Editor:

With many weeks of winter remaining, it looks as if we will have to be prepared for additional snowstorms.

I would like to request my fellow citizens in the interest of pedestrian safety that they make it their individual responsibility to obey Ordinance No. 378 (specifically Chapter 21-9 of the Revised Ordinances of Newton, as amended), entitled "Putting snow and ice upon streets, sidewalks, etc."

When shoveling out the end of your driveway, instead of banking high mounds of snow on either side of the sidewalk or street abuting your driveway, make the extra effort of throwing that snow on your lawn area. By doing so, you will be accomplishing two things:

1. The less snow piled up on the street will tend to reduce the amount of snow heaved back onto your freshly cleared area after the plows return on their final sweep.

2. But of most importance, by doing so, you will enable our children to walk safely to school by not forcing them out into the streets when they come to the high mounds of snow that embank either side of many driveways.

Please do your part . . .

Repression in government

Dear Ms. Black:

Thank you for your accurate assessment of mayoral response to citizen concerns in the Thursday, Feb. 7 Graphic.

In a day when repression of facts, prevention of public disclosure and reluctance by elected officials to accept responsibility are making national headlines, it is additionally distressing to realize that local officials suffer from the same malaise.

For music lovers

Dear Editor,

This January, it was our pleasure to attend the district concert of the Massachusetts Music Educators Association.

We were very much impressed with the professional approach of the students involved and with their musicianship and performance.

The concert was a delight from another point of view. The audience was totally quiet and attentive and appreciative of the music.

I have lived in Newton for nine years and I have never attended a student concert at which the audience was even reasonably quiet.

This is as much a failing of the adults as the young people present. I wish that my fellow citizens who want to talk would stay at home and leave those of us who want to hear our student mjsicians perform in peace.

Fishman obtains energy phone line

A resolution calling for the immediate establishment of a statewide toll-free, energy hotline to coordinate the fuel shortage problems of Massachusetts consumers was adopted unanimously in the Massachusetts Senate this week.

Senate Irving Fishman, chairman of the Special Senate Committee to Investigate the uel Shortage in Massachusetts, and sponsor of the resolution, said that his committee had voted unanimously for the energy hotline proposed in an executive session last week.

"Many people are confused with the new voluntary gas allocation guidelines", Fishman said. "They don't know where to turn for help."

"More than a dozen states, including New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, already have energy hotlines in operation. Oregon regards its hotline as fundamental to the success of its gas rationing program," Fishman said.

"The fundamental purpose of the Massachusetts hotline," Fishman said, "is to provide a workable mechanism to coordinate governmental responses to specific consumer probelms, handle complaints, organize conservation suggestions, and channel requests for priority allocations. The follow-through aspect will be crucial."

According to Fishman's resolution the hotline would be established in the Consumers' Council with funds provided by the Governor. The phone number will be announced shortly.

All state agencies will be asked to provide staff support. Hotline wtaff would refer problems to the appropriate agencies for action and monitor results.

"If the hotline is to serve the needs of the people, both the number itself and its objective must be widely publicized, especially by the news media," Fishman said.

How's this for a heat bill?

BOSTON (UPI) — It will cost Massachusetts taxpayers an estimated 27 per cent or $50,000 extra a year to heat and air condition a $34 million new state office building due to decisions made two years ago.

The John W. McCormack Building now under construction on Beacon Hill next to the State House features an all glass facade which automatically adds to heating costs.

In addition, the state Government Center Commission has decided to utilize a single glazed glass for the 22-story structure. Construction of the building is expectedto be complete in two years.

Rejected by the commission due to higher initial costs was a double-glazed and reflectorized glass which industry experts say cuts annual operating costs by 27 to 30 per cent a year.

Guy Carbone, a commission staff member, pointed out revisions have been made in lighting and other utility plans for the structure which could save kup to $26,000 a year.

Those changes, however, could have been made with or without the energy saving glass.

Carbone said the decision to use a tinted single plate glass was made some two years ago when initial plans for the building were drafted.

He said the architects for the project, Hoyle, Doran and Berry, had drawn up study reports showing the anticipated initial and operating costs for various types of glass. He said he couldn't recall the results of that study.

The architectural firm also declined to release the figures.

Several glass industry experts however, provided figures showing initial installation costs would have been more than double, while operating costs would be substantially less.

The experts said many builders were switching to the energy saving glasses due to rising heating and air conditioning costs. "In the long run," one engineer said, "the thicker glass is more economical, particularly with rising heating costs."

Kidnap witness sought

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The terrorist abduction of pretty Patricia Hearst, an heiress to the Hearst newspaper empire, may have been witnessed by a young couple in a late model Volkswagen, the FBI said Sunday.

Agents appealed for the couple, described as blonde and in their mid-20s, to come forward "to assist in our investigation."

"They are definitely not suspects," an FBI statement said. "They had been parked near the Hearst apartment for well over an hour before the abduction."

Miss Hearst, 19, a coed at t's 8',2 sl n ;y of California, was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment a week ago today and a letter purportedly written by the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) said she was "a prisoner of war."

The kidnaped girl's family has been waiting tensely at their mansion in Hillsborough on the San Francisco peninsula for word from the terrorist group, which has also claimed responsibility for the execution of Oakland school chief Marcus Foster in a parking lot ambush Nov. 6.

Randolph A. Hearst, son of newspaper tycoon William Randolph Hearst and father of the missing girl, left his mansion for eight hours Sunday but on his return said, "I don't kow anything."

"There's nothing to say. I've gone by the office a bit, gone for a ride and gone to a friend's house. There's nothing new to tell," said Hearst, the president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

The Hearsts were joined in their vigil by Steven A. Weed, 26, Miss Hearst's fiance who had been beaten by the abductors and hospitalized. He told reporters Saturday that the composite FBI sketch of the three suspects — two black males and a white woman with long brunette hair—were "not very good."

Chess chatter

This week's column is the first of two parts devoted to the chess activity at Newton South High. This writer was the chess club president of that school in the 1970-1971 season and relates the past, while the current team captain Jason Arbeiter supplies information about the present.

Even before the Fischer boom of 1972, high school chess around Boston was buzzing with excitement as Brookline High beat out two New York High Schools by a half point to win the national high school title. The team at South that year con7sisted largely of two players...Ken Belt and Gerry Fishman. At best, they were only class 'C' players, certainly no match for the Brookline team with at least three 'A's.

This writer's first serious tournament chess game was against the second (and weaker) Brookline 'B' team. High school chess is divided into two sections, the stronger 'A' team, and the training 'B' team. In 1970, your author was on the 'B'. Two years later, he moved up in dicating a weakening of South, although Brookline High also lost its good players. As such, South drew both matches with Brookline in the 70-71 season.

We had a fantastic chance that has not been duplicated since with a chance to play a real live Grandmaster. Arthur Bisquier of New York (the 1954-58 US Champion) gave a simultaneous at Brookline High free to all high school players! Team Captain Charles Kaplan, myself, and team members Eric Levin and Michael Terner all journeyed to play...our combined results...0-4! Bisquier did lose at least three games, two to Brookline High members, and one to Robert Shor of Newton High.

We played 10 matches that year, winning three, losing two and drawing five.

Charles Kaplan of Newton Centre was the strongest player South had to that point, as he obtained a class 'B' USCF rating. Entering into 10th grade this fall, Daniel Shiman also will have a class 'B', and may obtain the 'A' rating, thus we have the emergence of the best South player in history coming alive in '74!

Fischer arrived in 1972, and the chess club at South filled. The team actually refused members, for they now had (for about the first time in history!) more members than they could handle. That story will be told in the next column.

Perlmutter-Kaplan, from Round 4 of the 1971 Greater Boston Scholastics is very pretty...not the best game ever played but most interesting. Both players at the time were undefeated, and from Newton. The winner of this game would win the tournament.

Black's 6th, N-N5, is a blunder of course. Note Black's beautiful 18th, designed to trap the White Queen which went pawn-grabbing. A stunning trap. Black gives up his material on 31...RxQP to win with the outside passed rook-pawn, and aided by White's fatal exposure of the king at 40 P-N5ch. White was so mad at losing this game that he made Black drag the completely won ending all the way to mate on move 59! Pure stubborness.

Chief quits due to son's guilty plea

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. (UPI) — Police Chief Frederick Gray Sr. has resigned after his son and another police officer pleaded guilty to charges of aiding in the burglary of the Rockingham Auto Store last October.

Gray's resignation was accepted Monday night by Village Manager Peter Lehaise.

Earlier in the day, Frederick Gray Jr., 26, and Gary Quinn, 24, appeared in Vermont District Court in Brattleboro on charges of having prior knowledge about the theft at the auto store.

Fatal accident statistics

Commissioner of Public Safety John F. Kehoe today released statistics of the analysis of 290 blood samples obtained from the deceased operators of single vehicle accidents, and adult pedestrians killed in Massachusetts in 1973.

The examinations were conducted at the State Police Laboratory in Boston under the direction of Dr. John J. McHugh and his staff. Blood samples were obtained through the cooperation of Medical Examiners throughout the Commonwealth.

Of 135 operators, 21 years of age and older, eho were killed in single vehicle accidents:

79 (59 per cent) were impared by alcohol

8 (6 per cent) had been drinking

Of 65 operators, under the age of 21, who were killed in single vehicle accidents:

36 (55 per cent) were impared by alcohol

11 (17 per cent) had been drinking

Of 90 adult pedestrians, 18 years of age and older, killed during this period:

34 (38 per cent) were impared by alcohol

5 (6 per cent) had been drinking

23 of the remaining 51 pedestrians were over 64 years of age

Blood alcohol concentrations of 0.10 per cent or more, were considered sufficient to cause impaiement.

Commissioner Kehoe advised that the State Police Laboratory has been involved in this program more than ten years. He noted that the percentages of impared drivers, over 21, have remained constant during this period. He also noted a 15 per cent increase from 1972 statistics, in the imparement of operators, under 21, killed in single vehicle accidents. Kehoe feels that a contributing factor might possibly be the lowered drinking age, and cautioned young people to abstain while operating automobiles.

Increased water rate due Board approval

By DAVID HAHN

The Finance Committee of the Newton Board of Aldermen voted Thursday night to approve the Water Department's suggestion for a 60 percent increase in home water rates. The matter was approved previously by the Public Works Committee and must be presented before a full Board meeting for final acceptance.

The proposed increase for average daily consumption would rise from 28 cents to 45 cents per 100 cubic feet if no more than 1,000 cubic feet of water is used each day.

Households using in excess of 1,000 cubic feet each day would pay 38 cents per 100 cubic feet instead of 21 cents.

At present rate, homeowners pay $6.00 per 2,000 cubic feet of water. Under the new plan, prices would jump to $9 for the same amount.

Water Commissioner Willard S. Pratt explained that the Metropolitan District Commission raised their rates from $120 to $200 per million gallons as of Jan. 2, 1974. He added that operating expenses have risen since the last rate increase in 1962, and that labor costs alone have skyrocketed by over 200 percent.

Ald. Joan Saklad recommended enclosing information on reducing water consumption in all bills sent out by the Water Department.

the residents, and from the state rehabilitation board.

"Seed money" may be available from the state Department of Community Affairs for the housing.

The ultimate goal of the halfway house is to provide a transitional and separation program for the residents, who would then move out into the community to live alone, in cooperative housing with other former patients, or return to their families.

N-W-W Area Board Associate Director Edward Sahatjian explained that right now a mental patient from the Newton-Wellesley Weston area has only two options - hospitalization or outpatient treatment.

"This gives one more option for treatment. The best treatment is when you have a choice," Sahatjian said.

Eventually the alternative-home program is envisioned as accepting residents from the community who would be treated without hospitalization.

Sahatjian said that within a month the Newton-Wellesley hospital will provide short-term inpatient treatment and within another six to eight months day care for mentally disturbed persons.

The next step of the sterring committee is to obtain local leadership for formation of the board of directors of Alternative House, Inc.

Reorganization-

"The mayor wants a full consensus of the Board and the administration—the closest thing possible to perfection," before the formal submission of the plan to the Board for its vote.

Mann was encouraged by the meeting, saying as it drew to a close, "From wat I hear, many people like the plan."

Another meeting was scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 8 p.m.

Incinerator-

potential for salable products, such as steam or fuel, created by the recovery process, and the recovery of metals.

Costs for improving the incinerator to comply with federal and state standards were estimated by ADL at $1.8 million.

Recently received bids ranged from $1.1 million to $4.5 million for the work proposed by ADL.

The incinerator was built in 1966 at a cost of about $2.4 million. Over $1 million of the cost is still owed.

Camp Dresser McKee's preliminary recommendations on the formation of the Newton-Waltham region were expected to be in the mayor's hands this week. CDM's completed report is due in mid-March.

Dudman, a member of the district committee, is being seriously considered, according to rumor, as the new executive director of the regional group.

Director Philip Pattison will be leaving the post shortly to become public works director of the city of Beverly. Dudman has resigned as Newton's public works director effective March 1.

Service Centers agent for SSI Alert project

Anthony J. Bibbo, ACSW, executive director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. announced recently that the Newton Community Service Center has been designated as the lead agency in Newton for Project SSI Alert.

Project SSI Alert is a nationwide effort to reach elderly, blind, and disabled people who may be eligible for monthly U.S. government checks under a new program called supplemental security income.

Supplemental security income payments can be made to aged, blind, and disabled people who have little or no income and limited resources.

People who were receiving public assistance as of December, 1973, because they are 65 or older, blind, or disabled generally were switched to the new program automatically. Other people have to apply. It is estimated that 3,000,000 people in the United States are eligible for the program, but only 800,000 have applied.

Bibbo said, "The goal of Project SSI Alert is to make sure that every eligible person in Newton learns about supplemental security income and has a chance to apply. In order to meet this goal a coordinated effort of social agencies, churches, and municipal departments will be required for an effective out reach program in Newton.

"We hope to have several SSI Alert resource people in each of the Newton villages as well as an SSI Alert resource in every social agency, church, and temple."

The Newton community is invited to attend a meeting to plan the Project SSI Alert for the city. The meeting will be held on Friday, Feb. 15, from 10 a.m. to noon, at the Newton Community Service Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

The speaker will be Jay Hayes, supervisor at the Cambridge District Social Security Office.

Hayes will explain supplemental security income and answer questions. The new checks will be paid by the Social Security Administration, but the program is separate from social security. Individuals who are found to be eligible for SSI benefits can also receive medicaid benefits.

Mrs. Marjorie Glassman, Director of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Retired Senior Volunteer Program of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., will be coordinating the Newton project. Mrs. Glassman is also chairman of Project SSI Alert for the Cambridge District SSI Consortium which includes 11 surrounding communities.

Fire Department awarded top honor

Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., today announced that the Newton Fire Department has been awarded a top honor for outstanding community achievement in the field of fire prevention for the year 1973.

Competing cities, towns and fire districts, on a natinnal and international level, submit materials, reports, programs, etc., to the National Fire Protection Association outlining their fire prevention program under the following categories: organization of community for fire prevention; year-round fire prevention program; Fire Prevention Week (campaign, events, etc.); special fire campaigns including clean-up (Christmas, Halloween, fireworks, evaluation (most effective programs and future plans).

The National Fire Protection Association states that the award is in recognition of positive efforts in the field of Fire Prevention.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

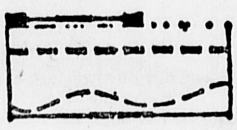
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

To sew a fine seam

"Why do people sew? Well . . . a designer once stated that a lady who sewed her own clothes was a second class citizen, and how I resented it! No!" Petite Elena Cucchiara, Jordon Marsh's talented sewing instructor, her dark brown eyes flashing with annoyance, defended the fine art of dressmaking.

"Years ago people used to sew because they couldn't afford to buy clothes, but today girls are more creative. They know just what they want and young girls as well as their mothers are beginning to recognize that the quality of ready made clothes can be quite poor. Magazines like Seventeen inspire girls to become fashion conscious at a much younger age. Besides that, there is much creativity when you pick a pattern and fabric for a garment."

Evidence of the current sewing boom was the gathering of over 150 (mostly teen age girls) on a snowstormy Saturday afternoon to see a bright spring-summer Butterick Pattern fashion show in Jordan's fourth floor fabric center.

Later, after Mrs. Cucchiara had cues the young models, members of Jordan's Creative Council, she talked about how she changed from hating sewing to proving her talents in homemaking as well as sewing to become Mrs. Greater Boston as well as one of the five finalists in the Mrs. America contest.

"With me, sewing was in the family. My mother and father were very accomplished tailors and when I was four my parents started me on fine needlework. I pulled threads on linen napkins and handkerchiefs, learning all the fine little hand stitches . . . and how I hated it!

"When I was 16," she smiled, "my parents told me that if I wanted clothes I would have to make them or go out in my birthday suit. So I learned because I loved clothes and I wanted them to fit nicely. My mother sat me down and said, 'This is how it is done . . . this is the RIGHT WAY.' And she was right—the right way is the only way.

"I don't go for these quickie 1-2-3 things. I was taught the best European tailoring and it's all through practice and experience. Any student who walks into my class and says to me, 'What's the trick?' I have a quick temper, and I say emphatically, 'There is no TRICK! There is a right way and that's the way it's got to be done.' "

Her voice softens and she says reflectively, "I sew because I don't know how to buy a dress. The only dress I've ever bought was my wedding dress . . . and a fur coat. That's all. When I began sewing I wouldn't let may parents put one finger on my clothes. I was attending pharmacy college at the time and I became one of the best dressed students there. I would say today, that outside of my wonderful husband, two sons and daughter, sewing and people are my great loves."

Following are some tips on sewing from Elena Cucchiara:

I would suggest that a girl get to know herself. If she is heavy, I would say look for nice long, lean lines, nothing too close to the body, nothing with a waistline. The small girl (like me) should get some color in her clothes—like a warm pink or an earthy tone. For a big girl, prints should not be itsy-bitsy; balance the size of the print and that means not too big either. Some big girls say they're too big to wear a plaid. Oh yes they can if it's a small plaid.

On fabrics for the beginner: Polyester and double knits are very easy to handle, in a print or solid color just as long as there is no matching of stripes, plaids or abstract prints. Cottons are good, and there are plenty of blends. Regardless of what the directions on the bolt says and what your salesperson tells you, preshrink everything except your fancy fabrics like brocades and velvets. You'd better shrink corduroy and linen. I can prove that you can shrink an inch on a yard of good linen.

To preshrink fabrics, tear a double sheet in half and put it rhrough the rinse cycle of your washing machine. Then put it on a flat surface; if it is wool, linen, anything that has a lot of body, fold it over in 10-inch depth folds and leave it for a couple of hours and then unwind it and lay it on a flat surface. The moisture of the sheet will be absorbed by the fabric—it's called a London shrink. Do this for all fabrics except for the polyester double knits. These should be thrown into the washing machine because there is a chemical resin in polyester and if you don't prewash them there are those that will shrink. Some polyesters will shrink in dry cleaning and some won't.

Adjusting a pettern: There is a great need to know how to adjust a pattern. You cannot do it yourself—you have to know what to look for and know what a problem is. Then, after you know what the wrong kind of fit is—a pull, a wrinkle, you have to learn how to correct it.

I tell students you must be aware of grain. It's grain, grain, grain. From the minute you buy the cloth—when you alter your pattern, when you stitch, it's always in the direction of the grain. Grain is the way fabric is woven, not your knits, but your woven fabrics; the verticle fibers run absolutely perpendicular to your horizontal ones. If you pull a thread and line up your selvidge edges and roll it up and dampen it and then straighten it you are: a. preshrinking the cloth; b. you remove any resin or filler; c. you straighten the grain. (Provided you don't have a permanent press fabric.)

How to encourage a non-sewer: The girl who doesn't sew because she doesn't want to, shouldn't. Wanting to is more than half the battle, but no girl should be pushed into it. If a young woman comes to an adult class at night just as an excuse for a night out, she will accomplish nothing, but a girl, even if she is all thumbs to begin with, is a great source of satisfaction to me when, at the end of the year at our fashion show, I tell her that I knew she could do it!

Advice for the girl who does sew but would like to do a more professional job: All youth is impatient and I suggest taking things a bit slower. You shouldn't make the garment one night and wear it the next. Don't slop it up— remember, a short cut looks like a short cut.

Suggestion: If you have the desire to learn correct techniques, take advantage of the classes listed below. You'll enjoy not only the learning experience but the delight of getting to know this talented and warm lady, Elena Cucchiara.

A letter such as the following has a way of dispelling dismal gray weather allowing the sun to shine brightly: "I still find your recipes the best, and can understand why you have readers corresponding with you from Hawaii and other far away places. Here's a recipe for blueberry muffins most like those of a well known department store famous for the. I know you'll try it out in your own kitchen like you always do. Happy eating for you and your family and your readers!

June Rogoff, Newton

Answer: Tried them and these are the most delicious ever.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1. Use PAM or grease well a 12 muffin tin.
2. Preheat oven to 375 degrees.
3. Use ½ pkg. of Maine wild small blueberries
4. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 tablespoon cake flour onto berries while still frozen.
5. Melt ⅛ lb. butter on low heat.
6. Sift together in 1 large bowl·

2 cups cake flour
2½ teaspoons double acting baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar

Mix dry ingredients enough to blend. In another small bowl beat one egg until frothy. Add ⅛ lb. melted butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup milk. Make a well in center of flour mixture and add milk and egg mixture. Stir by hand till just mixed and then add blueberries. Mix gently so berries will not break. Spoon into muffin tins till each well is ¾ full. (Fill ½ with water if one or two muffin tins are empty.) Bake for 25 minutes at 375 degrees, or till toothpick comes out clean. (After 15 minutes of baking, sprinkle a little sugar on each muffin and continue baking.)

Our thanks to Amy Rosen, Conn. for sending in her prize winning Oatmeal Bread recipe—it's just about the best and easiest Oatmeal bread to make!

AMY ROSEN'S OATMEAL BREAD

1½ cups boiling water
1 cup oatmeal
6 tablespoons shortening
½ cup molasses
1 tablespoon salt
2 pkgs. dry yeast
½ cup warm water
2 beaten eggs
5½ cups all purpose flour

In large bowl, combine boiling water, oatmeal, shortening, molasses and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, soften yeast in lukewarm water; add softened yeast, mix well. Stir in eggs. Sift in flour, beating as you do so until dough is well blended. Place dough in greased bowl, brush top with melted butter, cover, refrigerate for at least 2 hours. On floured board, shape dough into 2 loaves. Place in greased 9x4x3-inch loaf pans; cover and let rise in warm place till doubled (2 hours). Bake at 375 degrees for 1 hour (or less) it depends on the oven. Check for doneness at 40 minutes. Turn out on rack to cool.

Question: Somehow or other, whenever I buy a loaf of bread (the sandwich type) the family gets down to a half dozen slices and then they don't want to eat it, claiming the bread isn't fresh. I feel it's too expensive to just throw the bread to the birds and so would like to attempt to make a bread pudding. Do you have a nice custardy bread pudding? Thanks.

Mrs. E.E., W. Roxbury

Answer: Wise cooks have always used their leftover bread to make an old fashioned family favorite, bread pudding. Here's one you'll enjoy!

OLD FASHIONED BREAD PUDDING

2 eggs slightly beaten
3 cups ½-inch dry bread cubes (apprx. 6 slices)
1 can (14½ oz.) evaporated milk
1 cup water
Two-thirds cup sugar
Two-thirds cup raisins
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

In large bowl, combine ingredients; mix well. Pour into lightly greased 1½ quart baking dish. Place dish in pan containing 1 inch hot water. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serve warm or cool with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 6.

Here's a great idea from H.P., Norwood: "I orginally thought this Macaroni Pizza was an impossible type recipe until I tried it and my family and I loved it very much. It's easy to make and can be made in a square or round baking dish."

MACARONI PIZZA

1 pkg. (7 ox.) elbow macaroni
2 eggs
1¼ cups milk
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon oregano
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded Mozzarella or Provolone cheese

Cook macaroni in salted water according to package directions; drain. In a large bowl beat together eggs, milk and pepper. Add macaroni. Pour into 9-inch baking dish. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven, 10 minutes or until set. Remove from oven. Meanwhile mix oregano into tomato sauce. Spread over baked macaroni. Top with cheese. Return to oven for an additional 10 minutes. Cut into serving portions. Yield: 6 servings.

Variations: Sausage Pizza—after adding tomato sauce, top with ½ pound sausage meat, cooked and drained, OR ¼ pound summer sausage, cut up. Cover with cheese and return to oven.

Question: I am interested in a buffet dish that does not have to be prepared minutes before my guests arrive. I would prefer meat, please. Thank you.

Mrs. D.I., Dedham

Answer: Here's an easy lamb and cheese buffet platter than can be done the day before you entertain. A boneless leg of lamb is roasted, sliced, and marinated in olive oil, vinegar and several seasonings overnight. Then, before serving, lift the lamb from the marinade and arrange it with a good selection of sliced cheeses on a large platter.

LAMB AND CHEESE BUFFET PLATTER

16 slices cooked boneless leg of lamb
¾ cup EACH: Olive oil, and vinegar
1 clove garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons EACH: Oregano, instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon rosemary
¼ teaspoon pepper
A variety of cheeses, sliced

Place cooked lamb slices in shallow dish. Combine olive oil, vinegar, garlic, oregano, onion, salt, rosemary and pepper; pour over lamb, cover and chill well for 4 hours or overnight. Remove lamb from marinade and arrange on large platter. Surround with cheeses and serve. Serves 8.

Spring is coming and you'll want to shed that protective winter coat and emerge with a sylph-like figure.

We all know that dieting is no great joy. It requires self discipline. Hunger pangs are not imagined, they're very real, coming at a time when energy is at its lowest ebb. This is when determination to "stay with it" really counts. Here are a few calorie-cutting tips to help you in your hour of need:

Sprinkle an envelope of unflavored gelatin into fruit juice, vegetable juice, stir briskly and drink at once. Each envelope has only 28 calories.

Drink water (no calories) instead of low calorie soda or regular soda (88 to 119 calories per 8 oz. glass). Drink plain soda water (no calories), plain tea or coffee (no calories).

Eat four fresh mushrooms, broiled (10 calories) versus an ounce of dry or oil roasted peanuts (170-180 calories), a slice of sponge cake (88 calories) instead of a brownie (144 calories) or a 2-inch section of layer cake (491 calories).

Instead of succumbing to the temptation of a whipped cream topped gelatin dessert, prepare a low calorie flavored gelatin dessert and top it with whipped evaporated milk. At 6 calories per tablespoon it's a real calorie saver. Add 1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice and ½ teaspoon gelatin to 4 oz. evaporated milk. It will help the whipped milk stay firmly fluffy for a long time. Cottage cheese whips to a thick "cream" in a blender or electric mixer; it's a good substitute in salad dressings or frosting in place of sour cream.

The American Heart Association has long maintained that the typical American diet, high in saturated fat and cholesterol, contributes to hardening of the arteries. To help reduce the risk of heart attack, they recommend a diet that includes less saturated fats and more polyunsaturated fats; more meals of fish and poultry and fewer of beef, pork and ham; margarine instead of butter and skimmed milk in place of whole milk.

A leading professor of dietetics and medicine, speaking about dieting said: "A patient must come to grips with his problem. Calories do count and all the fad diets in the world are of no use to a person if he doesn't change his habits of eating."

So hang a picture of a shapely model on the refrigerator door and mark tomorrow on the calendar as the first day of the new you that will appear in the spring!

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

Remove, drain, and fill mushroom caps with mixture of nonfat cottage cheese, grated onion, salt to taste, dash of curry powder or powdered ginger or mustard. Sprinkle paprika over top. Calories: 23 per mushroom.

STUFFED TOMATOES

Mix ½ cup nonfat cottage cheese with ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and ¼ teaspoon basil. Scoop out center of tomatoes and fill with mixture. Yield: Filling for 4 tomatoes. Calories: 50 per tomato.

CALORIE COUNTER'S CASSEROLE

2 medium chicken breasts (about 1½ pounds)
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
½ teaspoon rubbed sage leaves
4 oz. mushrooms, sliced
1 jar (7 oz.) pimientos, drained, cut in large pieces
4 oz. thinly sliced onion (1 med.)
2 oz. thinly sliced celery (about ½ cup)
1 clove garlic, minced
6 oz. raw, shelled shrimp
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 chicken bouillon cube
½ cup boiling water
4 teaspoons lemon juice

Remove skin and bone from chicken and cut meat into large pieces. Combine salt, pepper, thyme and sage. Sprinkle parsley over each. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, stir in lemon juice. Pour an equal amount into each ramekin. Cover tightly with aluminum foil lids. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven about 45 minutes or until done. Makes 4 servings of 1½ cups each. Calories for each serving: 170.

CHICKEN EGG DROP SOUP WITH SCALLIONS (DON FAR TONG)

4 cups chicken stock
1 egg
3 tablespoons chopped scallions
¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate

Bring clear chicken stock to a boil. Beat egg lightly with a fork and stir in monodosium glutamate. Drizzle egg from fork while stirring soup constantly. Small bits of egg result if stirring is fast, larger bits when stirring action is slower. Sprinkle with scallions and serve. Six servings, 25 calories per serving.

CHICKEN BUTTERMILK LOAF

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold chicken bouillon
½ cup buttermilk
2 to 3 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup sliced cooked chicken
½ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Sprinkle gelatin over bouillon in saucepan. Place over low heat; stir until gelatin dissolves, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in buttermilk, lemon juice, rind, salt and Tabasco. Chill until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in chicken, celery and parsley. Turn into a 2½ cup mold or small loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold. Yield: 3 servings, 84 calories per serving.

1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 cup unsweetened orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1 teaspoon margarine
2 whole cinnamon sticks
5 whole cloves
2 teaspoons artificial sweetener
4 cups fresh fruit such as strawberry halves, banana slices, pineapple chunks and melon balls

In small saucepan or chafing dish, combine all ingredients except sweetener and fruits. Cook; stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil; then simmer for 5 minutes. Remove from heat; remove cinnamon sticks and cloves. Stir in sweetener and a selection of your favorite fresh fruits. Spoon into serving dishes. Serve warm or chilled. Garnish with toasted flaked coconut, if desired. (Cinnamon sticks and cloves may be tied in cheesecloth for easy removal.)

Emergency techniques taught at local hospital

Thirty-six area students are currently studying emergency medical services techniques at a training course now underway at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The 81-hour course includes nine hours of night attendance in the hospital's emergency unit as well as training in respiration, resuscitation, extrication and other emergency medical methods.

Twenty-nine of the students are police and fire personnel engaged in ambulance service in nearby towns. Seven other students are in private ambulance work or are particularly interested in emergency medical problems.

The Newton-Wellesley training course prepares students for national emergency medical technician certification exams. Certification will be mandatory for ambulance personnel in the Commonwealth by April. The course is offered for credit by Mass. Bay Community College.

Police and fire personnel now in training from this area include: Francis X. Barrett, George F. Brennan, Frederick D. Fraini, Thomas W. Frost, Peter F. Hart, Vincent P. Lipoma, Richard J. Lochiatto, Joseph A. Mason, Richard B. Petipas, and Gregory Wright, Newton Police Department.

Also, John J. Greeley, Joseph E. LaCroix, Ronald B. Palkey, and Ronald B. Murphy, New Fire Department.

Survival of Jewry topic of discussion

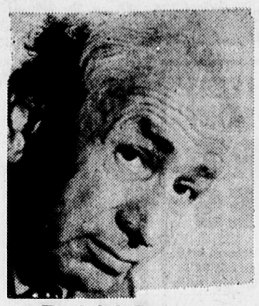
Can American Jewry disappear within the next two generations? Is spiritual Jewry headed for extinction?

Joachim Prinz, noted rabbi and social activist, will discuss these questions Sunday, March 3, at Temple Ohabei Shalom, 1187 Beacon street, Brookline, at 3 p.m.

Rabbi Prinz declred that there are "Many discenable and definable phenomena" that point to the possible dissapearance of the American Jew within two generations. Mentioned as critical criteria were the pre-occipation of American Jews with Jsrael, the diminishing of liberal traditions within the American Jewish community, and the intermarriage of Jews with non-Jews.

Long a rabbi outspoken against racism, bigotry, hatred and injustice, Prinz was one of the 10 founding chairmen of the 1963 March on Washington.

He is chairman of the Governing Council of the World Jewish Congress and the author of the recently published book, "The Secret Jews," the story of the Marranos.



Rabbi Prinz

Article by Pelmutter

"Ethnic Education and Its Relevancy Today" is the theme of an article by Philip Perlmutter, New England regional director of the American Jewish Committee, which appears in the latest issue of The Massachusetts Teacher.

Perlmutter is a lecturer, writer, and consultant on human relations education. In his article, he states that ethnicity is the very essence of America, both as a nation and a nation of nations, and that America must be viewed as consisting of immigrants from all parts of the world.

Students design first Friday mass

Every month, students in grades 1-8 at St. John the Evangelist School take turns planning the liturgy for the first Friday mass.

Ann L. Caldwell's third graders planned the Feb. 1 mass.

The theme was "We Give Thanks." Entering in processiong with Rev. Francis LeBrun," the congregation joined in singing, "We Gather Together."

Marie Mercurio extended a welcome to Sister Paul Marie, C.J.S., and her third grade class from Newton Catholic School.

Lector was Michael Lawless.

Students Michael Nobile, Michael Lawless, William Copan, Brian Donovan, Vincent Cannistraro, dramatized a reading from the Bible. Timothy Miller helped lead a responsive reading of Psalm 100. Stephen Nugent read the gospel verse. Michael Nobile and Patricia Farrell recited parables.

Lisa Patnaude, Angela Senzapaura, Christina Hernandez, Lorodana Carrori, Julie Boudreau, Timothy Miller, Michael Lawless, Michael Waldron, Laurie Eagan and Deborah LaFauce read the "special intentions," including birthday wishes to all students born in January and February.

"Thank We All Our Lord" was sung during the recessional.

Four vacation programs scheduled for libraries

During the February school vacation the Newton free Library will offer four special programs in addition to regularly scheduled films, club programs and children's activities.

A family film program is scheduled for Wednesday evening, Feb. 20 at 7 p.m. at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner. "Olympic Elk," "Pelican Island" and "Alaskan Eskimo" are the films scheduled for viewing on this evening.

The Wednesday family films are arranged by the Newton Free Library and are scheduled during vacation weeks as an 'extra' evening of film, an addition to the year-long regular Wednesday noon and Thursday evening free film series.

At Newtonville Branch, Richard Bryant, director of information and education at the Animal Rescue League in Boston, and his dog, Mr. Bo Jangles, will be featured at a "Program About Pete," Thursday, Feb. 21 at 10:30 a.m. Bryant will show slides, answer questions and discuss the work of the Animal Rescue League.

Mrs. Velda Model, Newtonville Branch librarian, invites all Newton residents, ten year old, or older, to hear Bryant and to eet Mr. Bo Jangles, a TV personality who was recently presented with the No. 1 dog license in the city of Newton.

At the Boys' & Girls' Library, 126 Vernon Street, budding philatelists can join a discussion group about stamp collecting and view a film "Stamps, A Nation's Calling Card" on Thursday, Feb. 21 at 3 p.m. The film will show the intricate and artistic process of making a stamp.

A fourth February vacation special will be held at the Boys' & Girls' Library Saturday, Feb. 23 at 10 a.m. Ronald McAdow Jr. and Kevin Brown, partners in the film production company, Yellow Bison Productions, will show a selection of short animated films which were originally made for "Jabberwocky," a TV program produced by WCVB.

After the showing, the producers will discuss film making, and how animation technique works.

The program is for children and adults, age four and up.

Local Explorers to attend annual congress

Young men and women whc are heads of Explorer posts and ships in this area will attend the National Explorer Presidents' Congress in Washington, D. C., FROM April 1 to 5, according to Larry Bearfield, Explorer executive.

The annual congress provides an important vehicle for young people to express their desires and opinions, Bearfield explained. There will be about 15 presidents representing Newton, Wellesley and Weston.

Exploring is an especially designed program for young men and women of high school age. In this area, some of the Explorer posts bring together young people with similar interests such as data prciessing, sponsored by Honeywill, and hotel-restaurant management, sponsored by the Marriott Motor Hotel.

Bearfield explained that during the National Explorer Presidents' Congress, the Explorers will meet in their particular interest areas such as leadership methods, the future direction of Exploring, understanding the psychology of group management, government, and current issues facing the nation and Exploring's role.

The local Explorers who attend the congress in Washington will also have an opportunity to meet experts and participate in programs related to environment and national resources, consumer education, physical science, fine arts, medical and health careers, law and law enforcement, communications, and social science.

Other program features, Bearfield said, will include a visit with members of the U. S. House of Representatives and Senate, a chance to meet informally with Cabinet members and other governmental officials, and tours of historic and famous sites in the Nation's Capital.

Sage remains chairman

Robert Sage, 6 Cynthia Rd., Newton Centre, of Fenway Motor Hotels, will continue to serve as chairman of the board of directors of the Greater Boston Hotel & Motel Inn Association.

"My Three Angels" opens February 21

The Walpole Footlighters will present the comedy stage play, "My Three Angels", on Feb. 21, 22, 23, 27 and 28 plus March 1 and 2, The director is Eddy Courts of Plainville and his assistant is Annabelle Banton of Walpole. Curtain time for all seven performances is 8:15 p.m. at the Footlighters Playhouse, Scout road, East Walpole.

First presented on Broadway in 1953, this play was very well received and enjoyed a long run. The Broadway cast featured Walter Slezak and Darren McGavin, and was directed by Jose Ferrer. Two years later, with a slight title change to "We're No Angles", it was transformed into a successful movie with an outstanding cast which included Humphrey Bogart, Peter Ustinov and Aldo Ray as convicts, Joan Bennett and Leo G. Carroll as man and wife, and Basil Rathbone as a thorough villain.

The Footlighters are re-creating this fine comedy as part of their golden anniversary year observance. It was previously performed by them in the spring of 1956 as their 77th play. Now selected as one of the best plays of their first 49 years, "My Three Angels" is also their 130th production.

The setting of the play is Cayenne, French Guiana, near "Ile du Diable" , the former French penal colony (Devil's Island), at Christmas time, 1910. The plot centers around the enterprise of three convicts: Joseph, played by Frank Woodward of Walpole; Jules, by Sami Atallah of Westwood, and Alfred, by Roger Pettis of Franklin.

These easygoing incorrigibles are on a furlough from the prison island and are engaged in a roof repairing job for a local merchant, Felix Ducotel, played by Mort Hoffman of Sharon. Felix's helpmate wife Emilie is played by Myrna Mitchell of Walpole, and their daughter Marie Louise by Helen Lewis of Dedham.

"My Three Angels" was based on an award winning French play by Albert Husson. It is a marvelous showcase for the skills of husband-wife playwrights Sam and Bella Spewack. This prolific team produced ten stage plays and ten screen plays over a 25 year period, including "Boy Meets Girl" and "Kiss Me Kate".

Phone reservations for "My Three Angels" are being accepted by Mrs. Giandomenico, 668-2878.

Registration for Audubon summer camp

Registration has begun for next season at a unique summer camp for children and teenagers on forty acres of New England wilderness.

David Miner, director of the Mass. Audubon Cook's Canyon Wildlife Sanctuary in Barre which sponsors the camping sessions, says one of the reasons Wildwood Nature Camp is special is the size and quality of its staff of counsellors. Mass. Audubon has experimented with techniques of teaching children about their environment for the past twenty-six years; Miner feels the fact that so many campers and counsellors ask to return the camp's methods of teaching are fun besides being educational.

There are several sessions held each season and two different types of programs are offered.

The resident camp at Barre welcomes children from 9 to 15 years old with full programs that include swimming, square dancing, camping out, taking and developing photographs and learning unusual crafts using natural materials.

If you have a teenager 13-16 years old who'd enjoy a different kind of camping and summertime experience, Wildwood's Expedition program prepares three separate groups to visit and explore the Berkshires, Massachusetts' coastal and Cape areas, and the White Mountains of New Hampshire. Teenagers back-pack, explore caves, climb, snorkel or canoe, depending on which expedition they are part of.

For information on either camping program, write the Registrar, Wildwood Nature Center, Barre, Mass. 01005. Tel. (617) 355-4064.

STRONG AND WEAK POINTS

Q. Please simply list the analysis for Aries born under that Sign for March 27, 1919 at 4:00 p.m. in Caribou, Maine. What are my best attributes and what are my worst faults. Lloyd

A. There are many different kinds of Aries since while the Sun may be in that Sign, the Moon, planets, Ascendent, etc. may vary considerably according to the exact moment of the day as well as the year and place.

Your complete horoscope calculated from the data supplied indicates among your "best attributes" an interest in people, an ability to sell yourself as well as some service, product or idea. You are good at analyzing conditions and applying your knowledge in practical and useful ways.

You have confidence in your ability and are not lacking in self esteem. You have an active mind, rarely if ever at rest and capable of "thinking on your feet".

While you have a sharp, penetrating intellect you are not always tactful nor diplomatic. There are times when you express your opinions impulsively when you know that you could do better if you took time to check all the details and facts.

You have much vital energy and good recuperating powers which functions best when and if you have learned how to relax. You should be careful not to over estimate your forces and to avoid over exerting yourself.

If your 4:00 p.m. time of birth is very close to being accurate there are some indications in your horoscope that you have poor sleeping habits which if not corrected in time may place an undue strain on your heart.

Tigers top Catholic Memorial

By JACK GREEN

Newton North's basketball team played the toughest part of its schedule last week, meeting Suburban League leading Brookline and perennial super power Catholic Memorial.

The Tigers lost to Brookline, 64-59, and gained a victory over Catholic Memorial, 73-72.

On Tuesday,dFeb. 5, Newton travelled to Brookline. The Tigers had won the first game between the two teams, but Brookline's 6'8" junior Mark Young contributed to a different outcome in the second game.

Young scored 26 points and had 23 rebounds. Teammate Kevin O'Boy had 13 points.

Newton led at the half, 32-30. Tiger center Peter Laskaris got into foul trouble in the second half.

Keith Glasser was Newton's top scorer with 20 points.

The loss dropped Newton's league record to 9-5.

On Friday, Feb. 8, undefeated Catholic Memorial came to Newton. The Tigers had lost only one game at home all season.

The game was one of the most exciting displays of talent in a long time.

The game had some interesting match-ups. Laskaris, a 6'5" center, was competing against 6'4" center Mike Vicens of Catholic Memorial. Both players are quick and can jump well.

Newton's Jack Ryan was matched up with Catholic Memorial sophomore guard Ron Perry.

Newton controlled the opening tip, but the ball was stolen by Catholic Memorial.

The visitors gained a 5-0 lead before Steve Forte made two free throws for Newton North. Laskaris then almost single-handedly tied the game up, and Ryan put the Tigers ahead.

Fine rebounding and shooting by Laskaris helped Newton to a four point lead. Catholic Memorial responded with aggressive play and was able to regain the lead.

A basket by Laskaris tied the score at 18-18 at the end of the first quarter.

Laskaris scored the first basket of the second period, but Catholic Memorial came back to take a 25-22. Laskaris again tied the score with a three-point play.

The score was tied at 35-35 with seconds to go in the first half. Bob Kinsella made a 20-foot shot to give Newton North a 37-35 lead.

Newton was leading in the third quarter when Laskaris' nose was hit by an elbow, and blood came pouring out.

Laskaris was removed from the game, and Newton slowed down its offense. The Tigers still led, 54-51, at the end of the third period.

Vicens put Catholic Memorial ahead, 55-54. Tyan, who played well defensively, gave Newton a one point lead, then a two point lead, 60-58.

Laskaris returned to the game in the fourth quarter and put Newton ahead 65-64.

A 20-foot jumper by Perry gave the lead back to Catholic Memorial.

Newton North trailed, 70-69, with 1:08 left in the game. Ryan made a 10-foot shot and Glasser and Laskaris made free throws to give the Tigers a 73-70 lead.

Catholic Memorial scored a final bakset in the final seconds of the game.

Laskaris scored 28 points, had 15 rebounds and blocked four shots. Ryan scored 15 points and Forte had 13.

Vicens scored 23 points for Catholic Memorial and Perry had 19.

Newton North's next game is on Friday, Feb. 15 at Weymouth South.

Newton South skaters lose, 4-1

By MARK COOPER

A three goal "hat trick" by senior Steve Higgins helped Acton-Boxboro to a 4 to 1 victory over Newton South last week at the West Concord Arena.

Ranked number one in the Eastern Mass. Division II standings, Acton had defeated the Lions, 6-0 earlier in the season.

Stubborn defensive play and some good offense gave South a chance for an upset. The Lions received excellent goaltending from Dave Satter as they were outshot, 34-12.

Higgins put Acton ahead at 3:15 of the first period, scoring from 10 feet out.

At 11:43, junior Ken Schmidleiner scored for South to tie the score, 1-1.

South had some fine opportunities to score in the second period, but did not. At 7:42, Higgins scored a power play goal for Acton. The rest of the second period was dominated by Acton, as it continuously shot on Satter.

South showed good skating and hitting at the beginning of the third period. The Lions hit a goal post and had several scoring chances thwarted by the Acton goalie.

Acton went ahead 3-1 when Higgins scored another power play goal.

Newton South Coach Neil McPhee called his team's performance "a gutsy effort by everyone."

"They're a great club (Acton) and we played them even up for three periods," McPhee said.

South's next game will be against Weston on Friday night, Feb. 15.

Pet care corner

By RICHARD W. BRYANT,
Director of Education
Animal Rescue League
of Boston

Good photographs of the family pet are often in short supply, but with a little technical knowledge and a lot of patience and imagination you can easily capture your pet's unique appeal and personality on film.

First of all, keep your background simple. A cluttered background draws attention away from the subject. Have some of your pet's favorite food or treats on hand to lure him into a desired pose. If you want a dog to lick his chops, for example, rub some bacon grease around his mouth.

Sounds can be helpful too. Most animals will prick their ears and look alert if they hear a strange noise - a rattle, a whistle, or even rustling newspaper will capture their attention.

If your pet just isn't inclined to stay put for a photo session, an intriguing prop may induce him to cooperate. Such items as baskets, drawers or even a paper bag will appeal to his exploring instincts. A favorite toy, a bone to chew on, a scratching post for kitty - these are just a few ideas that will result in many delightful poses.

Adequate lighting is one of the most important factors in good animal photography. Whether you're using daylight or flash, be sure the light is bright enough to capture unusual markings, interesting highlights and shadows, and other details that contribute to an out-of-the ordinary photograph.

When you've achieved some top-notch results, be sure to select your favorite pet portrait and enter it in the Animal Rescue League of Boston's Animal Photography Contest. Prizes will be awarded for color and black-and-white photos, in adult and junior divisions. Deadline is April 26 and complete contest rules can be obtained by writing to: Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117.

Q. Mrs. D.F. of Methuen asks: Our German Shepherd is walking outdoors on a leash twice a day but I'm concerned that this exercise is not enough for a dog her size. Our yard is not fenced in so we cannot let her out there on her own. Any suggestions?

A. Why not create a simple exercise pulley in the yard? You can do this by putting up a wire about thirty feet long between two posts or trees, with a ring on the wire that slides back and forth. Attach a long rope to the dog's collar and fasten the other end to the ring, so that your dog can move in a large area at will but still be under control.

Having a problem with your pet? Write to Pet Care Corner, Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117. Space permitting, we will try to answer your inquiries in this column.

Herb Anderson Volkswagen to introduce Dasher Model at open house celebration

Herb Anderson Volkswagen To Introduce Dasher Model at Open House Celebration.

Automobile shoppers visiting Herb Anderson V.W. during the traditional Washington's Birthday celebration will have an opportunity to see firsthand Volkswagen's all new car, the Dasher. Combining traditional VW economy with handsome styling, the new car is unlike any VW seen in this country before.

The Dasher is designed to give about 25 miles per gallon of gasoline but that's only part of the economy story. Other features, such as extended maintenance intervals and VW's Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis, give it superior overall economy of operation.

"It's the right car for these days of fuel shortages and general high cost of living," said Herb Anderson Jr., Vice President of Herb Anderson V.W.

"We are sure that many drivers will get better than 25 miles per gallon," Herb Anderson Jr. said. "The figure is based on a standard German industry test (DIN)." The Dasher is the first VW to be sold in North America with a water-cooled engine and front-wheel drive, he noted. "Though it differs from other VWs in many aspects, it nevertheless is true to the VW concept of placing the engine over the drive wheels."

Compared with the Beetle, which continues to be VW's most popular model, the Dasher is more powerful, has a longer wheelbase and longer overall length. It is also more expensive than the Beetle, coming in the line to replace the Fastback and Squareback models which were dropped at the end of the 1973 model year.

The new car will be available as a two-door sedan, a four-door sedan and — a first for VW — a four-door station wagon. Four-speed all-synchromesh and automatic transmissions are available in the Dasher.

Routine maintenance (after an initial 1,000-mile maintenance service) is called for only once every 10,000 miles or once every 12 months. Oil changes are called for every 5,000 miles. The car carries a 12-month, 20,000-mile warranty that includes everything but lubricants and filters. Even ignition points, spark plugs, wiper blades and upholstery are covered.

The Dasher, like all other VW models, is covered by VW's Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis. Among other things, it provides for "our fault" transportation if the vehicle has to be kept overnight after being scheduled for warranty work; guaranteed repairs that cover parts and labor for six months or 6,000 miles; Service Rent-A-Bug, low-cost rentals for owners whose VWs may need lengthy repair work and VW Express Care which provides while-you-wait service on a first-come, first-served basis for any adjustment that can be handled within 30 minutes.

The engine has a displacement of 1,471 cc (89.7 cu. in.) and develops 75 horsepower at 5800 rpm (SAE Net), Acceleration from 0 to 50 mph should be about 8.5 seconds with the manual gear box. Fuel economy, using regular, low-lead or lead-free gasoline, is reported to be about 25 miles per gallon.

Individual reclining front seats and a fully carpeted interior are standard equipment. Controls for the turn signals, windshield washer and high beams are levers mounted on the steering column. An electric rear window defogger is standard.

Dasher? What's a Dasher?

It's the newest car from Volkswagen. It has front wheel drive and a water cooled overhead cam engine that delivers sporty performance and about 25 miles per gallon of fuel. It's available in four-door sedan, two-door sedan and four-door station wagon

Just about everything will go up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers can expect higher prices on almost everything from beef to beans in 1974 but there should be no severe shortages, a top Agriculture Department economist says.

Dr. Don Paarlberg, director of agricultural economics, said that prices for beef and pork would be "at present levels or higher" for the remainder of this year, but dairy products would be short, forcing prices higher.

He blamed government price controls for shortages experienced in 1973. Food costs for an average family rose 15 to 20 per cent last year, almost four times the 4 to 5 per cent rise predicted by experts.

Silver Lake Dodge Marathon Sunday, Feb. 17

New England's leading Dodge dealer is staging New England's most imaginative Washington's Birthday promotion for the eighth consecutive year. The dealer is SILVER LAKE DODGE, 444 Watertown St., Newton, and the promotion is its sponsorship of the Washington Birthday Marathon Race on Sunday, February 17th, which will attract more than 300 runners and more than 50,000 spectators along the route from Hopkinton to Silver Lake Dodge headquarters at 444 Watertown Street, Newton . . . and many hundreds more at the auto dealer's traditional Washington Birthday Open House.

It is characteristic that Silver Lake will award numerous trophies to the leading finishers in the marathon, because Silver Lake Dodge itself specializes in earning trophies for finishing at the top in competition among automobile dealers.

The Newton agency is the only auto dealer in the nation to win both the Grand National Benjamin Franklin Quality Dealer Award, and the National Retailer of the Year Award from the Brand Names Foundation.

Silver Lake Dodge President, Herb Abramson, also is no stranger to honors. He was the youngest salesman and sales manager to win selling awards on a regional and national basis and he was the youngest man ever elected as president of the New England Dodge Dealers Association, a post to which he has been re-elected several times.

Abramson is just as dedicated to community projects as he is to the advancement of the automobile industry. He has served as president of the Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts, is a trustee of University Hospital, New England Baptist Hospital, a Founding Trustee of the For Sight Foundation of the Boston University Medical Center, a member of the President's Council of the Art Institute of Boston and a member of the Business and Professional Hall of Fame. He was selected as Man of the Year by the Newton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Silver Lake Dodge pride in its progress over thirteen years as an outstanding dealership is based on the care and concern shown for its customers by its staff of more than thirty automotive specialists, who have a combined experience of over 200 years in the automobile industry.

General Manager, Bernie Wantman, another twenty year veteran, is a past president of Yankee Dodge and has served as Secretary of the New England Dodge Dealers Association. Wantman was a member of the Executive Committee of the Boston Council, Boy Scouts of America and is past commander of the Jewish War Veterans.

Lew Kurland, Vice-President has been a member of the Silver Lake Dodge sales and administrative staff since the agency's founding in 1960. Lew will head the Silver Lake Staff on hand to greet the hundreds of customers, friends and just plain window shoppers who drop by on Sunday, February 17th to witness the finish of the Marathon Race and see the crowning of the victor by Mayor Theodore Mann.

Silver Lake key personnel who will play host to visitors that day include George Glazer, Used Car Manager; Frank Campion Truck and Fleet Manager, who is also the Race Director; Herman Cohen, Service Manager; George Turner, Assistant Service Manager; Arthur Chadbourne, Parts Manager; Bob Mitchell, Body Shop Manager and Carmen Lupo, Office Manager. Also on hand to greet all their friends will be the Silver Lake Dodge Sales Force of Jack Harris, Jim DiNapoli, Howie Block and Alan Sholk.

All New Corona Leads Toyota Lineup

TORRANCE, Calif.—The debut of an all-new Corona as the beginning of a "second generation" of small cars highlights Toyota's introduction of its 22 models for 1974.

Completely restyled and engineered to satisfy a wide variety of needs, the new Corona series has been expanded to five models. The new models are a special two-door SR hardtop and a two-door sedan.

The SR hardtop and standard two-door hardtop feature a unique fault-detection system called ESP (Electro Sensor Panel) which monitors 11 of the vehicle's vital areas. The SR has a five-speed overdrive transmission and sporty styling for the auto enthusiast. For motorists wanting more effortless driving, Corona models offer Toyota's new smoother-operating, bandless automatic transmission.

"We believe the new Corona is the start of a second generation of small cars," said Norman D. Lean, vice president and general operations manager for Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. "Its concept is going to set the pace in engineering and styling of small cars from now on. The car's safety and performance features were carefully engineered into it throughout design and production - not added on as an afterthought."

Toyota, which has been building small cars for more than 40 years, is now offering its most diversified selection of vehicles. The 1974 line includes 14 sedans and coupes, three station wagons, two pickup trucks and three versions of the four-wheel-drive Land Cruiser.

In addition to the Corona, two Corollas and a Celica will be available with the five-speed manual transmission, a performance feature usually reserved for higher-priced sports cars. The fifth gear is an overdrive, bringing a quieter ride and lower engine speed for better mileage while driving at highway and freeway speeds.

The new Corona is roomier than previous models. It has more headroom, a larger 14.5-gallon fuel tank, bigger brakes and bigger tires. For safety each model includes interlock seat belts, shock-absorbent bumpers, safety posts designed into the body, fire-retardent interior and large windshields for better visibility.

Now, while everyone else is thinking SMALL...

The smart money thinks BIG. And thinks USED!

It's as simple as high school economics. Prices on small cars have gone up with the increase in demand. Prices on big cars have gone down with the decrease in demand. And when it comes to used cars — well, put it this way — a luxury big car, the kind you've always dreamed of, may actually cost you less now than a small used compact which was originally valued at thousands of dollars less.

The smart money recognizes opportunity. And the opportunity is here now to make the deal of your life on a fantastic full-sized used car. See for yourself today.

Report Gas Sale Frauds, Says ALA

BOSTON—The ALA Auto and Travel Club is urging its members and the public at large to file complaints on irregular selling practices at local gas stations with the State's Consumer Fraud Division.

There have already been a large number of calls placed from motorists who have been discriminated against in favor of regular customers.

The most serious report resulted in an injunction from the office of Attorney General Robert Quinn. This action was taken against a station in Allston which was refusing to sell gas unless a car wash was also included.

Complaints of this nature should be made immediately by telephoning 727-8400.

If you have any question about price, the Internal Revenue Service has set the following precedent: price per gallon shall not exceed May 15, 1973 retail prices plus any incurred wholesale prices, plus a penny per gallon profit.

This price should appear on a required sticker on the side of every pump. Further questions on price ceiling should be directed to the IRS, advises ALA.

Wellesley Volkswagen to introduce Dasher Model during Washington's Birthday celebration

Automobile shoppers visiting Wellesley Volkswagen during the traditional Washington's Birthday celebration will have an opportunity to see firsthand Volkswagen's all new car, the Dasher. Combining traditional VW economy with handsome styling, the new car is unlike any VW seen in this country before.

The Dasher is designed to give about 25 miles per gallon of gasoline but that's only part of the economy story. Other features, such as extended maintenance intervals and VW's Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis, give it superior overall economy of operation.

"It's the right car for these days of fuel shortages and general high cost of living," said John M. Frey, president of Wellesley Volkswagen, conveniently located in Wellesley's spacious Linden Street Shopping Center.

"We are sure that many drivers will get better than 25 miles per gallon," Mr. Frey said. "The figure is based on a conservative standard German industry test (DIN)." The Dasher is the first VW to be sold in North America with a water-cooled engine and front-wheel drive, he noted. "Though it differs from other VWs in many aspects, it nevertheless is true to the VW concept of placing the engine over the drive wheels."

Compared with the Beetle, which continues to be VW's most popular model, the Dasher is more powerful, has a longer wheelbase and longer overall length. The new car will be available as a two-door sedan, a four-door sedan and—a first for VW—a four-door station wagon. Four-speed all-synchromesh and automatic transmissions are available in the Dasher.

Routine maintenance (after an initial 1,000-mile maintenance service) is called for only once every 10,000 miles or once every 12 months. Oil changes are called for every 5,000 miles. The car carries a 12-month, 20,000-mile warranty that includes everything but lubricants and filters. Even ignition points, spark plugs, wiper blades and upholstery are covered.

The engine has a displacement of 1,471 cc (89.7 cu. in.) and develops 75 horsepower at 5800 rpm (SAE Net). Acceleration from 0 to 50 mph should be about 8.5 seconds with the manual gear box.

For added safety, the Dasher is equipped with a dual diagonal braking system with power-assisted disc brakes in the front and drum brakes in the rear. In the event of failure of one system, the car will still have stopping power at one front wheel and one rear wheel. Radial tires are standard.

The Dasher joins the complete lineup of 1974 Volkswagens which are now on display at Wellesley Volkswagen. Mr. Frey has invited the motoring public to stop by and inspect them.

Goode Ford In Dedham continues to enjoy enviable reputation for integrity

In only five years at their present Dedham location, Goode Ford has established the same reputation for integrity that they enjoyed for 12 years in Hingham.

The reputation that Goode Ford enjoys is the end result of many policies set forth years ago by Richard Goode, President of the dealership.

His policies are utterly simple and they are basically: to treat the buying public as intelligent and knowledgeable people; do not attempt to sell them an automobile that they honestly can't afford, whether new or used; arrange bank financing for them at the best rates available and see to it that the payments are within their family budget.

It is also Goode Ford's policy to provide prompt, courteous and sound repair work when the customer has a problem.

Sincere involvement in community activities is still another of Goode Ford's policies.

This perhaps as much if not more than anything else has had an intangible but tremendously effective result.

Goode Ford has been an avid supporter of Dedham's youth. They have been active supporters of baseball, football and YMCA programs.

All these efforts and involvements have added up to great achievement for both Goode Ford and the community.

You are cordially invited to visit Goode Ford in Dedham on Route 1 at Route 128 during this automobile month of February.

1974 Volvo On Display At Dalzell's Rt. 1 Dedham

A gala open house will be held Monday, Feb. 19 Washington's Birthday. On hand to greet all its customers will be Clarke Dalzell, Dave Dalzell, John O'Brien and Paul Henning.

In 1974 we can expect a steady increase in Volvo sales even with increased worldwide competition and more exacting Federal safety standards. This is due in part to steps taken in the course of many years by AB Volvo to make sure that the product you sell today meets the needs of Americans.

The 1974 Volvos you will be selling embody the most extensive changes since the introduction of the all-new 144 six years ago. These new features and product improvements, coming only a year after the extensive changes incorporated in the 1973 models, will give us a major advantage in this market.

The real key to our success, however, continues to be the Volvo buyer. In an era of increasingly sophisticated consumerism, our customers recognize the traditional Volvo virtues of high quality and durability — that we continue to provide safe, sound, reliable transportation, with ample and comfortable accommodations and superior mechanical performance, along with economy and convenience features designed to make driving a pleasure.

The 1974 Volvos will thus be equally well received by current and former owners, who will be gratified to find the same exacting standards of workmanship they have been accustomed to; and by the first time Volvo buyers, who cannot help being impressed by the comparison of Volvo's design and features to whatever automobile they have been driving.

Better car repair skills

By AUTOMOBILE INFORMATION COUNCIL

Finding a qualified service technician to repair your car should be made easier this spring when the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (NIASE) makes available to motorists a directory of service facilities employing certified technicians.

These technicians will have passed one or more stringent examinations dealing with specific systems on your car, such as engine repair, automatic transmission, front end and brakes. The certified technician wears an orange, blue, and white gear-shaped shoulder patch with bars underneath indicating his specific areas of certification. A technician who passes all the tests wears a double-gear patch indicating he is a Certified General Automobile Technician. A certificate is also awarded.

To date, almost 26,000 technicians have been certified in one or more specialties, with 8,000 passing all the tests in the series to qualify as Certified General Automobile Technicians.

The tests are developed and administered by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey - the same organization that handles College Boards and the Law School Admission Test.

They are held twice each year at over 200 locations across the country and are changed each time they are administered. The tests are voluntary. Technicians pay a registration fee plus an additional fee for each test they take.

A technicians' certification is valid for a three year period after which he has to take another battery of tests to be recertified. This is to ensure that the technician is aware of new developments and current practices in his field.

The NIASE program should not be confused with proposed government licensing which concentrates more on ethics in the service industry than on the competence of technicians. The NIASE approach to the current shortage of qualified technicians is also to encourage the development of effective training programs.

Rotary engine Mazda here

The long-awaited rotary engine Mazda is now available at the newly opened Norwood Mazda on Route 1, Norwood. Norwood Mazda, owned and operated by Brian Mahoney and Paul Birmingham, is operating out of a temporary facility at 141 Providence Highway, adjacent to Norwood Mazda's new 20,000 square foot building now under construction. Completion date of the new building is in late April, 1974. However, Norwood Mazda's present building is fully equipped to service both foreign and domestic automobiles with a service and parts department open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

On display for immediate delivery are over sixty 1973 and 1974 Mazdas including the 11-new Rx4 Wagon, hardtop and sedan. The public is invited to test drive this revolutionary rotary engine Mazda during Washington's Birthday week.

When the family goes camping, don't forget to include "quiet time" items for the children such as reading matter, coloring books, games and dolls.

1974 Volvo On Display At Dalzell's Rt. 1 Dedham

A gala open house will be held Monday, Feb. 19 Washington's Birthday. On hand to greet all its customers will be Clarke Dalzell, Dave Dalzell, John O'Brien and Paul Henning.

In 1974 we can expect a steady increase in Volvo sales even with increased worldwide competition and more exacting Federal safety standards. This is due in part to steps taken in the course of many years by AB Volvo to make sure that the product you sell today meets the needs of Americans.

The 1974 Volvos you will be selling embody the most extensive changes since the introduction of the all-new 144 six years ago. These new features and product improvements, coming only a year after the extensive changes incorporated in the 1973 models, will give us a major advantage in this market.

The real key to our success, however, continues to be the Volvo buyer.

1974 MGBs at Tom Connelly's

The 1974 MGB has been announced by British Leyland Motors Inc. and is now available at Tom Connelly Pontiac, Inc., 70 Providence Highway, Route 1, Norwood.

It is the latest version of one of the best selling imported sports cars in the U.S. and is one of the few convertibles still offered for sale here.

The '74 MGB is also available as a 'Grand Touring' coupe. This model, the MGB-GT, is similar to domestic "hatchback" designs in that its rear window opens wide for easy access to a large luggage storage area.

Both MGBs keep the same popular engineering and styling features as last year's models and are available in a range of ten colors, five of which are new for 1974. They have new and stronger front and rear bumpers and new safety belt-ignition interlocks.

The new colors are: Bracken, an orange-gold; Tundra, a deep green; Aconite, a dark purple; Mirage, a light grey and Citron, a lime-yellow.

MGBs are powered by four-cylinder, overhead valve engines developing 78.5 net horsepower (SAE) at 5,300 RPM and 94 pounds-feet of torque (SAE) at 3,000 RPM. Displacement is 110 cubic inches. The ruggedness of the basic MGB engine has been repeatedly proven in Sports Car Club of America road racing in which MGBs have won three consecutive national championships.

The MGB's transmission is a close-ratio, four-speed, full-synchromesh unit. A desirable option in these gasoline short days is an electrical overdrive which reduces the number of engine revolutions on third and fourth gears, providing the equivalent of a six-speed gear box.

The MGB's racing heritage is reflected by one of its many attractive styling features, racy mag-style wheels. These are standard equipment, as are long-life, higher fuel-mileage radial ply tires. The MGB's 13-row oil cooler also owes its origin to the race track.

Inside, the MGBs feature reclining bucket seats with adjustable head restraints, fitted carpeting and complete instrumentation including tachometer, oil pressure and water temperature gauges. A conveniently placed manual choke control overcomes the hard starting problems which can be associated with current emission control systems. Interior colors are autumn leaf and black.

Whitewall radial ply tires, wire wheels, a removable steel hardtop and AM or AM-FM radio, are all optional. Suggested list price for the 1974 MGB convertible is $3,925 (ports of entry) and $4,325 for the MGB-GT.

Teachers study parent education

Family Counseling Service (Region West) is presently co-sponsoring with the Newton Public School System a special teacher training series in parent education.

Armand Quintal, coordinator of Family Counseling's Family life education program and co-leading the training sessions with Glorianne Wittes, a social worker in the Newton Schools, sees the purpose of the workshop as "helping teachers work more effectively with parents both in their one to one parent-teacher conferences and in parent education groups."

Parent education programs consists of groups of parents that met usually at a local school under the guidance of a trained leader to discuss issues related to parent-child relationships including topics related to the child's behavior at school. In initiating these programs as well as training teachers to co-lead groups with their own professional staff. Family Counseling is following a trend today in education tha sees a need for closer cooperatio between parents and teachers; through education and mutual support the development of the child is enhanced as well as preventing potential problems from getting out of hand.

John Cullinana, director of Pupil Personnel Services, launched the project last January by recruiting 16 teachers and other school personnel from various elementary schools around the city. The teachers can earn one in-service credit by participating in all eight sessions. The series ends March 13.

In phase two of the training program some teachers will become co-leaders in parent groups, until finally in phase three they can lead groups on their own with supervision and back-up from the trainers.

Parents are invited to join the parent education program. New groups will be starting around mid-March.

For more information please call Armand Quintal at 965-6200 or Glorianne Wittes at 969-9810.

Guidance Clinic gets acting director

Dr. Elizabeth Herman, director of clinical service, has been appointed acting director of the Newton Guidance Clinic.

Under her director, all existing services will continue.

Dr. Herman replaces Dr. Norman R. Bernstein who resigned as head of the clinic.

Dr. Herman has also made plans for staff development by introducing new techniques at teaching conferences. Also under consideration are educational and preventative programs to use professionals and volunteers in a specially designed program for reaching new parents and maintaining contact with the partners who need assistance and guidance in child raising.

Under a reorganization plan formulated by the Mental Health Association and city officials and committees, the Association is seeking diverse representation on its board of directors with representation form all areas of the city.

"With the activation of the Community Advisory Committee," Association President Barbara Rubin said, "it is anticipated that a clear two-way channel of communication will be established."

Slide show at Waban library

"Africa," a slide show presented by Mrs. Lloyd Warshauer is scheduled for Waban Branch Library Thursday, Feb. 21 at 10:30 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Warshauer traveled through Kenya, Ghana, and Tanzania on a photographic safari, visiting several major game preserves.

People, animals and countryside of Africa are portrayed in this slide presentation.

Waban Branch Librarian Arlene Lynde invites all interested Newton residents to attend the slide presentation, one in a regularly scheduled series held at different branches in the library system. Coffee will be served at 10 a.m. and the program begins at 10:30 a.m.

South cagers lose two games

By BRUCE BOYNICK

The Newton South basketball team recently suffered through its worse week of the season, being upset by Lincoln-Sudbury, 51-47, and losing to league-leading Bedford, 66-49.

The Lions became 6-3 in league play and 10-3 overall, needing two wins in their last four outings to qualify for the State Tornament.

the Lincoln-Sudbury contest was inappropriately billed as a tune-up for the long-awaited rematch with Bedford, co-leader of the Dual County League with the Lions. Disaster struck, as the Lions lost to a fired-up Warrior squad.

Lincoln-Sudbury played what can be described as streetball; playing a run-and-gun offense, and a wide-open defense during the first half of play. The Warriors had a 28-21 lead at intermission.

In the second half, the streetball style simmered down, and the Lions subsequently outscored Lincoln-Sudbury 17-10 to deadlock the score at 38-all after three quarters of play.

But the Warriors surged ahead. The Lions never regained the lead, although a running left hander by Mark Aronson tied the contest at 47-all just inside the two minute mark. The Warriors employed a stall offense, and with a half a minute remaining, Mark Irby found Bob Stone underneath for a layup to put Lincoln-Sudbury ahead to stay at 49-47. Two free throws by Warrior freshmen Tim Chase, added insurance points.

The Warriors win made them 6-10 overall.

South received a fine performance from Aronson. The 5-10 junior guard had 18 points.

While the Lions were losing to Lincoln-Sudbury, the other league leader, Bedford, was also losing, to Acton-Boxborough. The two league leaders lost and second place Concord-Carlisle won, making a three way tie for the league lead, each team having 6-2 record.

On Friday, Feb. 8, the Lions traveled to Bedford, and before a packed house, lost to the Bedford Bucaneers, 66-49.

The Lions trailed the entire way, falling behind initially on a goaltending call made against Lion center Rich Spector. Bedford was ahead 14-10 after one quarter, and extended its lead to 12 points by halftime.

The Lions could not get much closer, and trailed by 15 points most of the second half.

The game high scorer was Bedford's Mike Elias. The senior forward finished with 24 points.

In a previous Newton South-Bedford encounter at Newton South, the Lions, leading 57-44 with 3:50 remaining, were defeated by a great Bedford comeback, and lost 59-58.

The Lions travel to Weston on Friday, Feb. 8 to play the Wildcats, and host the Wayland Warriors in a matinee contest next Tuesday. South defeated Weston, 46-35, and stopped Wayland, 55-52, in previous encounters this season.

Quinn warns parents about dangerous play

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn, in an advisory to parents, stated recently that after recent snow storms children have been playing, sledding and skiing in our streets or sliding down snow banks towards the streets.

The chief added, "I don't have to remind anyone of the dangers involved, and I would hope parents would discourage their children from this practice.

"Another activity of older children is holding on to the rear bumper of a car that is on a snow covered street. Usually they cannot be seen by the driver who accelerates until his or her wheels spin. Many times, the driver, finding he or she has no traction, shifts to reverse and, at this time, the danger to the young people could be fatal," warns the chief.

"We have received 15 - 20 calls, regarding this activity and usually when we arrive it is impossible to identify those who are responsible, and feel that since there is a high injury potential, that parents and children should know of it.

"We shall continue to discourage children playing in our streets and ask the cooperation of both children and their parents," Quinn said.

Speaker at South Friday

On Friday, Feb. 15, at 10 a.m. Prof. Klugman of Wheelock College will speak on "Man and the Changing World," at Newton South.

Klugman will elaborate on the needs expressed by men in this world of changing roles between men and women. This is a continuation of the previous and highly successful week long program presented at the school during which the various facets and problems of the lifestyles of men and women were examined in depth.

There is no charge for these lectures and all are invited to attend.

COMMENTARY

Boston College cagers win in overtime, 78-74

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The only thing left now is the five-overtime three-hour classic solved by a steal and an over-the-head twisting lay-up at the buzzer.

New England college basketball believes in tension this year. Providence, Massachusetts, and Boston College haven't played each other yet without a game going into overtime and sending fans into the cold, paralyzed with awe.

Whose writing these scripts?

The latest version of the wild wild shootout, college-style, took place right here in Newton city, last week, when the B.C. people invited the Amherst people over for a little playground activity, indoors because of the season.

Boston College (13-5) unleashed unheralded secret weapon Mark Raterink.

The Eagles were down by nine points with seven minutes left, and defeated UMass (14-3), 78-74, in, of course, overtime.

Raterink, a 6-6 senior, scored 26 points, stole passes, threw passes, grabbed rebounds and generally made like he had the round leather thing on a tether not unlike the Globetrotters Meadowlark Lemon. Only Raterink, as UMass learned, wasn't clowning.

UMass came unglued in the last minutes after it lost 6-7 John Murphy, its chief rebounder.

Raterink was helped by forward Bob Carrington, 17 points, but a poor shooting night, and guard Jere Nolan, 13 points, but as usual hitting clutch free throws.

Al Skinner directed the Minutemen with 23 points and 15 rebounds.

The game was a big one for both teams, but more important, perhaps, for B.C. A 12-6 record doesn't look nearly as good as 13-5. You've got to keep losses to a minimum if you want to play basketball in New York in March. The NIT has just so many vacancies.

Day and Bigelow win recent games

The Day Junior High School varsity basketball team recently defeated Brookline, 63-47. Ed Pendergast scored 10 points.

Day also defeated Weeks Junior High School, 47-26. Mario Luchetti scored 12 points.

Twenty-seven points by Luchetti helped Day to a 56-54 victory over Warren Junior High School.

In a game which was won in the final 30 seconds, Day lost to St. Sebastian's, 60-59.

Bigelow Junior High School defeated Shady Hill School, 53-42 on Feb. 1. Kevin Hinchey scored 13 points.

Bigelow defeated Bedford, 53-41, on Feb. 4. John DiMambro scored 15 points.

DiMambro scored 18 points and had 11 rebounds in a Bigelow win over Brookline.

Newton College plans seminars in Post 440's activity center

Newton College will reach out this semester in an effort to bring some of its academic resources into the community.

A series of four seminars on psychology led by Newton College faculty members will be presented at the Garden City Activity Center, an agency serving the needs of physically handicapped teenagers and adults.

The seminars, to be held on four successive Friday afternoons, will begin on Feb. 22. They will focus on Psychology; Human Development; and Society and Personality.

Instructors for the program will include: Margaret Gorman, R.S.C.J., Ph.D., professor of psychology; Stephen Rudin, Ed.D., instructor in psychology; Judith Schaeffer, Ph.D., associate professor of psychology; and Marion Kilson, Ph.D., professor of sociology.

For some time, Newton College's for Continuing Studies has offered to area women a variety of programs, ranging from full undergaduate course for credit to weekly seminars on contemporary issues. However, this new venture marks the Center's first off-campus educational program in the Newton community.

The Garden City Activity Center, which opened last September, is in American Legion Post No. 440 in Nonantum. The new service agency provides educational, recreational, therapeutic, and social activities for physically handicapped teenagers and adults.

"It's a tremendous plus for these people to have this program coming here and for Newton College faculty to be contributing their time and expertise," commented Susan Claxton, director of adult programs for United Cerebral Palsy and for the new center.

"Many people who have been handicapped since childhood have been denied equal educatioal opportunities because school systems weren't geared to handle their problems. The kind of program being brought to us by Newton College is welcomed by all of us, but it will be especially beneficial to those who were educationally deprived," she said.

Retired people to meet Feb. 18

The next meeting of Newton Chapter 124, American Association of Retired Persons will be held Monday, Feb. 18, at 2 p.m. at the Newtonville United Methodist Church, corner Walnut Street and Newtonville Avenue, Newtonville.

A social hour beginning at 1:30 p.m. will precede the meeting. Mrs. Miriam Sawyer will be in charge.

The business meeting will begin at 2 p.m. with Mrs. Esther St. Hilaire, president presiding.

Following the meeting, Mrs. Kathleen Brookins will show slides of her travel tour of the coastal area o Ireland.

Any person who is a member of the National Retired Teachers' Association or the American Association of Retired Persons and is 55 or over is welcome to join the local chapter.

Tax assistance

The Jewish Community Center Brookline-Brighton-Newton recently announced a volunteer tax assistance service, staffed by individuals trained in tax procedure by the Internal Revenue Service. Tax assistance will be available at the Center on Sunday mornings 10 a.m.-12 noon; Mondays 12 noon to 4 p.m.; Wednesdays 12 noon - 2 pm.; Thursdays 10 p.m. - 12 noon; and at Temple Kehillath Israel, 384 Harvard St., Brookline, Thursdays 1 p.m. - 3 p.m. (starting Feb. 28).

The program will be in operation during the weeks of Feb. 10th throught April 14. Appointments can be made by calling the Center's office, 734-0800.

Walk-in service will be provided but may involve some waiting. Additional service hours will be announced later. People may call the Center for further times and information.

Bicycle safety discussed

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn recently issued the following statement:

"This is the second of a series on the Saltonstall Bicycle Regulation Bill. The intent of the bill is to accent safety and uniformity and generally follows the regulations applicable to good automobile driving.

"The cyclist should, at all times, remember, although he or she has rights on the roadways, a great potential for serious accident is ever present if the cyclist exercises a right at the wrong time or fails to observe other vehicles.

"We suggest cyclists become familiar with the following: ride on the right side of the road, with the flow of traffic; ride single file, except when passing;

"Obey all traffic signals and signs. Stop at red lights, stop signs, etc.; bicyclists shall signal intentions to stop or change direction (turn), Bicycles may not be driven on sidewalks adjacent to stores, churches, temples or business establishments.

"Communities have option on sidewalk riding in other areas; single rider only, except tandems or on a baby seat with a stirrup and harness to secure child to the seat; bicycles must be parked in such a fashion as not to obstruct either pedestrian or vehicular traffic; bicycles used at night must have a white light front, red light rear, reflectorized pedals and a red reflector in the rear.

"Handlebars may not be altered or raised, or modified that the operator's hands are above his or her shoulders while gripping them Nor may the fork of a bicycle be altered or extended from the original design or construction engineered by the manufacturer; the operator of a bicycle in any accident involving personnel injury of property damage over $100.00 must file a report with the Police Department of the community where the accident happened.

"Each of the above regulations have been included to improve safety for the bicycle rider The Saltonstall Bill is designed to assist the bicycle rider in his or her enjoyment and use of the bicycle for recreation and transportati n and to outline the cyclists responsibilities.

"In a subsequent article, penalties for failure to observe these regulations and penalties for motorists will be outlined. In the meantime, cyclists who may travel at comfortable speeds of 15-20 MPH should remember that the only real safety on a bicycle is the cyclist personally. The present day bicycles do not have seat belts, padded dashes, four wheel brakes or other protective devices found in automobiles and in the final analysis, the only safety on a bicycle, is found in the drivers.

LONDON (UPI) — Britain has the world's most crowded roads, a British Broadcasting Corp. program reported.

It said Britain has about 80 vehicles per miles of road. Italy and West Germany have 70, the United States and France 40 and Japan 30.

Day Junior High students working on "Oklahoma!"

Ike Meyers and Lisa Friedman, two Day Junior High School students, are out searching for a surrey with a fringe on top to be an eye-catching prop for the F.A. Day Junior High spring production of "Oklahoma!"

Ike, as Curley, and Lisa, in the role of Laurie, are among 11 students in leading roles who will be supported in the April production by a special chorus auditioned and selected from the school-wide seventh-eighth-ninth-grade choruses.

The F.A. Day production on Thursday and Friday evenings, April 4 and 5, is the second such musical staged at F. A. Day by Choral Director Eleanor Kubinciak of the Day faculty. Miss Kubinciak, joined by Instrumental Director Robert Giorgi and Director Judity Mosedale, also of the Day staff, has selected the participants after open, all-school auditions.

Chorus members for "Oklahoma!" are Kevin Blall, Tony Sirgo, Dan Borison, Larry Caccia, Mark Philbrick, Brendan Curran, Mike Dews, Peter Jepsen, Eric Hollman, Eric Fallon, Sue Farrington, Michelle Rowland, Cathy Crowe, Barbara Scrooc, Diane Sakakini, Denise Magni, Erica Sigal, Alana Zion, Jessica Baron, Jean Sudhalter, Roslyn Brisson, Kathy Dempsey, Maryellen Pambookian, Rhonda Stisi, and Lois Macdonald.

The chorus also includes Debbie Lemons, Wendy Fallon, Lisa Lorant, Clara Deser, Kathy Rosenblum, Laura Sullivan, Lisa Rosenbaum, Grade Mest, Barbara Gordon, Laura McGerigie, Kathy Bergquist and Elizabeth Boates.

Day students in leading roles also include Matthew Lahey as Will Parker; Kelly Farrington as Ado Annie Carnes; Kathy McDade as Aunt Eller; David Bronstein as Ali Hakim; Brett Goldberg as Jud Fry; Dan Borison as Andrew Carnes; Bill Pritchett as Ike Skidmore; Pam Pritchett as Gertie Cummings; and Kevin Ball as Cord Elam.

Originally titled "Away We Go!," "Oklahoma!" opened in New Haven, went on to Boston, and finally made it to Broadway where advance raves at the St. James Theatre on March 31, 1943, were not enough to result in an opening night sell-out.

"Oklahoma!" has since been performed all over the world in a variety of languages. The show ran for a record five years and nine weeks on Broadway.

Tickets for the two F.A. Day performances on April 4 and 5 at $2.00 each will be available at the school in late March.

Children's concert

Folk singer Tony Saletan will appear at a children's concert Sunday, Feb. 24, at the Jewish Community Center, 50 Sutherland Rd., Brookline.

Saletan will give two performances, one at 2 p.m. and the other at 3:15 p.m. Proceeds of the show will be used for play camp and nursery school scholarships.

Marriott Mardi Gras to be held Feb. 23-24

The fourth annual Marriott Motor Hotel Mardi Gras, featuring a weekend of activities will be held at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Newton, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 23-24.

The Marriott has arranged a Mardi Gras celebration by recreating the mood, the decor and details of the famous New aorleans celebration.

On Saturday, amardi Gras guests may have a leisurely afternoon, including the use of all Marriott recreational facilities . . .indoor swimming, ping pong, bumper pool, health club and suna. Skiing, tobagganning and ice skating are nearby.

In the evening, guests' wearing costumes will be served a Mardi Gras creole buffet following a cocktail hour. The bill of fare will include food specialities and recipes from old New Orleans., Mardi Gras souvenirs, favors and masks will be provided for the Masquerade Ball. There will be a coronation of a king and queen and the traditional Mardi Gras Parage through the hotel.

A Dixieland Jazz Band in skimmers and striped vests will play music for dancing.

Prizes will be awarded for best costumes, and keys, distributed to guests, may open the padlock on the pirate's treasure chest filled with more prizes.

Sunday will be a day for relaxing including breakfast in bed, or brunch in the Sirloin & Saddle.

Mardi Gras is coming to Boston for the Weekend.
And you'll find it at the Marriott Hotel, where you'll enjoy a beautiful guestroom and all the fun, excitement and flavor of the great New Orleans Festival.
The big day is Saturday February 23rd. After you've checked in, the fun starts with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres before dinner. Mardi Gras dining means Creole dining. And that's just what we have for you — superb, authentic Creole specialties served buffet-style, so you can have as much as you like. Then comes the gala costume ball. Dancing. Lively entertainment. And a midnight costume parade through the lobby. When you arrive at the ball, you'll get a key. And who knows? Your key may be the one that opens the Treasure Chest of exciting prizes.
After a night's rest, enjoy a delicious breakfast in your room or in the Fairfield Inn. Or sleep late and feast at the bountiful brunch in the Sirloin & Saddle. Our Mardi Gras — the room, the cocktails, the buffet, the ball and the breakfast — is yours for just $74.90 per couple. Early birds can start Friday night with informal cocktails and cheeses from around the world and a luxurious room for the night for just $24. The Mardi Gras is coming to Boston February 22, 23, and 24. Make your reservations now by calling 969-1000.
Celebrate at the Marriott.

Drop-in centers seek nominations for advisor board

The Newton Adolescent Project in conjunction with the Newton Recreation Department is presently operating four drop-in youth centers in various sectors of the city.

The centers are located in Newton Centre, West Newton, Newton Highlands, and Upper Falls. They are open on Friday and Saturday evenings and offer trips, dances, special activities and an open gym for young men and women.

The project has recently opened an after school drop-in center at 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

The centers are now accepting nominations for the advisory committee which oversees the program. The committee is composed of both adults and students from Newton.

The project and the task force are also cooperating on the development of a new service for adolescents in Newton, Weston, and Wellesley.

There are many young people in this area who do not have viable families or who occassionally have a problem that time and distance could help to solve. These young people need an alternative to running away.

During the past year, programs such as Families Extended and Freeport have found it impossible to provide alternative housing for the numbers of young people who have requested this service. The purpose of the program is to provide a shot term placement of from one night to two weeks. If the young people can find a temporary home in their own community within a supportive atmosphere, it is hoped that they can quickly be reunited with their own families.

SURGERY FOR DONNY

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinals running back Donny Anderson, bothered by a knee ailment for the past two seasons, will undergo surgery later this week to have a fluid sac removed, the club announced Tuesday.

Anderson, who led the Cardinals in 1973 with 13 touchdowns.

Greenland comes to Science Museum

Greenland has come to the Museum of Science.

A new traveling exhibit, here for just six weeks, gives a comprehensive view of both ancient culture and changes modern times have brought to that ice-covered Arctic island.

Produced by the Danish government, the exhibit highlights Eskimo contributions to polar life. A sealskin kayak, alledgedly owned and used by Danish explorer Knud Rasmussen, a team of mounted dogs pulling a sledge, hunting weapons, and native clothes that defy the elements are among the many artifacts, models and replicas displayed.

The exhibit covers the history of the country, from the earliest indications of habitation, through the Norse settlements, down to contemporary social and economic developments.

A replica of a drab brown Norse robe almost 700 years old — its original the first medieval garment ever recovered — contrasts with modern Greenlander's brightly colored, native costumes that show a strong Danish influence. Photos of ancient fertility figures and of symbolic decorations explain some of the legends retained today in the work of Eskimo sculptures, also exhibited.

A scale model of a dockyard opened in 1931 and one of a North Sea cutter remind visitors that today's Greenlanders no longer depend on seal hunting for their livelihood but engage in fishing and sheep and reindeer breeding, as well as a few town-oriented jobs.

After 1953 when the Danish government made Greenland a province (a state-like status), the Danish Health Services moved in to reduce the death rate, caused particularly by tuberculosis. Now infant mortality and TB have dramatically dropped and life expectancy has almost doubled.

Other problems and prospects for the sparcely populated area are shown in photo blow-ups and models, including one of a model town, and such modern products as books, journals, and fabrics woven from native wool.

The exhibit was designed by Soeren Sass, Danish architect, in collaboration with Greenland artist-writer Jens Rosing. It is circulated through this country by the Smithsonian Institution. Its installation in the Museum of Science was under the direction of Sass, and completed by Richard Sheffield, assisted by other members of the Museum's Exhibits Department.

Greenland: Arctic Denmark" will remain through March 10. There is no charge above regular Museum admission.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

ENGLISH IVY: This handsome vine grows outdoors and indoors. In the south it's an evergreen vine where it seldom ever winterkills. It also grows well in the north and west, but a cold winter can sometimes kill it back. Hedera helix or English ivy, is easy to grow and it is highly variable in color and leaf form. You see it growing on tree trunks, and clinging to walls by means of rootlike holdfasts. One variety has leaves which are variegated creamy yellow. The hardiest form of English ivy is Hedera helix baltica. Indoors, English ivy likes an average potting mixture of 1 part each of sand, peat and loam. Some people like to grow them in plain tap water, adding a few pieces of charcoal.

When it comes to light, the English ivy grows fine in either sun or shade. Indoors it likes dappled shade in summer and full sun in winter. There's a trick to watering the English ivy. Allow the soil to get a bit dry between waterings, then give the plant a good soaking each time you water. Grow in clay pots for best effect. Syringe the foliage frequently especially if the room is hot and dry.

TROUBLES: Shrivelling and drying up of leaves. Due to overwatering or poor drainage. Ives growing in glazed containers are often overwatered and that's the main reason why the leaves dry up. Mottled foliage is due to red spider mites, and it's often worse when the soil is dry as a bone. White cottony masses on stems means mealybug. Handpick and burn. Or scrub affected parts with toothbrush and soapy water. Washing the foliage will get rid of red spider mites. Indoors, feed your English Ivy with a liquid plant food once every 3 or 4 weeks or so, in summer. In winter, growth is slower, so feed every 3 months. Watch out for the dry fertilizers as they may burn the roots.

Starting new plants is easy. Snip off tips and place in jars of plain tap water. Rooting takes place in 4 or 5 weeks. Some gardeners tell us that green glass containers are best for rooting and growing this ivy and the Pachysandra.

PATIO TOMATOES: If you want to grow tomatoes in a tub or pot on your patio, try Presto, a "patio" type which produces fruit 1½" across. Vines grow about 2' tall and need staking when grown in pots. Pixie is another patio variety worth trying. If Presto is started next month it will produce fruit by early July. It's difficult to pick the "best" varieties for your garden, but Jet Star and Supersonic are two good ones to try this year.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Please tell us of a good variety of Parsley we can grow in pots and in our garden.

Ans.: Try a variety known as Perfection, leaves are finely curled, and its emerald-green color holds well in cool weather. Banquet is another variety with tightly curled leaves which holds its green color both in summer and in cold weather.

Give the world a little gift today. Blood.

New psychiatric unit at Newton-Wellesley

NEWTON-Wellesley Hospital's new 21-bed inpatient psychiatric unit will admit its first patients on Tuesday, Feb. 19.

The unit is designed to help fill needs, long recognized by professionals in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area for a community facility to accommodate psychiatric patients. Admission is available to residents of these communities and to patients of psychiatrists on the hospital's staff and to referrals from others.

The new unit, under the direction of chief of psychiatry Dr. Carl N. Brownsberger, will work closely with local mental health agencies and with state facilitites, including Medfield State Hospital, in meeting defined psychiatric hospitalization needs.

Maximum inpatient population will be 21 persons. Additional patients are expected to be covered by partial hospitalization, for example, daytime or nighttime care only. Partial hospitalization permits continuation of work and-or family connection with limited therapeutic support. Plans for the partial hospitalization programs are expected to be finalized next summer.

In detailing the new unit's operating principles, psychiatric chief Brownsberger said, "Historically, the strength of private psychiatry comes from its ability to provide continuity of care for its patients. The strength of public psychiatry has been in providing a wide variety of services.

"Psychiatric achievement in the future," Brownsberger predicted, "will come from combining the strong points of both systems within the community hospital setting. Newton-Wellesley Hospital's psychiatric unit is strategically positioned to play an important part in defining that direction."

Brownsberger was previously director of psychiatric training and education at Boston City Hospital.

Reorganization proposal transformed once more

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Reorganization of the city's operating departments, mainly the consolidation of the present Public Works and Public Buildings Departments, was discussed without conclusive agreement at Wednesday night's meeting of the aldermanic ad hoc committee on reorganization.

A byproduct of the meeting, at which outlines of the bare bones of the reorganization were presented by Planning Director Charles Thomas, was an apparent revision of the scheme or organization for the Executive Department.

The charts displayed at the meeting show all departments reporting directly to the Mayor Theodore Mann instead of to Chief Administrative Officer James Salter, as the last version of the executive reorganization showed.

Although the mayor's executive changes had already received implicit approval by reason of the Board of Aldermen's approval of some of the salary increase requested for his staff by the mayor, there was considerable opposition on and off the Board to what appeared to many to be the mayor's abdication of power.

Mayor Mann answered critics who called the executive reorganization a switch to the city-manager form of government, and thus contrary to the city charter, by saying that the only power Salter would have would be that delegated to him by the mayor.

The mayor, said the mayor, would still be running the city.

Mann reiterated that statement again Wednesday night after the meeting and said the new arrangement was only a "redefining" of staff roles.

The new plan shows the City Solicitor and the "mayor's staff" as the top positions under the mayor.

In "mayor's staff" are the chief administrative officer (Salter), fiscal or financial officer (not named, a new position) and administrative aide for committees and commissions (Charles F. Miller).

The position of one other aide has been eliminated.

The planning and programming officer (Charles Thomas) is next down the chain of command, followed by the 12 operating departments, which are still subject to regrouping or reconsolidation.

The new Public Works Department would incorporate much of the present Public Buildings Department, leaving only building inspection, which would become a department by itself.

The mayor said the 1974-75 budget for the new Public Works Department would probably be about $10 million.

An estimate earlier in the year was $14 million.

The organization proposal for the new PW department had been streamlined since its original presentation, but did not meet the unqualified approval of any of the aldermen present at Wednesday night's meeting.

The mayor's proposal calls for administrative and engineering staffs to assist the director of the Public Works Department, and five departmental divisions, each with its own manager—sanitation, streets, and vehicles, water and sewer, parks and grounds, and facility maintenance.

When information on the additional cost over last year's budget and the additional number of personnel needed over the 1973 figure was asked for by Ald. Robert Gaynor, Chares Thomas replied that the mayor's staff, including the new position of financial officer, would add $37,000 to the budget.

Salter said the labor force would remain stable in the Public Works Department (about 550 people) and would merely be reapportioned to the different new divisions.

A systems analyst, long advocated by outgoing Public Works Director Richard Dudman but denied by the Board of Aldermen, may be incorporated into the soon to be expanded data-processing department of the city.

Not only will there be unused money from salaries, Salter said; (Dudman's and that of former assistant Public Works Director John Carroll, who resigned last spring after three months on the job), but also there has been more money recommended in the 1974-75 budget to be put into reserve, so that if the reorganization goes through there will be money with which to implement it.

Board Vice-president Richard Bullwinkle requested the mayor, Salter and Thomas to prepare more detailed plans for all the departments, incorporating suggestions made at the meeting, in time for the next meeting of the reorganization committee, March 27.

Going south

Auto center is an issue

By ANDY FIELDING

"We want four walls and a roof", says Dave Dine, one of the students in Joseph Connolly's auto mechanics class at Newton South.

Dine is one of 136 students enrolled in auto mechanics at Newton South. Those students (who do regular repair work on cars (at no profit), and receive instruction and training in auto mechanics, are organizing with a number of other people in the school in order to get an auto center built at Newton South, similar to one in operation at Newton North High.

Proponents of the South center have been pushing for such a facility for about four years, and the city has yet to appropriate the necessary funds. The students say the desperately need a garage and center, with adequate tools and equipment.

Two weeks ago, there was talk of a strike at South over the auto center issue, but that action has been at least temporarily quelled, pending a March 7 meeting of the Public Buildings Committee of the city's Board of Aldermen. That meeting will be held at Newton South. The center advocates are particularly upset over the Board of Aldermen's January decision not to expend a $7300 architect's fee it had appropirated a year earlier. Shortly after that decision. the Bord voted to return the $7300 issue fo the Public Buildings Committee, and that issue will be discussed at the March 7 meeting at Newton South.

Meanwhile, the students are seemingly quite angry, and have begun circulating petitions in order to get a show of support. "This time", says student Chris Reynes, "we're not kidding."

Opponents of the South plan say the students should make use of the existing facility at Newton North. But instructor Connolly says, "It's kind of foolish to bus them over to North when North wouldn't be able to take care of them. The courses over there are full." And even if it were possible to work at North, the South students contend that the time problem of going back and forth, daily, "just makes it illogical." According to one source, costs of a bus for that transportation would run on the order of $18,000 a year.

The South center proponents say that the cost of the bus would eventually pay for the cost of the entire center (One of the plans studied by the city's School Committee, proposes an 800 square foot center, with costs running around $74,000. This plan included three bays and one lift. Another of the plans puts the cost of a 2000 sq. ft. building at $140,000. That plan was scaled down to about $115,000–$17,500, for equipment, for example, three bays and two lifts. The 800 sq. ft. plan seems, at this point, to have the most support, but Connolly says, "we'll settle for a metal lab building".

The students are also protesting their present working conditions. In the winter months, for example, they are forced to work outside in the snow every day. Says student

Towers disputing sprinkler need

Has "construction" of the Towers at Chestnut Hill begun?

The interpretation of a state law calling for "a complete system of automatic sprinklers" in buildings "construction of which is begun after March 1, 1974" may get the city in trouble.

In the final moments before approval of the Towers' site plan Feb. 4, an amendment was squeezed into the list of conditions under which the Towers would be allowed to proceed with construction, calling for the installation of sprinkler systems throughout the buildings.

Over the past weekend, the Towers asked for clarification and amendment of the condition on the grounds that architectural plans have been completed in detail and that the installation of a sprinkler system "throughout" would cost $1 million and is not necessary.

In a closed-door session between City Solicitor Howard Levine and the aldermen at Tuesday night's Board meeting, which Levine requested, he reportedly discussed the possibility of a lawsuit against the city by the developers of the Towers in the event the sprinkler condition is not modified.

Reasons given by Levine and Ald. Joseph McDonnell for barring the press and public from the meeting were "potential litigation," "matters affecting the financial security of the city," and the "attorney-client relationship."

The only purposes allowed by state law for holding executive sessions (closed meetings), by any board, commission or committee of a city or town, are to discuss, deliberate or vote on matters "which by general or special statute, cannot be made public, and those matters which if made public might adversely affect the public security, the financial interest of the district, city, town, or local housing authority, or the reputation of any person."

Ald. Michael Antonellis, who along with Ald. Richard McGrath voted against holding the executive session, commented Wednesday, "From my point of view, I think because of the cloud on the Towers dealings it would have been better to have the meeting in public."

According to other aldermen who were in the closed meeting, Levine thinks the Towers developers may have a reasonable case that construction has begun on the luxury condominium apartment buildings.

Foundations have not been poured, and nothing is visible on the Towers site except the sales model building.

If Levine and Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson interpret the work done so far on the Towers site and the architectural and other drawings as construction having begun, there still remains the question, What is a complete system of automatic sprinklers under the lW?

The law is ambiguous there as well.

At the conclusion of the closed meeting, the Towers architect explained in detail why it is not possible at this stage to put a sprinkler head in every room, saying that one more foot of ceiling height would have to be added to each floor for the piping and recessed heads.

Such a change, the architects said, would require changes in load-bearing structures and would mean two fewer floors, or 60 apartments fewer.

The Towers architect went on to explain the compartmentalized construction of the buildings, which would contain a fire within 14,000-square-foot units, the "complete early-warning detection system," and walls that resist fire for two hours.

"The only missing element," he said, "is in the apartments, and we'll put in smoke detectors." The architect added that a smoke detector sends out an alarm usually at a lower temperature than sprinklers, which go off at 165-200 degrees.

On the floor of the Board, Ald. Alan Barkin moved unsuccessfully to suspend the rules to allow acting on modification of Condition 12 of the Feb. 4 Boar order. The order gave site-plan approval, which had been the last obstacle to resumption of work on the Towers, halted last September because of expiration of permissive use.

Unless there is a special meeting of the Board called, the Towers request will be discussed at the next meeting of the Land Use Committee, March 11.

No answer could be had in several attempts to call the Towers sales office Wednesday for comment. Neither Towers lawyer could be reached.

Candidate enters race for congress

Brookline State Representative Jon Rotenberg will challenge incumbent Congressman Robert F. Drinan in the Democratic primary this fall.

Rotenberg, 26, a two-term state legislator from Brookline, made his announcement last week in Waltham.

The legislator, running in the fourth Congressional district, said "people have a right to expect and demand more work from their elected officials," and noted that "accomplishments and effectiveness are as important as voting correctly and saying the popular thing."

He said, on his accomplishments in the State Legislature. "I am pleased that I am considered effective in my work, but I know that much of what we can do in Massachusetts depends on what help we get from Congess, and I don't see the necessary effort being made to achieve those ends."

"There is more to being a congressman than one issue," Rotenberg went on to say. "It seems to me that beyond all question the primary concern of the voters of the Fourth Congressional District is the quality of their lives.

"I believe that it should also be the main concern of their representative in Washington."

Rotenberg began his political involvement in 1969 as an aide to Congressman Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. In 1970, Rotenberg was elected a state representative.

As a member of the legislature he has served as vice chairman of the Banks and Banking Committee, clerk of the Committee on Transportation and was a member of Post Audit and Oversight.

The candidate said that during his legislative career, he has concentrated on the issues of "economy, transportation. education, energy and the environment, individual rights and elderly affairs."

The Brookline legislator will more than likely face incumbent, two-term Congressman Drinan who is expected to announce his candidacy later this year.

349 gets injunction

A Nonantum lounge has obtained a court injunction which restrains the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission from suspending its liquor license.

The 349 Lounge, Inc., 349 Washington St., had its license suspended indefinitely last week. According to ABC Chairman A. Ernest Zangrilli, the grounds for the suspension were that the manager of the 349 Lounge was allegedly intoxicated, and the manager allegedly served liquor to an intoxicated customer.

Zongrilli said that it is not uncommon for injunctions to be granted in cases involving the suspension of liquor licenses.

A hearing was reportedly held prior to the initial suspension of the 349 Lounge's liquor license.

"The attorney general will defend our action when they call the case," Zangrilli said.

No, not waiting patiently to see the mayor, the lady has been sitting in City Hall's lobby for the past week, giving a start to visitors. The creation of Newton sculptor Penelope Jenks, the statue was obtained on loan by the Cultural Affairs Commission as part of its ongoing exhibit in City Hall of the work of Newton artists.

Drinan covers 'crucial issues' in talk to LWV

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass Newton) while speaking before the Newton League of Women Voters, made the following comments on three crucial issues facing the Congress:

"The severity of the energy crisis and the intensity of the emotions surrounding the impeachment debate may focus the attention of the voters on these two issues to the point that they will forget about three other crucial issues–the reform of campaign spending, the institution of some form of comprehensive health insurance and the modernization of Congress.

CAMPAIGN FINANCING

"If the national elections in November are carried through with the ancient and outmoded method of financing now used, the voters of this country have a right and a duty to express their protest in the ballot box. The United States Senate has passed a bill providing for the exclusive financing of all federal campaigns with federal money. The House of Representatives will be acting on a bill which would move in this direction but would not eliminate completely private citizens financing, in modest ways, on a matching basis, the candidate of their choice.

"It seems safe to predict that the Presidential elections of 1976 will in fact be financed by federal and tax payers money. The method of financing of congressional and senatorial elections on Nov. 5, should be one of the crucial questions before every citizen of America."

HEALTH INSURANCE

"The national platforms of both political parties are pledged to the establishment of some form of comprehensive national health insurance for all citizens. For some 25 years administrations of both parties have failed to agree with Congress in the implementation of a plan that will make medical care available to all persons regardless of their income. The incumbent administration has once again proposed that such a plan be enacted. Leaders in the Congress have indicated a readiness to come to some agreement about the details of competing plans. Only intense public pressure will stimulate and compel the Congress and the administration to work together as never before to bring about a health insurance plan worthy of the fantastic medical facilities and medical personnel of the United States."

CONGRESSIONAL REFORM

"The centrality of impeachment and the energy crisis may well, during the next few months, take the spotlight off of a situation in which almost for the first time in living memory the Congress has an opportunity to reform outmoded procedures such as seniority, closed committee hearings and a Congressional Record which is much too difficult for those outside of the Congress to read or comprehend.

"In the spring of 1974 the House of Representatives will have the opportunity of acting on the relatively sweeping recommendations of a bi-partisan House committee of which Congressman Richard Bolling of Missouri is the chairman. This committee is recommending the first major modernization of the House within more than a generation. The public of America simply must be aware of these proposals and hold their congressman accountable for his position on the acceptance and implementation of these very promising proposals."

Republicans ready for election of officers

Newton Republican Ward Committees are taking steps for their forthcoming election of officers, according to a bulletin by Julius L. Masow, chairman, Newton Republican City Committee.

The Ward Committees, he noted, are also required to elect one of their members as a representative on the city-wide nominating committee which is to recommend a slate of officers for the Republican City Committee for the next year term.

The City Committee consists of members of all eight Republican Ward Committees in the city, he explained.

Details of the procedures to be followed will be more fully amplified, Masow stated, at the City Committee meeting which it is expected will be held within the next month.

Masow also invited attention to the Middlesex Republican Club's Dinner of Monday, March 11 when Vice-President Gerald Ford is to be guest speaker. Tickets for the event and information may be obtained from Mrs. Herman Smerling (969)9095) , Masow stated.

Group legal services bill filed by Rep. Mofenson

Rep. David j. mofenson (D-Newton) recently introduced legislation to establish a system of group legal services within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Mofenson explained, "It has frequently been said that the indigent and the wealthy are well provided for in the field of legal guidance and that it is the middle man who is excluded. It is evident that the average person of moderate income often has neither the means, the time nor the knowledge to pursue legal help."

"The instituting of legal services" Mofenson said, "promotes the public welfare by regulating legal service insurance rates so they shall not be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory. Such plans make legal counsel available on a wide-scale basis."

The Newton representative's bill insures standards of legal quality and schedules of rates, two of the major concerns the consumer must contend with when seeking legal help.

There are two basic approaches to group legal services plans. One system enables a client, independently or as a part of some contracting group, to join a plan and pay the premium, after which he is free to use any attorney of his choice. The lawyer's fees are paid primarily by the insurance company that has sp nsored the plan.

The other system is used mostly by entire groups, unions and, organizations which wish to provide a plan of legal insurance to their members. In this type of arrangement, the group, union or organization contracts for one or more attorneys to assist its members exclusively. The amount of counsel given and the variety of problems dealt with change with the different plans of coverage.

"The need for legal assistance is becoming more common," said Mofenson. "The average citizen's apprehensions about high costs as well as his lack of experience and contact with the legal profession causes many people to avoid legal help. Due to the complexity of our society the policy of preventive legal counsel is quickly becoming a reality. It is important for the average person to have legal service that is both useful and easily attainable. The middle-class citizen must have an equal legal opportunity. Other states have already established pilot programs in the area of group legal service. It is now time for Massachusetts to do the same."

Nutrition affects dental health

Like the rest of your body, teeth ang gums need a well-balanced diet to stay healthy.

That's why, says Dr. Charles Branch, the slogan "Kick the Sweet Snack Habit" has been chosen for this year's National Children's Dental Health month.

Branch is president of the Massachusetts Dental Society which sponsors the annual observation. He, along with Dr. Michael Sheff, chairman of "Massachusetts Dental Health Month" are trying to educate the public on the dangers of eating sweets.

According to the Dental Society, eating between meals or "snacking" can be fun, relaxing and refreshing, but it is important not to be careless in the types of foods chosen for snacks. Otherwise, good dental health and general nutritional well-being may be endangered.

Like most other things that are carried to extremes, habitual snacking, nibbling and drinking between meals is not beneficial to dental or total health.

Tooth decay and periodontal disease, the two most common dental diseases, are directly linked to what you eat and your dietary habits. Both tooth decay and periodontal disease result from the action of bacterial plaque on the teeth and under the gums.

Bacterial plaque is the sticky, almost colorless film that forms continually on teeth. Accumulated plaque has been identified as a major factor in the cause of tooth decay and gum disease.

When sweet foods are eaten, certain bacteria in plaque use the sugars to form acids. These acides can dissolve tooth enamel. Once decay takes hold, it can spread throughout the tooth and to surrounding teeth.

Elaborating on the Dental Society's campaign, Branch stated that "periodontal disease starts when certain bacteria in plaque use sugars to form irritants. These irritants can cause the gums to become swollen and sore. Eventually the gums pull away from the teeth and the disease can reach the supporting bone. Then the teeth loosen and are lost."

Statistics show that gum disease causes the loss of more natural teeth for adults than does tooth decay.

How to combat gum disease and decay? "One sure answer," says Dr. Branch "is to clean teeth thoroughly after eating. But an equally important way is to eat a balanced diet of a variety of foods every day to meet your nutritional needs. When you eat three balanced meals every day, you will be less likely to crave sugary snacks. Good nutrition is vital to your dental health and to your physical well-being."

Hearings on gun control bills set

Public hearings on handgun control legislation filed by Rep. Peter F. Harrington (D-Newton) and Sen Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline) will be heard before the Committee on Public Safety on Monday, Feb. 25, at 10 a.m. in Gardner Auditorium of the State House.

Their handgun control bill, filed jointly, would ban the sale or possession of handguns to all but police, armed forces, security guards or licensed businessmen or pistol clubs, under the strict control of the Commissioner of Public Safety. The bill is based on legislation filed since 1971 by Sen. Backman.

Harrington has also drafted an additional comprehensive gun control package co-sponsored by the two legislators designed to tighten existing laws by calling for mandatory regulation of all guns, stricter security regulations during transportation, a ban on advertising, a 15-day cooling-off period before issuing any licenses and a campaign to promote firearms safety and control.

Harrington pointed out that they had been in touch with the offices of the mayors of San Francisco, Atlanta and Chicago, all of whom have stated that they support the handgun legislation.

"We are expecting letters from them stating this position in time for the hearings," said Harrington.

Backman noted tha Boston Police Commissioner Robert DiGrazia has said he will appear at the hearing to support their legislation. In addition, the Massachusetts Pharmacists Association, which co-sponsored the handgun bills, will appear in strong support of the measures.

"We must not be deluded by false statements or high-powered advertising which the gun lobby is able to muster. It is through the efforts of a minority segment of our population — the National Rifle Association — that the majority of our citizens are denied protection from the shocking number of gun deaths each year. The governor's bill, which bans only small barrels, would take less than 5 percent of the handguns out of circulation. Our bill would effectively deal with the other 95 per cent as well," said Sen. Backman.

Rep. Harrington urged all interested persons to make their voice heard in support of strong handgun control on February 25 in Gardner Auditorium of the State House.

Backman, Harrington, Chester Broderick, president of the Boston Patrolmen's Association, and members of the National Rifle Association will appear on Mass Reaction, WNAC-TV, 8-9 p.m., on the Monday evening after the hearing to discuss handgun control.

Census information required

The second mailing of census forms has gone out to more than 7,000 households in Newton that did not reply to the first mailing in early January, according to Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission.

Licarie emphasized that the census information is required by law. If householders do not respond to the second mailing it is necessary to send a policeman to obtain the information.

About 69 per cent of the 27,000 Newton households responded to the first mailing.

Anyone who has not received either the first or second mailing should call the Election Commission.

Men charged with robbery

Two Newton men were harged with armed robbery in Newton District Court this week.

The charges stemmed from an alleged robbery of Hubbard Pharmacy, 425 Center St., Newton Sunday.

Anthony Kornow, 18, of 613 Walnut St., Newtonville, and John A. Sbordone, 22, of 35 Emerson St., Newton were arraigned before Special Justice Monte G. Basbas.

The two men were released on $2500 bail and the case was continued until March 26.

Police reported that an alarm was received from Hubbard Pharmacy at 2:44 p.m. on Sunday. Sgt. Neal Dwyer and Officer Harry Cooper were the first police to arrive at the store.

The police reportedly saw a tall male near the rear of the store. Another man, with a paper bag, was leaving the pharmacy as they entered.

The proprietor of the store allegedly called out and the police stopped the man who was leaving.

The second man, in the rear, reportedly went out a rear door. Officers Franciw Greeley and Jay Veduccio observed a man on the toll road bridge in Newton Corner. The man was brought back and he was identified by the proprietor.

The two alleged robbers reportedly demanded drugs.

According to police, a gun was found in the store.

Sgt. Charles Feeley said that property damage from BB's was reported last weekend in the Newton Centre area.

Feeley noted that picture windows were broken at homes on Paul Street.

At Crystal Lake, a young man was reportedly ordered off the ice by three other people. He was sturck by a BB under his eye and needed treatment.

A lot of people acknowledge God as Father. But do they really understand the man He made?

As you get a deeper understanding of the Bible, the spiritual nature of man and of all creation appears. Then Christian unity and the brotherhood of man appear in your life, too.

Selections from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, to be read in our church service this Sunday, will help you understand the Bible's message of brotherly love in a new light.

Spinning wheels To demonstrate a few of the gyroscopic principles employed in space exploration and guidance systems of the future, a lecturer uses a rapidly spinning wheel.

Molecules Synthetic rubber produced in only 60 seconds is one of the dramatic demonstrations in "Previews of Progress." The lecturer mixes two liquids in a pop bottle, shakes well, and out jumps a mass of synthetic rubber 15 times the volume of the bottle.

Students get a look at the future

Local students will get a peek at the future when General Motors national assembly program, "Previews of Progress," comes to Newton schools.

The program will be presented at Newton South High School and Weeks Junior High School Tuesday, Feb. 26; and at Newton North High School on Wednesday, Feb. 27.

The show, according to General Motors President Edward N. Cole, "seeks to inspire more student interest in science, engineering, and related technical and vocational careers to provide the trained talent America needs to keep pace with the promise of the future."

Previews of Progress demonstrations depict work being done today in America's research laboratories and point out the contributions of research to modern living. A two-man team narrates the live show in non-technical language.

More than 30 million students and adults in the United States have seen Previews since 1946. Millions more have seen the GM show in Canada and 25 foreign countires, including special presentations made overseas at the request of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Featured in the show are two energy conversion techniques which show how fuel cells and solar cells can be used as alternate power sources. Fuel cells convert chemical energy into electrical power and solar cells change sunlight into usaable energy. Students also will be shown recent developments aimed at solving water and air pollution problems.

Another demonstration uses a laser beam to translate the sounds we hear into visual patterns of light.

In all, students will see nine live examples of research-in-action.

Previews has received wide acclaim from educators and civic organizations for its efforts in encouraging more student interest in science, engineering, and related vocational careers.

Authority investigating housing sites

The Newton Redevelopment Authority is investigating the possibility of having the Newton Housing Authority develop housing on Washington Street in Newton Lower Falls.

"We're exploring that avenue," reported NRA Executive Director Gerald Earley. "I don't know if the Housing Authority h s a program with subsidies. I haven't gone into it technically."

Earley said that the NRA is also pursuing the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency and the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

There is also land available for building on the eastern side of Moulton Street in Lower Falls. "We can't find a program for low income private ownership," Earley said.

Earley reported that the Moulton Street situation has been referred to the Lower Falls Project Area Committee housing committee.

Harrington sponsors bills giving cities voice in county budget

Rep. Peter F. Harrington)+Newton), chairman of the liddlesex County Legislators aucus, announced today that e has co-sponsored a five-bill ackage aimed at easing the tax rden now placed on the cities d towns of Middlesex County d giving these cities and wns budgetary power over the unty budget.

The main bill of the package, enacted, would increase the wers of the Middlesex County dvisory Board. The board, hich will be made up of presentatives of the cities and wns of the county, at this time ly has advisory powers over e county budget. This bill will ve the advisory board, by a ur-fifths vote of the total mber of eligible votes, the wer to reduce in whole or part e estimates of expenditures hich shall be adopted by the unty clerk and submitted to e Director of Accounts. The dget, however, will still have be submitted to the state gislature for final approval.

A hearing on this bill is heduled for March 12, 1974.

The second bill, which will ve a hearing on March 5, uld authorize and direct the iddlesex County Commissioners to establish a central county purchasing department for cities and towns within the county that wish to participate in such a program.

The cities and towns that would participate in this program will have the opportunity to save countless dollars on their tax rates, and at the same time be able to purchase quality items and materials at a discount cost.

The third bill in the package provides for the assumption by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts of the costs and expenses of building and operating the courts within Middlesex County.

This bill has been referred to the Judiciary Committee, and no hearing date has been scheduled. Court costs account for at least 50 percent of the Middlesex County budget. With the transfer of the courts to the state, we may be able to move more quickly toward metropolitan government, using our present county lines as boundaries for a new level of government.

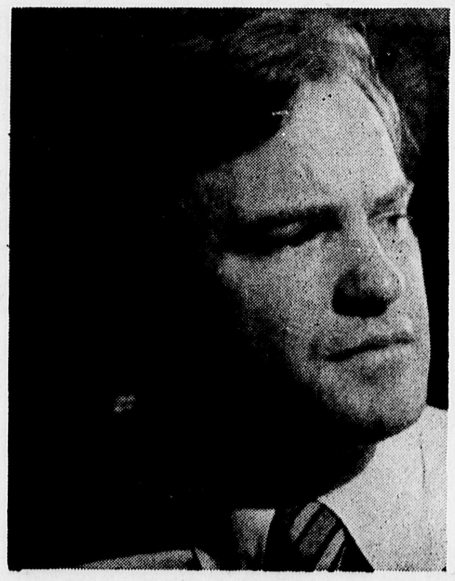
A hearing will be held March 12 for the fourth bill, which authorizes and directs the Middlesex County Commissioners to publish sufficient copies of its county budget within 21 days of the time the budget is presented to the General Court, so that two copies of the proposed budget is made available to the legislative body of each city and town within the county, one copy to the executive officer of each city and town in the county, and one copy for public inspection in each city and town of the county.

The final bill in the package authorizes the Middlesex County Commissioners to establish a merit system for county employees, and the county personnel board is authorized and directed to promulgate rules and regulations pertaining to such a merit system. The hearing for this bill is scheduled for Feb. 26.

A bill prohititing the County Commissioners of Middlesex County from appointing dog officers will be heard on Feb. 25.

"It is the hope of myself and the co-sponsors of these bills that, if enacted, they will make county government more responsible to the people and allow the cities and towns of the county to get more involved in county government."

Crosby heads Sargent campaign



Stephen Crosby

The son of staunch Newton Democrats has been named by Republicn Governor Francis Sargent as his campaign manager for the governor's 1974 reelection campaign.

Stephen P. Crosby, 28, is the son f former alderman Harry Crosby. His mother, Jean, is a member of Cong. Robert Dinan's Waltham office staff.

Harry and Jean Crosby both were coordinators for Drinan during his 1972 campaign, while Stephen was managing the campaign of Drinan's opponent, Martin Linsky of Brookline.

Asked how he came to be a Republican when he had such a strong Democratic background, Stephen Crosby said, "In 1967 I was looking for the right party to join, and I went around talking to people. The general philosophy I found among the Republicans I talked to, the emphasis on decentralization of government, the predisposition to fiscal responsibility were in tune with me."

Harry Crosby put it a little more pointedly: "Stephen came in at the time when the most unimpressive Democrats were in the State House, and the best of the Republicans."

Stephen Crosby also felt at that time and still feels that "there was room in the Republican party for young people to move in."

According to his father, Stpehen has been more interested in government than in politics. He was involved in a citiENS' transportation group that blocked the building of a highway through Roxbury and lobbied for better public transportation, and is interested in transportation planning as a career, his father said.

A debt we all owe

A week-long observance of National African-American History Week, as proclaimed by Governor Francis W. Sargent in a public ceremony in Doric Hall at the State House, has just been concluded.

The national theme for the observance, the 48th annual, was "Helping America Understand."

The observance points up the woeful lack of understanding that other Americans had for generations concerning the part played by Blacks in the growth of this country. History books are obvious culprits for failure to give the Black man his due in the texts generally circulated in the classrooms of the land. Ask the average grade school student in Norwood or Westwood, Dedham or Needham, to name Blacks prominent in American history and he will probably come up with Booker T. Washington and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and no others.

Had history books told the story of the American Negro in its true light, the road to equal rights might have been paved with understanding instead of hatred and violence.

In this cradle of liberty, the first victim of the American Revolution during the Boston Massacre on March 5, 1770, was Crispus Attucks, a Black man.

In 1776, a Black was involved in the most famous search party in U.S. history immortalized in the famous painting of Washington crossing the Delaware. Prince Whipple was in the boat that carried General George Washington across that icy river. The rebels found the enemy, took one thousand of the enemy prisoners, and won an important victory in the American Revolution.

Black culture came into flower in the early 20th century in America. In 1905 a group of Black intellectuals led by W. E. B. Dubois and William Monroe Trotter formed the Niagara Movement, which was the forerunner of many Black interest groups.

Four years later the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was founded, the same year that Matthew Hanson, a Black man, and Admiral Robert Peary became the first men to reach the North Pole.

W. C. Handy ushered in the jazz age following the first World War. Poets Countee Cullen, Claude McKay and Langston Hughes voiced the thoughts of Black people. Paul Lawrence Dunbar captured the soul of his people through dialect and earned the title of the Robert Burns of Black poetry.

Black creatitivity also made its mark in the world of entertainment. Familiar are the names of Marian Anderson, Paul Robeson and Roland Hayes. In the years following World War I, Burt Williams, Florence Mills, Ethel Waters and Bill Bojangles Robinson became stage idols.

During World War II an Air Force pilot named Benjamin Davis, Jr., led an all-Black 99th Fighter Squadron to glory.

In 1947 Jackie Robinson made history as the first Black in major league baseball and opened the door for hundreds of others of his race to gain fame and fortune in the world of professional sports.

And Dr. Ralph Bunche received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1950 for negotiating an armistice between the Arabs and Jews in troubled Palestine.

Tin cans don't grow on trees

By CYNTHIA BLACK

On the front page of last week's paper (Feb. 14), we ran a photo of the rusted hulk of a refrigerator that had been lying in the Webster Conservation land for more than a year.

Why, a citizen was asking, is the conservation area neglected to the extent that such junk is allowed to go to pieces in the conservation land?

I hope Mr. Moore, the man who took the photo that appeared last week has noticed by now that the "abandoned appliance" has been removed.

This week, we received the picture of the "rise of the refrigerator" that accompanies this column with the following note:

"On Thursday, Feb. 14, I received our copy of the Graphic and saw the picture of the old refrigerator on the front page.

Goodbye junk

Completely Black

Saturday morning I went and removed the old refrigerator

If we had more doers and less complainers, the conservation area would be in better shape. When people walk through these areas and see empty cans, papers and bottles lying around they could easily pick up one or two bottles or cans and deposit the trash in the rubbish barrels at the entrance of the paths.

Jim Keating"

It's men like Mr. Keating that deserve our thanks; and I agree with him, we do need more doers and less talkers.

In addition, perhaps we also need more manners. After all, garbage, trash bottles and cans would cease to be an issue if people would stop defiling precious open space with litter.

To coin an old phrase, if Mother Nature wanted tin cans in our unadulterated natural settings, she'd probably grow them on trees.

Of course we can all do our part and become a nation of trash collectors. We can join the Newton Conservators in April and spend a beautiful spring day not enjoying the scenery, but rather, trying to make the area presentable.

Let's stop taking all these joyful days on the clean-up detail in stride and let's start resenting every bottle, can and refrigerator we see in our conservation land.

Open space is precious here. That fact is obvious every time our city officials seriously consider saving land when they consider development proposals. Saving open space, while occasionally a smokescreen for other concerns when it comes to development, is, most of the time, a legitimate factor. But we're not supposed to be saving it in order to destroy it.

Recall, if you will, the most recent fight to preserve space, the defense of Webster Vale. Webster Vale, if Helen Heyn's letter in last week's Graphic is any indication, has also been a repository for old appliances that will have to be hauled away.

Mr. Keating did everyone in Newton a favor last week and his concern for nature must be a deep one. This year, when we get the junk out, let's keep it out.

It's time to break the bad habit of tossing bottles, cans, papers and, yes, appliances, off into Webster Vale, the Webster Conservation land, and all other preserved areas.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Rep. Pines champions cause of non-smokers

Back in the era when we smoked three packs of cigarets a day, we would have considered State Representative Lois G. Pines of Newton a political busybody and nuisance.

But since we have heeded the advice of the surgeon general and kicked the self-destroying habit, we regard Representative Pines as a great stateswoman and a stalwart defender of the rights of the non-smokers.

..How you really feel about Ms. Pines probably depends on who is blowing whose smoke into whose face.

While we lustily applaud the efforts of Representative Pines and the seven other law-makers lined up with her in a fight to ban smoking in almost all indoor gathering places, we must confess that there was a time when we did our share of blowing smoke into other people's faces.

That, however, doesn't change the fact that it was wrong and that Ms. Pines and her seven colleagues are to be commended for their efforts to crack down on the guy at the next restaurant table who lights up a pipe or cigar and blows a cloud of smoke in your direction.

Representative Pines takes the praiseworthy position that a non-smoker has as much right to breathe clean air as a smoker has to pollute the air.

A bill filed by Representative Pines and her seven courageous companions not only would prohibit smoking in most public places, including restaurants, theatres, public buildings, elevators, mercantile establishments and public transportation facilities–except in designated smoking lounges–but would also fine them up to $50 for violationg the law.

Smokers disregarding the statute would first be given tickets comparable to parking tags but subsequently would be hit with stiff fines if the Pines-backed bill were enacted into law which in all probability it will not be.

Our guess from a seat in the gallery overlooking the House of Representatives at the State House is that there are more smokers than non-smokers in that honorable body.

We suspect most of the law-makers are not about to surrender their privilege of shortening their own lives or their right to incur some form of cancer or a heart defect by puffing on a cigaret, cigar or pipe while they are transacting the legislative business of the people of Massachusetts.

A similar bill was approved last May by the legislative social welfare committee but then was bottled up for months in the House Ways and Means Committee and finally was killed quietly.

Several legislators indicated recently that they see the merit in the Pines bill but that they are not enthusiastic about the idea of offending the smokers in their districts.

One law-maker, lighting a cigaret as he leaned against a no-smoking sign, expressed apprehension that any more restrictions on the use of cigarettes and other tobacco products would lessen the amount of revenue the state realizes from those sources and necessitate the need for new taxes.

Representative Pines points out that two-thirds of the people in Massachusetts don't smoke and that the smokers should respect their right to breathe clean air and not have smoke blown in their faces.

She says that there are many harmful effects from smoke-filled rooms beyond being the places where Vice Presidential nominees are chosen at national conventions.

Ms. Pines, incidentally, is a non-smoker, as are most of the co-sponsors of her measure. She claims that 58 per cent of the men and 70 per cent of the women in Massachusetts don't smoke. (She is referring to adults over the age of 18.)

Opponents of her bill cite figures showing that in the fiscal year which ended last June 30 the state received $111,213,343 from its six-cents-a-pack tax on cigarets and that it expects to realize about $113,000,000 from the same source during the present fiscal year.

Some law-makers think those figures should make us more philosophical about having smoke blown in our faces.

WHERE DOES IT GO FROM HERE?

Cowin is likely GOP Atty. Gen. candidate

A Newton man, who is rated the sixth most important state official on Beacon Hill, is expected to be the Replublican nominee for Attorney General in next November's election.

He is "Deputy Governor" William I. Cowin, who gets that strictly honorary title by virtue of the fact that he is Secretary of Administration and Finance in Governor Sargent's Cabinet.

To head off a flood of questions, the five most important officials on Beacon Hill (in this writer's opinion) are Governor Francis W. Sargent, Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight, Attorney General Robert Quinn, House Speaker David M. Bartley and State Senate President Kevin Harrington.

An unusual aspect to Cowin's quest for the Attorney Generalship is that if he wins that office after spending a lot of time, money and energy, he will take a cut of $12,500 a year in salary. He now receives $37,500 annually and unquestionably could get more in private industry.

GOP seen nearly dead if Sarge is defeated

Massachusetts will become a one-party state for at least four years and probably longer if Governor Francis W. Sargent is defeated for reelection next November, which at the present time appears to be a distinct possibility.

Republican dissidents are discovering that trying to fight Mr. Sargent within the GOP is not only difficult but virtually impossible. One prominent Republican after aanother has bowed out as a possible opponent against Sarge in nexxt September's GOP primary.

Carroll Sheehan, former state commissioner of commerce and development, is now being mentioned as the most likely adversary against Governor Sargent in the Republican primary.

That would be an exercise in futility. Mr. Sheehan, an able man, is well known to politicians and newsmen but not to rank and file Republicans. He would get the support of the dissidents who complain that Governor Sargent has not done enough to build up the Republican party in the state. But that is about all.

That is a valid complaint, and Sarge himself and other Republican candidates may pay the price for it next November.

Ironically, however, if Governor Sargent is toppled next November, as many political analysts now believe he will be, his ouster from office would virtually liquidate the Republican party as a potent political force in the Bay State.

Governor Sargent's worry is not the unofficial Republican State Convention in June or the party primary in September. He will win overwhelmingly against any opponent either at the convention or in the primary.

Coldblooded on NCDF project

Dear Editor:

Answering your correspondent, Jeanette McGrath of Newton Corner, it seems perfectly understandable that she can be cold-blooded and unemotional in her charitable attitude towards NCDF, especially as her altruism costs her nothing in the diminished value of her home, not even inconvenience because of the disruption of the normal life of her environment

She lives in Newton Corner and perhaps fancies that she can be smugly impartial in sacrificing the homes and lands of other people, which she calls being fiar and frank.

It would be well for her to reflect on the underlying consequences of the disruption of the last sizable forest environment in Newton. This must have bitter results in the future for all the citizens of Newton, including those of low-income. Where will be the natural areas for free recreation for anybody, low or high? Perhaps Jeanette McGrath could muster a little human feeling of her own if she would try to remember the joy of children exploring woodlands and romping about in the last unspoiled bit of nature we have.

I know she is incapable of sympathizing with the people of Newton Center whose neighborhood is now going to be transformed by urban blight. These two monstrosities, which went hand-in-hand, the "Towers" on Goat Hill (although it is in Newton Center, they call it "Chestnut Hill") and the "low-income" project, 50 units, more or less, at a cost somewhere between one and a half and three and a half millions, will rob Newton Center of its crowning glory for all time and deprive all Newton of a wonderful woodland preserve which can never be replaced.

But the insatiable appetite of these "altruists" will be gratified. As to their statistics, they are as vague as their notions of poverty and low-income are distorted, but since it will be the taxpayers' money (MHFA), what's the difference?

I well remember the words of the principal speaker, a lawyer, representing NCDF three years ago at the little hall in Thompsonville where we were first told of the urban invasion, "You are going to get it whether you like it or not."

Explanation of Library's policy

Dear Editor:

In view of the many questions and the several complaints from Library borrowers concerning the Library's recent experiment in the shelving of fiction, I would like to offer a public explanation which I wonder if you could make available to your readers.

For some time, the Library Staff has been studying very carefully the question of proper shelving of fiction at both Main Library and the branches. Many ways are possible; the staff has been evaluating and assessing all of them.

The concensus of good librarianship which will provide the best service to all segments of the public seems to advocate placing the maximum number of books of fiction ine one alphabet. This allows a consolidation of the works of one author together; it provides maximum browsing opportunities and, therefore, better use by the public of our entire collection. Many books which fit into several categories are, thus, no longer confined to one class, but rather become available to various reading interests.

Stickers on the spine of the books to indicate "mystery", "western", "science fiction" and "gothic" seem to be the logical way to pin-point the nature of the specific book which falls in a definite category. These stickers are readily discernible on the shelves.

Of course, the librarians on duty are available at all times for instant advice and help in selecting the books which, in this one alphabet shelving, provide borrowers with a broader spectrum of reading suggestions not possible in the previous arrangement where different categories of books were shelved in separate alphabets, segrated on separate shelves.

The library staff acknowledges that browzing and slection habits of long standing are difficult to break; what it hopes and asks is the patience and cooperation of the public in the interests of better service to all.

Recreation Commission proposal was denied

To the Editor:

Recently the Newton Board of Aldermen denied a resolution that would make it possible for more women and students to become members of the Recreation Commission.

The reasons for this denial were (a) that a woman is already on the commission and (b) that in the past students have served as commissioners. Statement (b) is completely false.

As sponsor of the resolution, I feel it only fair to give my response and reasons for submitting the resolution.

Newton's Recreation Department has been ineffective and wasteful during the past 10 years. During the 1973 election, I asked for the resignation of Recreation Commissioner John Penney and for a complete reorganization of the Recreation Department.

Newton's Recreation Department has discriminated against women as afar as appropriations for women's programs are concerned.

The department has also failed to meet the needs of the very young, young adults, and the elderly.

The only way to change this pattern is to appoint people to the Recreation Commission that are aware of these problems. This is exactly what my resolution would have accomplished.

It seems that the Board of Aldermen considers it more important and beneficial to the city to allow the mayor to make patronage appointments to less than qualified people.

During the campaign I argued that the $10 fee imposed on the citizens of Newton to use the city's tennis courts was discriminatory against low and moderate income families. Now I am told that it will cost an extra $10-$20 to use the NNHS courts. If this situation is allowed to continue, we will end up paying a fee for walking in our parks, which too are almost nonexistent.

Praises firefighters

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Fire Chief Perkins with a copy to the Graphic):

Dear Chief Perkins:

I write to congratulate you and your men for meriting the top honor for outstanding community achievement in the field of fire prevention for 1973.

It is noteworthy that the award is for positive efforts in the field of fire prevention.

As a Navy man, I am very much interested in fire prevention. As a lifelong resident of Newton, I rejoice with all other citizens in the knowledge that our City is so well served by our Fire Department, because of your leadership.

Thank you, Chief Perkins, and your men and please keep up the good work.

At odds with Lynne Arthur

Dear editor:

Ms. Lynne Arthur's comments in your Feb. 7 issue about the women's Tennis League and inadequate girls' physical education programs were absolutely true.

However, I disagree with her when she states that the Cold Spring playground should be left in a natural state. There are several such areas in Newton (Edmunds Park and the recently acquired land along Hammond Pond Parkway). Newton citizens need the facilities suggested in the park report.

Open letter on guns

To the Editor:

I would like to address myself to the question of the need for strong handgun control laws here in Massachusetts.

I believe that upon initial examination of the question we must recognize that our history as a nation plays a strong part in the negative reaction to handgun control.

Most of those who came to America, to found and build this great nation, emigrated from a civilized world to a frontier—a frontier of forest, of plans, and of mountains, afrontier inhabited by hostile natives.

Historians have said that the Europeans wanted North America and they took it. It was the flintlock rifle, the ball and cap pistol, the six gun and the Winchester rifle that was the law and the justice that settled this country. Form 1630 until the close of the frontier in 1890, it was the law of the gun that stilled opposition to "progress and prosperity."

Romantic legend has sugared the truth of the harsh, bloody and violent history of this nation. How do we respond to this recital of our historical record? Do we recognize that romantics and sugar will not hid the fact that this is still a violent nation?

FACT: In 1970 there were 15,000 homicides in the United States. Handguns were the cause of 52 per cent of these deaths, involving 8.221 victims. That was one death by a handgun every 63 minutes; in 1973 it was one handgun death every 58 minutes.

FACT: In 1970 there were over 11,000 suicides from firearms.

FACT: In 1969 there were 475,000 handguns manufactured in the U.S. In 1971 there were over 3,000,000 handguns manufactured in America. Production was up 650 per cent.

FACT: Official records show that in 1970 there were 78,000 arrest for the illegal carrying of weapons and 138,000 armed robberies committed with firearms.

On and on goes the litany of violence, from aggrevated assault to political assassination.

Whenever there has been a call for rational review of legislative proposal designed to protect American citizens from the dangers inherent in the unregulated ownership of death weapons, it has been drowned in the thrunderous roar of opposition instigated by the manufacturers and retailers of ammunition and handguns.

Truly, these are the merchants of eeath. To every legitimate proposal they say "No." To further their own profits they have duped the public, beguiled the sportsmen, entranced the young, distorted history, and denied truthful fact.

Last year, with the force of a tropical hurricane the gun lobby cried out against mandatory reistration. This year we are ready to cry back, "We demand handgun registration."

Carpenters, plumbers, and electricians are registered, drugs are registered, automobiles and trucks are registered, all to protect the public. Why then should we not register society's most dangerious instrument, the handgun?

We want protection; we want public safety; we want handgun control.

Tot continue to recount statistics beccomes meaningless; the facts are legion, handguns are weapons are weapons of death, they are dangerous to living beings and should be so marked by society.

The eight bills that I have filed in the Massachusetts House of Representatives are intended to mark handguns for the death weapons they are. My handgun control package can be divided into three parts:

First., THERE IS A NEW VERSION OF THE bill filed in 1970 by Sen. Jack H. Backman. This bill, Senate 235 and House 3960, restricts the ownership of handguns to collectors, sportsmen who are members of a pistol club, shopkeepers and security personnel.

The second segment of this package has two facets. House 2991, an update of the bill I originally filed last year, will require mandatory registration of all handguns, and House 2992 provides that a firearms identification card identify the weapon by serial number and type of ammunition used.

The third part of my proposal is composed of five bills which are designed to tighten up the present law. These measures include stricker security regulations during transportation; a gan on advertising; an expanded 15-day cooling-off period; and a request for a 300,000 media campaign to promote firearmrs safety.

Contrary to Middlesex County Sheriff Buckley's dire predictions, I expect that package to pass throug the legislature this year. I have discussed this issue with many of my colleagues during the past month, and I believe that the mood of the Massachusetts General Court is one of concern and upset over the needless deaths resulti g from handguns.

All across the nation, from Boston to San Francisco, citizens and their elected officials have come to recognize that man's greatest triumph, our megalopolitan civilization, will cease to be if we do not eliminate the shootings and gunfights that occur daily in our cities. If we are to preserve our culture we must stand together against violence.

We joined hands together for equal opportunity; we protested together to end an injust war; we must now vote together to control these death weapons, to provide a societal framework so that our children might live a better life; that they, in the words of John Adams, "might study art and architecture, music, philisophy, poetry and pottery," without a constant concern for their personal security.

In conclusion I would like to ask you to please address yourself to the question of the need for stong handgun control laws here in Massachusetts. This legislation will not pass without your help. You can best help by writing or calling your state representative and state senator, the legislative leaders and the candidates for governor.

If ou want handgun coltrol let your legislators know. Your opinion will influence their vote.

New cultural programs intended

The Newton Recreation Department is planning to inaugurate a new series of cultural programs in the near future. According to Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney, the department has a new part-time staff member who will be responsible for developing cultureal arts programs for this winter and spring, and special cultureal programs for next summer.

The program will be directed by Mrs. Gail Forman, who holds a Master's degree in recreation from New York University. Last summer she worked in a dramatics program for children.

The Recreation Department will soon conduct tryouts for membership on two teams which will represent Newton in the Suburban Womens Tennis League. These members will be chosen from local women who are playing in the Newton Ladies Doubles Tennis Recreation League sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department.

Tryouts for the B and C teams to play in the Suburban League will be held at the Charles River Tennis Club on Sundays, March 10 and 17. There will be two sessions on each date, one from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and the other from 8:30 to 10 p.m. A fee of $3 will be charged each player for each session attended.

The players for team level competition will be selected by four New England players.

Women who have any questions about the program may contact Fran Towle at 969-3171, or Audrey Goldberg at 332-9764.

The swimming pool at Newton North High School will be open during the February school vacation period. The pool was to be open regular hours this week, 2 to 6 p.m. for general swimming and 7 to 10 p.m. for scheduled swim class programs.

Westher conditions permitting, there will be tobogganing and skating. The toboggan slide may be open at the Newton Centre Playground, and there may be skating at Bullough's Pond, Crystal Lake and Wares Cove.

Recreation Supervisor William Barry has indicated that skating will be on a day to day basis depending on thaws, freezes, and the effects of the higher sun as the year moves on.

Barry reports that the youth programs in West Newton are going well. There is the Youth-Drop-in Center at the Newton Community Service Center on Cherry St., and the gym program for young people at the Warren Junior High School. The Community Center program is open on Friday nights and the Warren program on Saturday nights. Hours for both programs which are directed by Phil Churchill, are from 7 - 11 p.m.

There is also a drop in center program at the Emerson School on Saturday nights from 7 - 11 p.m. Nick Siciliano is in charge.

Austin Moore will direct a new co-ed gymnastics clinic at North High beginning on Saturday, March 9. From 9 to 10:20 a.m. there will be a session devoted to beginners and then from 10:30 to 11:50 a.m., time will be devoted to advanced beginners and intermediates.

Registration cards will be available at the first session on March 9 and participants are advised to wear appropriate sports clothing when they go for the first program.

Another new program will be a girls Senior High Basketball League, slated to begin in March. An organizational meeting for individuals and teams will be held at the Day Junior High School at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, March 12. The league will play by rules guiding women's and girls' sports. Interested women should contact Fran Towle at 969-3171.

A women's workshop of dance and exercise is currently being held at the fieldhouse at Newton Centre Playground on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. The workshop, directed by Amy Morris, is held from 9:30 - 10:30 Participants may choose to attend either both, or just one of the sessions. For further information, call the Recreation Department 969-3171.

The Recreation Department's Basketball programs are in full swing and current standings in the A Division of the American Basketball League find the Boys' Club and the Troubadours tied for first place with 5 - 0 records. Next is George's Cafe, close behind with five wins and a single loss. In B Division, the Big Blue Club is on top with a record of 5 - 0, while Upper Falls and the Ziphaels are tied for second with 4-1 records.

Recreation Supervisior Bob Doherty reports the standings in the National League. The No-Names are in front with seven wins and only one defeat. In second place is the Newton Centre entry with a record of 6 - 2. Tied for third place are the Boys' Club and the Beginnings at 5 - 3.

Playoffs in the Recreation Department's Newton Women's Volleyball League are scheduled for Feb. 25 and March 4.

Republicans plan Feb. 23 meeting

A public meeting and hearing sponsored by the Platform Committee of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee will take place Saturday, Feb. 23, at 1:30 p.m.

The event will be held in the Framingham Center Library on Route 9.

Ed King of West Roxbury, a member of the Republican State Committee, will preside at the open discussion and debate of platform issues. The meeting is one of a series being held throughout the state in connection with the drafting of the 1974 Platform that will be presented at the state convention in June.

"The purpose of the meetings," Mrs. Maudyea Campbell explained, "is to give Republicans throughout the area a voice in the shaping of the Platform and an opportunity to be heard. All interested persons are invited and urged to attend."

Vice-Chairman of the Newton Republican City Committee, Mrs. Campbell is also a member of the State Issues Committee and vice-president of the State Federation of Republican Women. She was program chairman of Newton's recent Lincoln Day Dinner at which Republican National Committee Chairman George Bush spoke.

Serving with Mrs. Campbell on the committee for the hearings of Feb. 23 are Mrs. G. M. Swift, president of the Newton Women's Republican Club, and Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, a past president.

The Newton Republican City Committee, chaired by Julius L. Mason, is expected to have a draft of the proposed 1974 Platform available for discussion and review at its forthcoming general meeting, Mrs. Campbell noted.

Post Office robberies down

Cash and stamp losses from post office burglaries during the year ending Dec. 31, 1973, reached the lowest level in a decade, the Postal Service announced today.

During calendar 1973, such losses amounted to $310,000, the lowest level since 1963. This is an 86 per cent drop from the $2.2 million in losses from postal burglaries during 1970.

Losses were down to $802,000 in Calendar Year 1971 and further reduced to $361,000 in 1972.

The continual decline is attributed mainly to increased investigative and preventive measures taken by the Postal Inspection Service. Burglar alarms and other security devices have been installed in approximately 7,700 postal facilities. Some 30,000 security containers are in use throughout the postal system.

Another deterrent has been the aggressive action taken by the Postal Inspection Service to apprehend and arrest members of organized gangs of thieves. During the past year some 400 persons were arrested and 375 offenders were convicted on burglary charges.

Number one in philanthropy

Over 50 post offices have names of three presidents

For more than 50 of the nation's post offices, February is a month of special meaning and a time when postal clerks might give special thanks for the growing use of ZIP Code.

The 50-plus are offices which bear the same names as the three U.S. presidents born in February: Washington, Lincoln and William Henry Harrison. Each one of these offices has its own distinctive ZIP Code, helping to reduce situations such as those when, for example, letters to Washington, D.C., sometimes went to Washington, N.C., and vice—versa.

In addition to those two, there are 24 other Washingtons, not to mention many post offices, branches and stations which have "Washington" included in their names, such as the three Washingtonvilles (New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania).

Eighteen post offices bear the Lincoln name. And, there are numerous other post offices, stations and branches which have "Lincoln" as a part of their name; for example, Indiana and Oregon each have a Lincoln City Post Office.

There are 13 "Harrison" post offices plus other offices with Harrison as part of their names. However, it is not clear how many might have been named in honor of William Henry Harrison, the ninth president, who died at 68 after only one month in office. He was born Feb. 9, 1773.

The largest Washington with a post office, the Nation's Capital, dates back to July, 1795, during George Washington's presidency and five years before the District of Columbia became the seat of the federal government.

Besides Washington, Lincoln and Harrison, many presidents and prominent Americans have a number of post offices named after them. This duplication of names was a more commonplace cause of misdirected mail before the advent of the five digit ZIP Codes in 1963 provided every post office with its own identifying number. Post offices named for such other presidents as Jefferson, Jackson, Madison and Monroe run into the dozens.

The washington post offices, in addition to the D.C. and North Carolina offices, include those in Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

The Lincoln post offices are in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Texas and Washington.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

PRAYER PLANT: The so-called "rabbit track plant" or Prayer Plant (Maranta) is a favorite house plant. Coming from Brazil, it has broad, bright-green leaves with rows of brownish to dark green blotches on either side of the mid-vein hence the common name of "rabbit track plant." At night the plant's leaves fold upward as if in prayer, hence the other common name of "Prayer Plant."

Culture: It likes a bright window but not direct sunlight. Best soil is a mixture of equal parts of sand, peat and loam. Keep the soil uniformly moistened, but not soggy. This item likes a warm temperature, 72 degrees or so. Temperatures in the 60's or lower will cause the leaves to turn yellow.

Some gardeners feel that the plant likes to rest in January and February, and will keep the soil more or less on the dry side during those months. Star new plants by division anytime of the year.

NOTE: Growing the maranta in glazed containers can be tricky. If you over water or if the drainage is poor, leaves will droop and rotting sets in.

CABBAGE TROUBLES: Cabbage and all members of the family — cauliflower, broccoli, Brussel sprouts, kohlrabi, are susceptible to clubroot ("Finger and toe") disease, a fungus that persists for many years in acid soils. If you look on the roots of sickly or yellowed plants you'll find ugly lumps, which give rise to the name of clubroot or clubfoot. The slime mold fungus can live in the soil for at least six or seven years.

CONTROL: Grow your seedlings in virgin soil. Never set out plants having small swellings on roots, and rotate your crops. Chemical control consists of using Terraclor at planting time. Mix six tablespoons of Terraclor to a gallon of water and use one-half pint of the solution to each hole you set a plant in. Terraclor is also sold under the shortened name of PCNB and is available in all garden stores. Also add hydrated lime to your soil so that the alkalinity (sweetness) is around pH 7.

Taxpayers may take part in election campaign fund

Massachusetts taxpayers preparing their 1973 tax returns can take part in the 1976 Presidential Election Campaign Fund by checking a box on the front of their Form 1040 or 1040A, John E. Foristall, acting district director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts, said today.

"Under legislation enacted by Congress in 1971, every taxpayer with a tax liability of $1 or more for 1973 may designate $1 of his tax to the 1976 Campaign Fund if he wishes to do so," Foristall said. "And, if he hasn't already done so, he may also designate $1 of his 1972 tax to the same fund."

The Campaign Fund question appears as line 8 on both the short Form 1040A and the 1040 Form. If a taxpayer didn't earmark $1 of his 1972 taxes for the fund, he can do so by checking the box just above his signature on either form.

On a joint return, a husband and wife with an income tax liability of $2 or more may each designate $1 for the fund, for a total of $2. If a husband wishes to designate $1 and his wife does not, or vice versa, one should check the appropriate box and leave the other box blank.

"Participation by a taxpayer in the Campaign Fund will neither increase his tax nor reduce any refund due," Foristall said.

Taxpayers cannot specify a political party to receive the money they designate to the fund," he said. "The fund will be distributed on a non-partisan basis to all eligible candidates."

Psychiatric unit opens at hospital

Representatives of 15 agencies working in the mental health and allied fields in Newton, Wellesley and Weston reviewed the new 21-bed psychiatric unit at Newton-Wellesley Hospital recently. The unit officially accepted its first patients on Feb. 19.

The new psychiatric unit provides a new resource in the existingnetwork of mental health agencies and departments in this area and is officially part of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Comprehensive Community Mental Health Center. Director is Dr. Carl N. Brownsberger, recently appointed chief of psychiatry at Newton-Wellesley.

Among participating agencies at a recent review were Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center, Wellesley Human Relations Service, the Mayor's Health Advisory Health Committee of Newton,the Visiting Nurse Association, the Newton Department of Public Health, and the hospital's Outpatient Psychiatric Department.

Brownsberger stated that patients 15 years or older requiring psychiatric hospitalization can be admitted. The unit is unlocked. Admission is voluntary rather than legally coerced. Drug and alcohol abuse patients can be admitted after detoxification on other medical wards.

Brownsberger said that psychiatric treatments employed at the new unit cover a broad range of modalities: individual psychotherapy, group psychotherapy, activity groups, occupational therapy, family therapy, vocational guidance and planning for after-care when patients leave the hospital. Patients receive psychiatric medications and appropriate physical treatments indicated by their conditions.

In summer 1974, Newton-Wellesley Hospital intends to open a special unit for partial hospitalization which will be supervised by the psychiatric unit staff. Brownsberger expalained that partial hospitalization enables patients to participate in daytime therapy at the hospital and return home to sleep, or to continue working at present jobs while sleeping in the protective hospital environment.

Professional staff members working with Brownsberger include clinical supervisor Diane Miller, R.N. who coordinates nursing care in the unit, and psychiatric social worker Mrs. Fay Linden, working with patients and their families. Chief occupational therapist is Mrs. Charmagne LaPrise. All three women have had extensive experience in psychiatric hospitals and centers.

All clements of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Comprehensive Community Mental Health Center are under the supervision of the state Department of Mental Health through the area mental health and mental retardation area office. Specific agencies and institutions in the center are: the Newton-Wellesley inpatient unit; the state-supported outpatient psychiatric clinc at Newton-Wellesley Hospital for adults; the Newton Guidance Clinic and Wellesley Human Relations Service, both focusing on young persons; Medfield State Hospital and Wrentham and Fernald State schools.

Local residents in Heart Fund drive

Atty. Robert P. Weintraub, chairman for the 1974 Newton Heart Fund drive, recently announced the names of seven local residents who have been assisting in the local Heart Fund drive.

They are Mrs. H. Henry Young of 22 Davie St., residential chairman; Mrs. Donald Perrin, of 315 Dedham St., special gifts chairman; Norman C. Aronson, general business chairman; Howard P. Strum, treasurer; Mrs. Robert P. Weintraub of 25 David Rd., special event chairman; Mrs. Mildren E. Tudor of 34 John St., clubs of organizations chairman and James Bergantino, in-plant solicitations.

This is the second year of the Board of Directors of the Womwn's Division of the Greater Boston Heart Association. Aronson is general business chairman for the second year; Mrs. Tudor is clubs and organizations chairman for the third time, and Strum has been treasurer of the Newton drive for many years.

Auto center

Bill Crowley, "If you've got to shovel yourself a little tunnel)in order to get to the car to fix a transmission, you've got a problem." And most of the tools they use, they say, are, in fact, instructor Connolly's own tools, not tools subsidized by the city.

Another of the students: "They say there are a few aldermen that are stopping this. I suppose all their kids went to college. They think everybody else will."

Principal Ernest Van B. Seasholes has thrown his upport behind the center. "I very much support the students. . . It (the center) is importqnt not jus for the kids that are immediately involved, but for the whole life of the school."

James Salter, chief administrative officer to Mayor Mann, says, "The mayor is actively interested in seeing it go through at a reasonable cost."

Alderman Sisney Small, chairman of the Board's Finance Committee–and who has had children at Newton South–has gone on record opposing the center. In defense of his position, he emphasizes his own concept of the existing South program, which seems to be different from the concept the students have.

"We were told a year ago", he says, "that the program at South was an experimental proram, designed to determine the aptitude and abilities of the students taking the course at South. The idea waa that the best qualified students would then be sent over to take part in the Newton North program. . .Nobody from the school department or from Newton South has ever told me that the original plan of an experimental plan at Newton South was any different."

He also says, "If I were in the position of the students, I expect I would be doing the same kinds of things they're doing. . .I appreciate what they have to say. . . But they are not in the same possession of facts and information that I am in possession of." He is angry, for example, at the history of the South center proposals. "A year ago, the school originally asked for $20,000. After getting the $2,000, they then went out and did a study for $1000–that study should have been done beforehand." First, he says, they asked "for $20,000, altered it to $80,000, then went to $115,000,–all in a year's time." He also refutes the pro-center arguement that the cost of daily bus transportation would in time pay for the center itself, saying that there are additional facilitiy costs– to be taken into consideration.

In any case, a strike has been temporarily avereted at Noewton Souty. But the students in auto mechanics are still quite angry–they want their own auto center, and want it as soon as possible. And they will undoubtedly voice those feelings at the upcoming March 7 meeting at the school.

Alderman Edward Richmond, who is chairman of the Public Buildings Committee, and who will be presiding over the meeting, says, "It will be the fullest and fairest hearing which we can have. . .We want to give everybody–students, teachers, administrators–the fullest opportunity to speak their minds."

Crosby heading campaign

Father and son are very close, and the difference in politics does not in any way represent a rebellion against family or "the system," Harry Crosby said.

Stephen Crosby, a graduate of Harvard and Boston University Law School, most recently was employed as field director for a Department of Housing and Urban Development housing allowance program.

Crosby previously was executive secretary of the Fund for Negro Development, a part of the VISTA program, and worked briefly for the Metropolitan District Commission.

Crosby's political experience includes being a traveling aide to Sargent during his 1970 campaign for governor, and working for Lt. Gove. Donald Dwight as campaign coordinator and legislative assistant.

He thinks Watergate will have not too much effect on Sargent's chances for reelection,nor on other state offices, but "it looks as if Republican senators are having a hard time dissociating themselves from Watergate."

Sargent, Crosby pointed out, has never been identified with Nixon, and has strongly opposed him on several issues.

Harry Crosby, who says he is "terribly prejudiced" about his son, said he is "very impressed with him." "Everything he does, he does well."

Old Looks New

Some of the newest looks in men's wear from Spring '74 aren't new at all.

During the past two years, styles evolved from the flamboyant to more classic themes; men developed an eye for subtle color combinations, various textures and an appreciation of the skills of tailoring.

This means there will be great joy for many—if it's a relatively recent acquisition, very little hanging in your closet will be outdated. All you will have to shop for will be the usual fill-in finery to spruce it all up nicely.

But, if you find that you're very much in the market for clothes, you'll be staggered to discover the variety and scope of new clothes awaiting you . . handsome new textured fabrics, some of which are year 'round weights.

There is a new multi-purpose "Suit Wardrobe" . . . a Mixed-Suit idea that will warm the hearts of those who enjoyed the old vested, two-pants suit.

These Trios, Weekenders, and Fashion Fivers are carefully integrated selections. Many have extra color coordinates slack and a vest . . . sometimes a shirt or sweater and in some cases extra belts are thrown in.

This type of merchandising is particularly appealing for the man who loathes mixing and matching clothing on his own and appreciates a pre-selection made by fashion specialists. It's hard to go wrong with color and style coordinates handily available in one department. Though extras can be purchased separately, you're not required to buy the "package."

And while you're browsing around the men's department, you may find that prices are higher than they've been in years, as was predicted last summer. Concerned about this uncontrollable escallation, the Stevens Company did a bit of historical probing.

They were astonished to find, in an 1897 Sears Roebuck catalogue, that a man's suit, their most expensive worsted, was selling for $5.50. Since this seemed unbelievable, a trip to the Department of Commerce Library for census figures produced the following information: Carpenters, who would probably have shopped at Sears, had an annual income of $416.00, approximately $8.00 per week! This works out to an expenditure of 1.5 percent of an annual income for one suit. Next step was to find out what a carpenter earns now, and what he is currently spending for his Sears Suit. The average carpenter's income in 1973, overtime not included, was $11,000. The average cost of a Sears suit in 1973 was $61. This means he is now spending ½ percent per year for his suit.

Following are some highlights of Spring '74 for men:

The lean suit coat is slightly shorter this season. Taking their cue from the jacket, slacks follow the same slim lines. A subtle beige and brown plaid linen blend with Irish linen matches the yellow of a linen vest—shirt of palest beige and dark brown tie completes the look.

A bold plaid linen blend jacket and pants—it's a suit . . . it's slacks . . . it's a sportcoat. Worn with light or dark turtleneck sweaters or shirt, the suit is definitely a multi-purpose fashion.

The traditional shaped cord suit of 100 percent texturized polyester is a favorite for spring and summer. Recently a salesman in a men's shop spoke openly about synthetic fibers in men's clothing.

"Most garments nowadays," he said, "contain some synthetic fibers to minimize the problem of wrinkles. The cord-suit look in polyester double-knit is a sure fire item—I believe there are two places where knits are particularly good; one is the navy blazer and the other is the cord suit.

"The reason," he continued, "is that double-knits present problems. They snag, pull, run, bag. I receive at least four to five calls a day from people asking whether their suit is washable or should they take it to a cleaners. But," he smiled, "I must say that despite these occasional problems, thousands of men are enjoying their knit suits."

The Western look continues to be popular and for some it will be the abbreviated rancher jacket tossed over Lee's cuffed flares. Some overlay saddle seaming . . . flap patch pockets and front placket are all secured with shiny western snaps. Put it all together with a boldly striped tank top and striped belt.

Ready for this one? "Reverse Dr. Denton"—yup, drop-front spring sailor pants in pastel cotton corduroy have a neatly tailored, snap-secured curved front panel. Two front pockets are produced as the panel works its way into the side seems. Elasticized belting does away with the belt.

Expected to be one of the newest slacks this spring, oversize plaid trousers in 100 percent texturized polyester with skinny straight-leg. Worn with a brown and white version, a brown long sleeve shirt and white sleeveless pullover.

Not a surprise anymore, corduroy has a year-round status in men's clothing. In fact new faded Indigo blue corduroy is showing up in everything from jeans and jackets to men's tailored clothing.

The best look is achieved after several home launderings when the blue washes down and the corduroy achieves the worn appearance of years of wash and wear, especially at the seams. While the color stabilizes after five washings, the more shadowing and crow's feet achieved during the process, the better!

Casual styling, better fit, more color coordinated outfits—all these combine to make Spring '74 outfitting pure pleasure!

Taste treats at the Marriott

Can't make it to New Orleans to celebrate Mardi Gras? Quick—get in touch with the Marriott Hotel on Commonwealth Avenue, Newton, and make reservations for the great Mardi Gras weekend festival February 23-24!

Music, dancing, parades, costumes, prizes—all the excitement of a genuine Mardi Gras weekend festival—joyous sounds of jazz as you feast on famous creole dishes—merrymaking til the wee hours of the morning.

We were invited, along with three other food editors, to a pre-Mardi Gras food tasting party, and what a delicious sampling it was of famous native dishes.

It's interesting to note that when creole food is mentioned, the first dish that comes to mind is Shrimp Jambalaya. "Jambon" is the French word for ham and the name probably started in the Louisiana vocabulary as jambon a la ya, because "ya" is a kind of African word for rice and Jambalaya originally included ham and rice.

In tasting the food, at the party, the four hot dishes were arranged around a handsome firey red lobster nestled on a bed of crisp parsley. The Shrimp-and-Ham-Jambalaya was spiced "just right" with no skimping on the plump shrimp and pink cubes of ham smothered in a rich tomato rice sauce. Chicken Ponchatrain was a winey medley of succulent chicken pieces amidst delicate bits of artichoke and mushrooms. The corn dish, Indian-styled Stewed Corn and Tomatoes called Maquechou, was colorful, a bit on the mild side with traces of bacon flavoring. If you like hot, spicy food you'll love the Eggplant Jambalaya—wow! It had this editor reaching for a dish of cool, refreshing sherbet to quench the fire. Desserts were as rich and sighable as only the expert Marriott chefs could produce.

This will be the Marriott's fourth annual Mardi Gras celebration—a weekend you'll long remember. For those of you who plan to celebrate Mardi Gras at home, Chef Perry Isham offers the following recipes from the food tasting party:

SHRIMP-AND-HAM JAMBALAYA

2 cups water
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup short-grain white rice
2 pounds uncooked med. shrimp (20-24 to the pound)
6 tablespoons butter
1½ cups finely chopped onions
2 tablespoons finely chopped garlic
1 pound canned tomatoes, drained and finely chopped with liquid
3 tablespoons canned tomato paste
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
3 whole cloves, pulverized
½ teaspoon crumbled dried thyme
½ teaspoon ground hot red pepper (cayenne)
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 pound cooked lean smoked ham, trimmed of excess fat and cubed into ½-inch cubes

Bring water and 1 teaspoon salt to boil over high heat. Add rice, stir once or twice, and immediately cover pan. Reduce heat to low and simmer for about 20 minutes or til rice is tender and grains have absorbed all liquid in pan. Fluff rice with fork, cover and set aside. Shell shrimp. Devein and wash under cold water. Drop shrimp into enough boiling salted water to cover completely and cook briskly, uncovered, 4-5 minutes or til pink and firm. Transfer to bowl and set aside. In 5-6 quart casserole, melt butter over moderate heat. When foam begins to subside, add onions and garlic and, stirring frequently, cook for 5 min. or til soft and translucent but not brown. Add tomatoes, tomato liquid and tomato paste, stir over moderate heat for 5 min. Add celery, ground pepper, parsley, cloves, thyme, red pepper, black pepper and remaining tsp. of salt. Stirring frequently, cook uncovered over moderate heat til vegetables are tender and mixture is thick enough to hold its shape lightly in spoon. Add ham and stirring frequently, cook for 5 min. Stir in shrimp and when heated through, add reserved rice. Stir over moderate heat til mixture is hot and rice has absorbed any liquid in the pan. Taste for seasoning and serve at once directly from casserole or mounded in a heated bowl. Serves 6-8.

CHICKEN PONCHATRAIN

2 chickens (2½-3 lbs.) cut in 8 pieces
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cayenne
½ cup vegetable oil
4 tablespoons butter
¾ pound fresh mushrooms finely chopped (about 4 cups)
¼ cup flour
2 cups chicken stock
¼ cup thinly sliced pitted green olives
¼ cup dry sherry
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen artichoke hearts, freshly cooked

Dry chicken parts and season on all sides with salt and cayenne (red pepper). In 12-inch skillet, heat oil over moderate heat til light haze forms. Fry chicken in hot oil, starting pieces skin side down and turning them frequently with tongs for about 20 minutes or til brown richly and evenly. Arrange on heated platter and drape with foil to keep warm. Meanwhile, melt butter. When foam subsides, add the mushrooms and stirring occasionally, cook 5 minutes, or til mushrooms are tender and liquid that accumulates in the pan has evaporated. Do not let mushrooms brown. Remove pan from heat and reserve mushrooms. When chicken has cooked and been transferred to the platter, pour off all but 4 tablespoons remaining fat and add flour; mix well. Stirring constantly pour in chicken stock in slow thin stream and cook over high heat til sauce comes to boil, thickens heavily and is smooth. Reduce heat to low and simmer 2-3 minutes to remove the flour taste. Stir in mushrooms, olives, sherry and artichoke hearts, and simmer for 1 minute or longer to heat through. Taste for seasoning and serve at once. Serves 4.

SAUSAGE-AND-EGGPLANT JAMBALAYA

½ pound breakfast-type sausage, sliced ¼-inch thick
½ pound peperoni, sliced ¼-inch thick
½ cup finely chopped onions
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
1¼ cups uncooked rice
2½-3 cups water
½ teaspoon cayenne
1 tablespoon salt
2 med. eggplants (1 lb. ea.) stemmed, peeled and cut into ½-inch cubes

In 5-6 quart casserole, fry sausage slices over moderate heat, turning frequently til lightly browned and have rendered all fat. Transfer to paper towel to drain. Pour off all but 4 tablespoons fat remaining in skillet and add onions, green pepper, celery and garlic. Stirring frequently, cook over moderate heat for about 5 minutes or til vegetables are soft but not brown. Add rice and stir until grains are evenly moistened. Then add 2½ cups water, cayenne and salt and bring to boil over high heat. Stir in reserved sausage slices and eggplant, reduce heat to low and partially cover casserole. Simmer for about 45 minutes or until eggplant is tender and rice is soft and somewhat sticky. When fully cooked, most of the liquid in the jambalaya will have evaporated or been absorbed by the rice. While it is simmering, however, check the pot occasionally and add up to ½ cup more water, a few tablespoons at a time, if necessary. Taste for seasoning and serve at once directly from a casserole. Serves 4.

MAQUECHOU

(Indian-style Stewed Corn and Tomatoes)
¼ cup bacon drippings
2 medium onions, chopped coarsely
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
4 cups corn kernels
1 medium green pepper stemmed, quartered, seeded, deribbed and coarsely chopped
1 pound 12 oz. can whole tomatoes, drained and coarsely chopped
1 cup water
½ teaspoon cayenne
1½ teaspoons salt

In 4-5 quart casserole, melt bacon drippings over moderate heat. Add onions and garlic and stirring frequently, cook for about 5 minutes or til onions are soft and translucent but not brown. Stir in corn, green pepper, tomatoes and tomato liquid, water, red pepper and salt, and bring to boil over high heat. Reduce heat to low, cover casserole partially, and simmer for about 10 minutes, or til corn is tender. Taste for seasoning and serve at once, directly from casserole or from a heated bowl. Serves 4-6.

What a delight it was to share a plane seat with Mrs. Harold Jordan, one-time owner, with her husband, of the Jordan Motor Lodge Restaurant in Boothbay Harbor, Maine. Mrs. Jordan spoke of her two favorite dishes (the Blueberry Pie rarely had time to cool before her husband cut and served it to anxious clients. The Welsh Rarebit, she confessed, was a favorite at all her church suppers, and Mrs. Jordan promised that she would ask her husband to send in his specialty, Grapenut Pudding). Out thanks for:

THELMA JORDAN'S BLUEBERRY PIE

Crust:
2 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
Two-thirds cup Spry shortening
5 to 6 tablespoons cold water

Put shortening in bowl with flour. With pastry blender cut in shortening until in tiny particles. Add water slowly, tossing gently. With hands squeeze dough to make a ball. Divide in half; put one-half, rolled, into a 9-inch pie plate. Prepare filling:

3 cups fresh blueberries
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
Dash of cinnamon and nutmeg
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon fresh lemon juice

Combine blueberries, sugar, flour, salt and spices. Pour into pie shell. Top with butter, cut up, and drizzle lemon juice over all. Roll second half of the dough and place over blueberries; flute edges and cut a few vent holes in top pastry. Spread lightly with a tablespoon of milk and bake for 10 minutes in preheated 400 degree oven; reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for 1 hour.

WELSH RAREBIT

4-5 tablespoons margarine melted
Dash of cayenne pepper
7 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups cold milk
1 cup sharp Cheddar cheese, shredded
1 egg
Saltine crackers

Combine margarine, pepper, flour, dry mustard in deep saucepan. Add salt and milk; stir. Add cheese and cook sitrring constantly. When cheese is melted, beat 1 egg in a large bowl; dump cheese mixture into egg and mix; put back into saucepan and continue to stir until it comes to a boil BUT DO NOT ALLOW TO BOIL. Serve hot on saltine crackers. Serves 10.

Question: I received a large wok this past Christmas so I now do a lot of Oriental cooking. My husband enjoys everything new. I just cooked the enclosed recipe Tuesday of this week and it was quite tasty. Thank you very much. As I said, I enjoy your fashion and food columns. — Mrs. Philip Bialow, Newton Answer: Thank you for your kindness. It's always a pleasure to share a reader's recipe!

CHINESE RICE CASSEROLE

2 pounds round steak
1⅓ tablespoons oil
2 pimientos
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup chopped onion
¾ cup green pepper, chopped
6 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 tablespoon soy sauce
¼ teaspoon minced garlic
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 cup water
Salt and pepper to your taste
½ cup rice

Cut steak into small cubes and brown in wok or skillet. Drain pimientos, then chop. Add pimientos and mushrooms to steak. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Cover wok or skillet and bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour and 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Question: Would appreciate a recipe for grapenut pudding. Haven't been able to find one, even in the very old cookbooks. Thank you. — Mary Domenicucci,, Roslindale

Answer: We must have many grapenut pudding fanciers because this one request popa up more often than any other. The following is my favorite; I hope it will be yours.

GRAPENUT CUSTARD PUDDING

4 eggs
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ cups milk, heated
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
5 teaspoons grapenuts
Ground nutmeg

Heat oven to 300 degrees. Lightly grease (with butter or margarine) 5 six-ounce custard cups or a 1-quart baking dish. Beat eggs lightly; add sugar and salt. Slowly stir in heated milk and vanilla. Put 1 teaspoon grapenuts into each custard cup (or on the bottom of the baking dish). Pour milk mixture over grapenuts carefully. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Place in large pan and add 1-inch hot water to pan. Bake for 45-50 minutes or until a silver knife, inserted in center of custard, comes out clean. Remove from oven and hot water and chill.

MARVELOUS REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

6½ cups all purpose flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 egg
2 cups hot tap water

Early in day or up to 1 week ahead: 1. In large bowl, combine 2¼ cups flour, sugar, salt, yeast, add ½ cup margarine, softened. With mixer at low speed, gradually pour 2 cups hot tap water (120-130 F) into dry ingredients. Add egg, increase speed to medium and beat for 2 minutes, occasionally scraping bowl with spatula. Beat in ¾ cup flour or enough to make a thick batter; continue beating for 2 minutes, occasionally scraping bowl. With spoon, stir in enough additional flour, about 2½ cups, to make a soft dough. 2. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Shape dough into a ball and place in greased large bowl, turning over so that top of dough is greased. Cover with towel; let rise in warm place away from draft till doubled, about 1½ hours. Dough is doubled when 2 fingers pressed lightly into dough leave a dent. 3. Punch down dough by pushing down the center of dough with fist, then pushing edges of dough into center. Turn dough over, brush with salad oil. Cover bowl tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate, punching down the dough occasionally, till ready to use. About 2 hours before serving: 4. Remove dough from refrigerator, grease a 15½ x 10½-inch open roasting pan. Cut dough into 30 equal pieces; shape into balls and place in pan. Cover and let rise in warm place till doubled, 1½ hours. 5. Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Bake for 15-20 minutes till golden brown. Brush rolls with melted margarine. Remove from pans and serve. Yield about 2½ dozen delicious rolls.

They carried bouquets of yellow and white carnations. The ushers were Gino Villella, brother-in-law of the groom and Jose Bilotta. The flower girl was Pamela Argandona, niece of the bride and the ring bearer was Roberto Nicolozzo, nephew of the groom. Mrs. James Daschbach of Winchester was the organiat.

The new Mrs. Bonadio is a nurses' assistant at the Winchester Hospital. Her husband is a landscaper.

After a wedding tip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Bonadio will be at home at 156 River St., Newton.

Antique valentines on display at library

A collection of antique valentines is on display at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, now through through the end of February.

Robert D. McCarron of Newton has made available the display of valentines dating from the 1800's.

McCarron a chemist whose specialty is paper chemistry, has an extensive collection of paper ephemera. He is interested in good graphics and what happens to paper when it is printed, engraved and embossed.

Although the earliest observances of Valentine's Day occurred in the Middle Ages, the first record of a drawing or illustration connected with St. valentine's Day comes from the 17th century diary of Samuel Pepys.

In America, original valentine cards of a certain simplicity were exchanged among some of the colonists prior to the 18th century.

After 1723, the custom really began to grow with the import from England of valentine "writers" or booklets containing a vast array of verses and messages which could e copied onto decorative papers.

A reduction of postal rates brought about a great increase in the number of valentines sent. Today valentines are manufactured on an enormous scale. In the United Stares Valentine's Day greetings are second in number only to Christmas cards.

New Day Care Center to open in Newton Centre

The Newton Day Care Committee recently announced that Feb. 25 will be the opening date for its new Day Care Center. It will operate in the former Sacred Heart School at 80 Crescent Ave. in Newton Centre.

In making the announcement Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby, chairman of the committee, pointed out the ideal geographic location. "For years we have been searching for a site in that general area and are therefore particularly pleased that our negotiations with the parish of the Sacred Heart, represented by its pastor, Msgr. William A. Granville, have come to a successful conclusion.

"We are most grateful to the people of Sacred Heart for their generosity," she said.

The location of the new center is within walking distance of the Newton Centre MBTA stop and near major thoroughfares, such as Route 9, Centre street and Beacon street, in that part of the city.

Mrs. Willoughby also announced the appointment of Miss Pamela M. Putnam as teacher-director of the new Day Care facility.

The cneter will accept children between the ages of two years nine months and six years in its pre-school section, and children in grades one through four in its after-school department.

Tuition for the pre-school center is $40 a week, and for the afterschool center $25.00 a week. There is a registration fee of $10. Part time attendance may be negotiated if the registration load permits. The center will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

For further information about program and registration call Edith Babkey, director of Day Care Services at 969-5907.

The Newton Day Care Centers are sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., a non-profit, multi-service agency.

A pre-school day care center has been operated at capacity for the last four years in the United Presbyterian Church in Newton Corner. An after-school program opened last fall at Pomroy House, and a new unit which includes pre-school children with special needs has been incorporated and is operating in the Unitarian Church in West Newton.

The new opening in Newton Centre is in response to constant community demand for more day care space. It is also a very expensive undertaking for a non-profit agency. The community at large is therefore invited to support the inauguration of this service in any way possible.

There is need for money for initial staffing, equipment of all sorts, arts and crafts materials, rugs, pillows, games, kitchen and office equipment, small scale furniture and scholarships.

Anyone interested in helping and wishing further information may call Lilo Willoughby at 969-3486.

Nierman paintings at Concourse Gallery

The State Street Bank's Concourse Gallery is launching its 1974 season with an exhibiton by two area artists; "Paintings by Lewis G. Nierman and Drawings by Haig H. Toumayan".

Beginning is ninth year of presenting special art exhibitions for the community, the Concourse Gallery spotlights two men who studied art, then were drawn into other art-related fields and now have returned to concentrate seriously on their painting and drawing.

Boston born Lewis G. Nierman, now living at 735 Sawmill Brook Parkway in Newton, graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1961. After serving as a lieutenant in the U.S. Army in Korea, Japan and China, he began a career in Boston as an art dealer and appraiser of Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighttteenth and Nineteenth century master paintings.

Nierman has traveled throughout the world studying, purchasing and selling works by some of the world's great painters to museums and major art galleries.

Early in 1973, he began concentrating on his own landscapes. He says about his paintings, "I work for vibrating, not static canvases. . .the movements of wind; high-noon light; mid-summer heat; humidity; the contrasts of elements; the different effects of lighting angles on objects; the ways color and the movement of line can make us see and feel the elements around us."

The exhibition continues through March 15th at 225 Franklin St. Boston.

Drive ending

The 1974 contribution shares campaign of the Greater Boston "nai B'rith Councils is entering its final weeks.

A drawing will be held Wednesday, March 13, at Temple Emeth in Brookilkne. All members who have worked in the drive are invited to attend. Top ticket sellers will be honored.

The Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Visually Impaired in Newton has received a grant from Seeing Eye, Inc. to develop a New England regional training center for Optacon, a new device enabling the blind to read ordinary inkprint.

Frederick Picard III, executive director of the Carroll Center, announced details of the grant at a recent staff meeting.

The Carroll Center, formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind, specializes in the rehabilitation of flinded adults, emphasizing adjustment counseling, mobility and communication training and other skills needed to insure independence for the blind.

The Seeing Eye grant permits an extension of service to blind people who want to acquire more freedom and flexibility in reading skills.

Frederick Silver, administrator of the St. Paul's program at the Carroll Center, said training of staff will be launched about April 1, with supervision from Optacon-trained personnel. Initial training will include two blind persons, in addition to staff members, he said.

"We'll have the latest equipment available—everything needed to teach the system," Silver said.

Optacon equipment is lightweight and portable, and promises a new freedom to blind individuals, who frequently must depend on sighted readers or brailled materials prepared by various organizations serving the blind.

The Optacon (optical to tactile converter) unit is about the size of a cassette tape recorder and consists of a penlight-sized camera used to scan lines of print, electronically connected to displays of vibrating rods which reproduce the scanned letters in tactile form. The blind person feels with his fingertip precisely what the camera sees. An "a" feels like what an "a" looks like. "In this case, seeing is feeling," said Executive Director Picard.

After about fifty hours of training, an Optacon user is equipped with the basic skills of reading with the new system. At that point, he no longer needs instruction and can proceed alone to proficiency through practice.

Speed in reading with Optacon is slower than braille. An average rate after training instruction is about 20-30 words per minute, with up to 60-80 reported later. Good braille readers can absorb 180 words per minute, and new speedreading systems have not yet been devised for Optacon, but several investigators are working to develop them.

Unlike braille, which is essentially a code, Optacon provides a direct translation of printed matter. And more important, the blind user is completely independent to read what he wants, when he wants. There is no waiting period while someone else prepares the material.

"The Optacon is a useful tool, filling a special need," said Picard. "It is also a highly promising device for many who now use braille only. But we have to keep in mind that not all blind persons will be able to use the system," he said.

Diabetes, which can lead to blindness through diabetic retinopathy, can also cause a reduction in tactile perception which may interfere with Optacon use.

"For others, however, it may provide the link to the sighted world that will permit more effective rehabilitation than ever before," he continued.

Immediate access to the world of print—not only books and newspapers, but also correspondence, labels, directories and electronic calculator displays—is usually denied blind people. Optacon can open these previously closed channels of communication.

The Optacon concept was developed by Dr. John G. Linvill, chairman of Stanford University's Electrical Engineering Department, as an aid for his blind daughter, now a senior at Stanford. Linvill collaborated with Dr. James Bliss and Linville, aided by over sixty associates and graduate students and $2 million in federal research funds, perfected the system through over seven years of research.

Important discoveries made during the time of their research included discovering the significance to reading performance of high-resolution, two-dimensional tactile images, and the efficacy of piezoelectric reeds to create that image.

The Optacon tactile screen is composed of 144 miniature rods arranged in 24 rows and six columns, permitting a considerable increase in resolution of image compared to other research efforts. Extensive research in tactile phenomenon resulted in a clear image, painless to the touch.

Several controls are used in operating Optacon equipment. One adjusts the magnification of the camera image to compensate for differences in sizes of type. Another, much like the volume control on a radio adjusts the intensity of the vibrating reeds. A threshold adjustment knob determines what light intensity will cause the reeds to vibrate, compensating for differences in reflectivity of inks and papers. Another switch changes the circuitry to permit reading white letters on a dark background or luminous displays such as on electronic calculators.

The Carroll Center training program will focus on individualized instruction. Enrollment will not be restricted to people undergoing rehabilitation training at the Carroll Center, nor will preference be shown those trainees. It is expected that enrollment will come from throughout the New England area.

The Carroll Center, formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind, was recently renamed in honor of the late Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, who died in April, 1971. Father Carroll headed the nonsectarian agency for 25 years and was an internationally known pioneer in the field of rehabilitation for blind people.

DR. SADAMU ISHIKAWA of Newton Centre, was the recipient of a Christmas Seal medical research grant presented recently by the American Lung Association. The doctor is the director of the pulmonary department at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital and is conducting research on chronic obstructive lung disease.

Rotary clubs observe anniversary Monday

The Rotary Club of Newton will join more than 15,800 Rotary clubs in 150 countries Monday (Feb. 25) in the observance of the 69yh anniversary of the organization's founding.

According to Newton Rotary president Chester Mosher, the club will makr the occasion with a program featuring Rev. Oscar A. Guinn Jr., a member of Rotary clubs in Malaya, Singapore and Needham.

Six months later, the club had 21 members. In 1910, theree were 16 Rotary clubs and about 1500 Rotarians. Alsso in that year, the first club was formed outside of this country in Winnipeg, Canada.

Today, there are 743,000 business and professional men around the world who are Rotary members.

Linvill collaborated with Dr. James Bliss and Linville, aided by over sixty associates and graduate students and $2 million in federal research funds, perfected the system through over seven years of research.

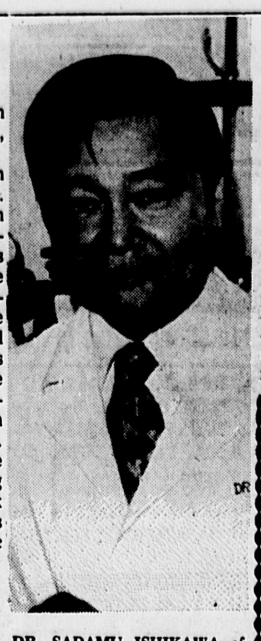
Important discoveries made during the time of their research included discovering the significance to reading performance of high-resolution, two-dimensional tactile images, and the efficacy of piezoelectric reeds to create that image.

The Optacon tactile screen is composed of 144 miniature rods arranged in 24 rows and six columns, permitting a considerable increase in resolution of image compared to other research efforts. Extensive research in tactile phenomenon resulted in a clear image, painless to the touch.

Several controls are used in operating Optacon equipment. One adjusts the magnification of the camera image to compensate for differences in sizes of type. Another, much like the volume control on a radio adjusts the intensity of the vibrating reeds. A threshold adjustment knob determines what light intensity will cause the reeds to vibrate, compensating for differences in reflectivity of inks and papers. Another switch changes the circuitry to permit reading white letters on a dark background or luminous displays such as on electronic calculators.

The Carroll Center training program will focus on individualized instruction. Enrollment will not be restricted to people undergoing rehabilitation training at the Carroll Center, nor will preference be shown those trainees. It is expected that enrollment will come from throughout the New England area.

The Carroll Center, formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind, was recently renamed in honor of the late Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, who died in April, 1971. Father Carroll headed the nonsectarian agency for 25 years and was an internationally known pioneer in the field of rehabilitation for blind people.



DR. SADAMU ISHIKAWA of Newton Centre, was the recipient of a Christmas Seal medical research grant presented recently by the American Lung Association. The doctor is the director of the pulmonary department at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital and is conducting research on chronic obstructive lung disease.

The Rotary Club of Newton will join more than 15,800 Rotary clubs in 150 countries Monday (Feb. 25) in the observance of the 69yh anniversary of the organization's founding.

According to Newton Rotary president Chester Mosher, the club will makr the occasion with a program featuring Rev. Oscar A. Guinn Jr., a member of Rotary clubs in Malaya, Singapore and Needham.

Six months later, the club had 21 members. In 1910, theree were 16 Rotary clubs and about 1500 Rotarians. Alsso in that year, the first club was formed outside of this country in Winnipeg, Canada.

Today, there are 743,000 business and professional men around the world who are Rotary members.

Newton's club was founded in 1923 and has 83 members.

Tigers qualify for State Tournament

By JACK GREEN

Newton North's basketball team has qualified for the State Tournament.

Center Peter Laskaris gave two outstanding performances recently to help Newton to two wins. The Rigers upped their record to 14-5 overall, and 11-5 in Suburban League competition.

Newton defeated Weymouth South, 81-68, last week to qualify for the tournament. Laskaris led all scorers with 34 points. Tigers Keith Glasser and Jack Ryan had 14 and 11 points. Tigers Keith Glasser and Jack Ryan had 14 and 11 points, respectively.

Laskaris scored 31 points in a 77-68 victory over Rindge Tech on Feb. 19. Rindge had defeated the Tigers earlier in the season.

Newton led 26-18 after one quarter. Laskaris and Mark Wasserman helped the Tigers to a 41-25 halftime advantage.

Rindge socred 11 straight points during one stretch in the third period and cut Newton's lead to six points. A basket by Laskaris upped the lead to 10 points. The Tigers led after three quarters. 60-48.

Wasserman scored 16 points in the game.

Harold Dottin had 33 points for Rindge.

Newton North swimmers lose to Waltham, 88-83

By RICK GORDON

Newton NORTH'S SWIMMERS STAGED A LATE RALLY, PULLING IN FRONT BY A SINGLE POINT, BEFORE Waltham surged back at the finish to emerge victorious 88-83 in a meet last week.

The loss brought the Tigers' first seson to a close. They finishd with a 3-9 record. The numbers mean little as Coach Benn Merritt explains the important thing is to get by the first year and gain competitive swimming experience.

The Tigers took a ten point lead as Jay Jassett, Kurt Pohlman, John Wish and Ed Devine won the medley relay. Nick Antoniades, Alex Schipira, Co-Capt John Mescall and John Volante finished second. In twelve contests this season Newton picked up six firsts and seven seconds in this event.

Sophomore Gil Pementel earned second place in both the 200 and 500 yard freestyle races. Pementel, the Tigers' strongest distance man and only victor in either of the long races this year, will return next season along with rapidly improving sophomore Steve Schaefer.

Bob Hershfield took third for Newton in the individual medley against Waltham. Senior Co-Captain Scott Eston was the only Newton swimmer to finish better than third in that event all season.

Second, third and fourth in the 50 yard freestyle went to Scott Pohlman, Eston, and Dale Syherrs respectively. these three were the most consistent short distance freestylers for Newton. Pohlman earned the most victories. His fourth place finish was the best Tiger finish in the 100 yard freestyle against Waltham.

David Fishkind, Newton's only senior diver, was the best performer off the board this year. Fishkind took first place five times. Ken Freedberg and Paul Gentile each won the event once. In the Waltham meet Fishkind took third behind Waltham senior, Mike Salamone, and sophomore Mark Spencer.

John Wish and Bob Hershfield finished first and second in the butterfly in the final meet. Wish, a sophomore, earned four firsts and never finished lower than third in the butterfly this season.

Nick Antoniades and Jay Jassett battled each other throughout the year for the number one backstroker spot. Jassett's victories over Antoniades in the final three meets (including Waltham) left the duel at a standoff after Antoniades' early season dominance.

Kurt Pohlman was a top senior competitor. Pohlman, a Tiger breaststroker, earned only one first all season, that against Waltham, but only once was lower than third place. Eston, who stopped swimming the event mid-way through the yar, ahd three firsts and a second in the first four Tigers meets.

In the freestyle relay, Syphers, John Volante, Eston and Scott Pohlman needed a first to clinch a Newton win but finished second. Over the year, various conbinations of freestylers triumphed in this race eight times.

Coach Merritt indicated that he was extremely delighted with the season and not concerned with the record. "We had a great, great year. They did a hell of a job," said the coach.

Merritt added, "We've got the first year out of our system. He looks to the future optimistically. "We're really losing some great kids. But we've got back-ups in every event. All I can do is just look to next year."

Wrestlers finish with 12-2 record

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Newton South's wrestling team, coached by Aredis Kojoyian, had a 12-2 record in dual meet competition this season.

The Lions won their first 10 matches, but were defeated by Wayland and Waltham in successive matches.

Junior Bob Paisner wrestled in the 100-pound division. He finished with a 5-6 record.

Mike Shockett was outstanding in the 107-pound class. He was undefeated with a 12-0 record.

Captain Paul Linn finished with a fine 10-2-2 record.

Senior Brad Anthony lost several matches in third periods and had a 5-5-2 record. He wrestled in the 121-pount class.

In the 128 pound division, junior Peter Nathanson had a 12-2 record.

Junior Howie Appelstein was 8-4 in the 134-pound class.

Senior Art Murphy had a 10-3 record in the 140-pound class. Murphy's older brother, Paul, has a fine record at Boston State.

Junior Greg Moan was 5-7-1 in the 147-pound division.

In the 157-pound class, junior Aaron Moynihan finished with a 6-8 record.

Haskell Kingston was sidelined by illness and sophomore Keith Washington filled in for him.

Kingston was the only South wrestler to have a first place finish in the UMass tournament in December.

Junior Peter Maples was undefeated in the 177-pound division. Maples had 12 wins and two ties.

Senior Walt Fatini finished with a 6-6 record in the 187-pgund class. Fatini missed his entire junior season with a knee injury.

In the heavyweight division, junior Scott Groper had a 6-4 record.

The team's overall success can be attributed to Kojoyian. He works his wrestlers into good physical condition.

Three South wrestlers win district championships

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Three Newton South wrestlers were seeded first in a district tournament held recently at Framingham North. All three wrestlers became district champions... Senior Mike Shockett defeated three opponents to win first place in the 107-pound class. Shockett did not have to wrestle in the semi-final round because his prospective opponent did not achieve a proper weight.

Junior Peter Nathanson became a district champion in the 128-pound class. Nathanson pinned two opponents and won two other matches on decisions.

Junior Peter Maples finished first in the 177-pound class. In his final round, Maples was tied with his opponent, 2-2, with little regulation time remaining. Maples won, 4-2.

Paul Linn placed third in the 114-pound class. In his semi-final match, Linn wrestled against top-seeded Mark Koslowski of Wayland. There was no score through regulation time and overtime. The referee declared Kozlowski the winner.

South wrestlers Art Murphy and Aaron Moynihan also qualified for the State Tournament with fourth place finishes.

Howie Appelstein was fifth in his class, and Bob Paisner and Walt Fatini had sixth place finishes.

As a team, the Lions placed fourth, behind Wayland, Milford and Concord-Carlisle.

South hockey team wins; Tresca scores four goals

By MARK COOPER

Four goals by senior Steve Tresca gave Newton South's hockey team a 4 to 2 victory over Weston last week.

Tresca upped his season goal total to 15 and the team improved its record to 3-8-1.

The game was tied, 2-2, with seven minutes remaining. up to that point, the game had been a defensive battle. Goalies Dave Satter of Newton South and Rich Caples of Weston made fine saves.

Tresca scored the first goal of the game at 3:52 of the first period. He pokced a loose puck through the pads of Caples. The goal was unassisted.

Less than two minutes later, Weston tied the score. Steve Palmer won a face-off in the Lions' end and left the puck for Jay Devine. Devine gave the puck to Jim Butler, and Butler fired it past Satter.

Weston gained a 2-1 lead in the second period. After a save by Satter, an uncovered Wildcat scored.

With less than a minute remaining in the second period, South's Jeff Randall gave Tresca a fine lead pass and Tresca scored on a breakaway, tieing the score.

Satter was injured in the third period, and Bob Driscoll became the South goalie.

Tresca's third goal was unassisted. He showed fine stickhandling and fired a wrist shot over the Weston goalie's shoulder.

Tresca's final goal followed a slap shot by Jeff Randall.

Gary Good honored

Gary Good, director of instrumental music at Newton North High School was honored by the Clarence, New York High School recently.

Good, who came to Newton in September of this school year, guest conducted a concert of Clarence students at Kleinhans Music Hall, Buffalo, New York.

A dinner was given in his honor and individual schools in Clarence entertained Good on this return to the community where he had student taught, while studying at the Eastman School of Music, and where he then taught for two and a half years.

Good gained his Master's degree at Hartt College where he was appointed graduate assistant and teacher of instrumental music. For two years he directed music in the schools in West Hartford, Connecticut and was instrumental music staff member in the Plant Junior High.

He is now studying at Boston University toward a Doctorate Degree.

BOSTON NATICK

South basketball team loses, rebounds with win

By BRUCE BOYNICK

The Newton South basketball team droppped a 62-48 decision to the Concord-Carlisle Patriots last week at the South High Gym.

The Lions bounced back to defeat the Weston Wildcats 59-47.

Prior to their loss, the Lions were tied with Concord for second place in the Dual County League behind league-leading Bedford.

But Concord, with torrid shooting by senior Randy Murdock nine for 11, and 20 points), and numerous breakaway and fast break layups, took over sole possession of second place.

The Lions trailed 16-12 after one quarter of play. A long bomb by Murdock with no time remaining in the half, gave Concord a 35-26 lead at intermission. Concord expanded its lead before South came back to remain in triking distance until late in the contest.

The Newton South scoring was led by big men Bob Harris, Bob Lent, and Steve Korn tallying 13, 10, and nine points, respectively.

Against Weston, the Lions downed the Wildcats on the strength of Bob Harris' 25 point performance. The 6'2" forward had eleven field goals on short jumpers, strong drives to the basket, and follow-up jumpers.

Eight first quarter points by Harris helped the Lions to a 14-13 first quarter advantage. Three second quarter baskets by junior guard Mark Aronson and some strong defense were instrumental in giving the Lions a 28-20 halftime lead.

Weston fought back in the third quarter to come within five points at 42-37.

The Lions roared back in the fourth quarter. Harris tallied 10 points, and South won 59-47.

Junior guard Howie Pinderhughes gave an outstanding performance, controlling the tempo of the game. He finished with four points and numerous assists.

(Ed. Note: Newton South qualified for the State Tournament with a 71-58 win over Wayland on Feb. 19.)

276 runners in local marathon

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Mailmen aren't the only men dedicated to performance of their duty. Neither snow, wind, or icy streets will prevent a long-distance runner from completing his appointed rounds either.

Two-hundred and seventy-six harriers took off from historic Hopkinton, the starting site of the Boston Marathon, Sunday, the largest group of starters ever for the annul Silver Lake Dodge Washington's Birthday Race. Joe Crowley, ex-Northeastern University cross-country captain completed the rounds first.

Crowley, a top NU competitor and a former school boy star at St. Mary's of Lynn, edged Tom Dederian, by one second in a swift (for the conditions) 1:47:17.

The 2-mile run, which follows the BAA course for 17½ miles before veering off and finishing on Watertown Street in Newton, doubled as the New England AAU 30-kilometer championship.

The rest of the top ten included: Wayne Frongello, BAA; Scott Graham, unattached; Ralph Thomas, Augusta, Me.; Chris Chambers, unattached; John Cedarholm, unattached; Bob Thomas, unattached; Rick Bayko, North Medford Club; Peter Stipe, BAA.

Commentary

Post-season tournament possible for B.C. cagers

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

These youngsters have pulled themselves together with surprising swiftness. The occasional lapses they suffer because of youth have been virtually obscured by talent and yet, cohesiveness. The Boston College basketball team is going some place.

All the bowl games the football team hasn't made it to in recent years could be atoned for by the Eagle cagers, who with only three seniors on the team, are a cinch for the NIT and have an outside change of making the NCAA's.

Last week, with five games remaining, the Eagles stood at 16-5, a record which could carry them to New York in March.

One future opponent is Connecticut. An item of particular interest before BC plays Connecticut is the squads' comparative marks against Syracuse, another strong Eastern team.

BC got belted around pretty good in Northern country, but UConn prevailed up there, 61-60.

Last week the Eagles won number 15 over an unheralded but strong team. The Eagle offense was running smoothly and defeated St. Francis, 86-73 at Roberts Center.

Guard Mel Weldon, who has been playing defense like K.C. Jones all winter, scored 14 points and handed off eight passes for buckets.

Forward Bob Carrington, 19, guard Jere Nolan, 16 and center Billy Collins, 14, also helped.

Win number 16 came surprisingly easily over a well-respected Penn State quintet, thought to be better than its 12-10 record.

The Eagles got first-rate efforts from Carrington, 21 points, 10 rebounds, Nolan, 14 points, 12 assists, and Collins, 11 points, 14 rebounds, Mark Raterink had 26 points in an 86-72 decision at Roberts Center.

The Eagles are 11-1 since the first of the year...Nolan, the quarterback of the offense, has become a fixture on the ECAC weekly All-Star team--three weeks in a row...Carrington is the leading scorer with 19.5 ppg...Senior Raterink is next with 12 per contest...Nolan is the only other player in double figures with slightly under 12...All three, plus Collins are well over 50 percent on their floor shooting...6'10" freshman Paul Berwanger gets better and better.

Junior high season ends

The Newton junior high basketball teams finished their seasons recently. Each tram had eight city games and five games with teams outside the "city-league".

There was a three-way tie; three teams (Bigelow, Warren, and Day) ended up with a league record of 6-2.

In some of the final action, Bigelow defeated Weeks 44-38. For Bigelow, John Dimambro had 11 points, Bob Martin, 10, and Mark Rosenburg, 9.

In a game that sent three teams into a three-way deadlock, Bigelow defeated Day 51-49. For Bigelow, John Dimambro had 23 points, and Kevin Hinchey scored 13 points.

Bicentennial Committee plans

Newton is planning for the country's bicentennial celebration, which begins just a little more than a year from now.

Mayor Theodore Mann's American Revolution Bicentennial Planning Committee, under the co-chairmanship of Ald. Wendell Bauckman and Mrs. Esther Steinberg, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Jackson Homestead, "hopes to honor and re-affirm the real spirit of 1776 through projects of lasting value which will revitalize our sense of community, improve the quality of our enviornment and help to provide a basis for living and growing together in our third centry as a free people."

The committee hopes to formulate plans that celebrate "not only the moment of our birth, but the 200-year lifetime of our nation and people; who we are as a community, where we have come from and where we would like to go."

The committee hopes to follow the example set by the Newton Centennial celebration and run all programs on a self-liquidating basis. Programs proposed so far include the creation of an arborway; an opening-day people's fair on the grounds of City Hall; improvement of markers of the Revolutionary era in Newton's cemeteries; historical bus trips; local beautification projects; and the creation of an historic environmental-conservation bike path through the city.

The members of the Committee are: John Nixon, chairman of the Newton Historical Commission; Mrs. Virginia Tashjian, chief librarian for the city of Newton; Charles Thomas, city planner; Edward Lerner, Social Studies coordinator for the Newton School Department; Alan Larkin; Mrs. Anne Frager; Mrs. Maria Sullivan; Roger Marrocco; Mrs. Linda Plout; and Mrs. Richard Foley.

Explanation of community schools

By JUDITH DEAN

The community school movement in Newton has been growing steadily since 1967.

As a result of an ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen late in 1973 setting up a Community School Commission, the community schools existing now find themselves in the spotlight.

A community school is a school which reaches out into its community and shares its resources. It also profits from the resources which exist within the community.

Community schools have existed in the United States since the 1930's and their numbers are constantly on the increase.

School officials in Newton became aware of the movement in the 60's and began trying to interest the many schools in Newton in the concept of community schools.

One of the first discoveries made by this group of administrators was that there were many school buildings in Newton which were serving as Community Schools and had been for many years. These schools had scout groups, women's clubs, and other local groups holding meeting in their facilities; had public libraries in their builings; and were very receptive to these groups.

These buildings "belong" to the taxpayers of the city. A large percentage of these taxpayers never enter a school building.

The ideal of community schools stresses that these buildings should be available to the local communities for their use. The question of "what use?" is more difficult to define since vital to the concept of community education in general and community schools in particular is the idea that each Community School must be unique and must develop on its own. Program or services which evolve around a community school reflect the identified wants and felt needs of its community.

Within this broad directive lie the possibilities for a wide range of activities, programs and services which can revolve around the school building. A community school can serve as a catalyst by providing leadership to mobilize community resources to solve community problems. At the heart of any community school is a concerned group of local citizens who act as a council and reflect feelings, needs, and wants of the community.

This council of local citizens can, acting as representatives of the community, decide what sorts of programs, if any, their school should offer, and can then act to implement these decisions.

Community schools are not trying to duplicate either adult education services or recreational services. They are trying to build upon and expand such existing services.

A city's overall community school program should include an adult education component and a recreation component, as well as other specialized programs and services. Each school should offer a program designed by community members and tailored to their needs and desires. The goals should be to increase participation in the community and to provide the opportunity for residents to create and control a service for themselves.

The fiscal realities of the 1970's have governed the growth of community schools in Newton to date. From 1967 to 1972 the Community School programs which existed were run by volunteers with no budgets.

Since 1972, when the School Committee voted a $10,000 appropriation to encourage the growth of more Community Schools, and the Aldermen and Mayor appropriated $5,000, many schools have developed programs. This city money has been appropriated after recommendations by a group of people from the existing community schools - The Community School Council - under the direction of Mrs. Florence Rubin of the Community Relations Commission sub-commiteee on Community Schools, and liaison Joseph Utka of the School Department.

Mrs. Rubin and the Aldermanic Education Committee helped write the community schools ordinance. This ordinanance sets up a nine-member commission made up of a mayoral appointee, a Recreation Commission appointee, Aldermanic and School Committee appointees, an appointee from the Community School Council and the Director of Human Resources.

This Commission is directed to submit a formal budget for the operation of community school programs; may solicit grants and accept gifts; and will to administer and establish general policy for community school programs. The Community School Council will continue to review all requests for funds and will submit these requests to the Commission.

It is hoped that this Commission will be the central organizing body around which developing community schools can gather, and from which established community schools can obtain specific assistant and support.

Annual musical marathon to aid Boston Symphony

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's fourth annual Musical Marathon presented by radio station WCRB (1330 AM-FM 102.5) to benefit the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops Orchestras begins at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 7 and will continue 'round the clock 24-hours a day until 1 a.m. Monday, March 11. Sponsored by the Council of Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the goal of this year's Musical Marathon is a record $85,000. The 1973 Musical Marathon had a goal of $65,000 and raised a total of $78,000.

Listeners will again have the rare opportunity to choose from over 2,500 exciting and historic performances by the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops listed in the 1974 edition of the Musical Marathon catalogue. The commercially unavailable performances were taped live in Symphony Hall, at Tanglewood and on tour in Europe, and were conducted by Music Director Seiji Ozawa, Arthur Fiedler, Serge Koussevitzky, Erich Leinsdorf and many other outstanding conductors who have directed the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Music requested will be broadcast for two full weeks beginning March 7.

Donors wishing to contribute to the Musical Marathon pledge $1 for every minute of music they wish to hear with a minimum contribution of $20. In addition to choosing their favorite music, donors may choose from several hundred premiums, many listed in the Musical Marathon catalogue.

A sampling of the premiums listed in this year's Catalogue include a Seiji Ozawa jigsaw puzzle in a can (available to all donors of $20 or more), BSO and Boston Pops tee shirts, canvas BSO tote bags, a ride (round trip, of course) in BSO bass player Joe Hearn's Schweitzer 2-33 sail plane with Hearn at the controls, a day of lobstering in the Boston harbor with bass player John Salkowski, a full day of ski instruction for 6 at a New Hampshire ski resort with BSO trumpet player Jerry Goguen, and even the chance to be a soloist with the Boston Pops in Symphony Hall this Spring!

There are squash and tennis games and golf matches with Orchestra members, a chance to challenge the BSO softball team (undefeated last year), gourmet dinners, outstanding recitals by members of the Orchestra, conducting lessons (for those of you who never quite mastered your Conductors Kits from the '73 Marathon), a concert by the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, and lots, lots more!

During the Marathon weekend listend for the special live radio interviews with Orchestra members, and listen for the many surprise premiums to be offered only during the four days of the Marathon.

For the first time this year, donors may charge their Marathon pledges on their Master Charge cards, making participation in the Marathon even easier.

Catalogues are now being distributed to BSO Friends and subscribers. If you would like a Catalogue sent to you, call (617) 891-1234 and we'll send you one immediately.

You can help the Marathon reach its goal of $85,000 by telephoning the special Musical Marathon phone number, (617) 891-1234 and request your music and premium now!

Charles N. Collatos Massachusetts Commissioner of Veterans' Services, today advised veterans and their families of new benefits now available for certain dependents of veterans.

Collatos referred to the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veteran's Administration (CHAMPVA) which authorizes the VA to provide medical care for the spouse or child of a veteran permanently and totally disabled (service-connected) and the widow or child of a veteran who died of service-connected condition. He explained:

"Basically, this program provides medical coverage for those eligible until they can come under the provisions of Medicare. Eligibility for a wife, widow, or helpless child ends at age 65. Eligibility for a child ends at age 18, or 23 if attending school."

Collatos went on to explain that for authorized hospital care, CHAMPVA pays 75 percent of the reasonable charges of the hospital and professional personnel. For authorized outpatient care, deductible-type benefits apply. For one beneficiary, the deductable is $50, for two or more of a family it is $100, and all deductibles must be paid each fiscal year. Once the deductible has been paid, CHAMPVA pays 75 per cent of the remaining reasonable charges.

The Commissioner added: "Participation in this program is entirely voluntary for the physician, hospital, or other source of medical care although eligible beneficiaries can use non-participating sources and file for reimbursement."

Veterans and dependents seeking more information may contact their local city or town Veterans' Services office or the main office at 100 Cambridge Street, Boston.

A mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

"Filter."
We have the most famous one of all—the Kent Micronite filter.

"Quality."
Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made. (Over 200 quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the milder, lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent.

"Freshness."
We pack Kent at the optimum freshness level and then overwrap the pack with a special cellophane that keeps it fresh.

Today in Education

By WILLIAM H. HEBERT
Executive Secretary
Massachusetts Teachers Assn.

"The Rising Cost of a College Education"

An extremely critical problem confronting higher education throughout the nation centers on what to do about the escalating costs of operating our colleges and universities, particularly the private schools.

Massachusetts is attempting to solve the financial problems of its colleges in several innovative and constructive ways.

Dr. Joseph M. Cronin, Massachusetts Secretary of Education, favors expansion of three types of programs designed to relieve the heavy financial burden on both the students and the schools.

The programs he favors are already operating on a limited basis. The first is the consortium approach. State aid is now being given to the Worcester Consortium, an organization of eight public and private colleges which share facilities, faculties and students.

The second program prpvodes student grants for expensive specialities not available at public colleges, such as dentistry and training in physical therapy.

Dr. Cronin also leans toward increasing the size of scholarships permitting students to make their own choices of schools. Massachusetts does this now on a small scale, granting $300 to students who attend public schools and $900 to those at private colleges. Dr. Cronin suggests that these figures could go much higher in the near future and therefore offer significant help to the needy student.

In recent months a number of individuals and study groups have come forward with proposals designed to save the country's hard-pressed private colleges and at the same time maintain low public college tuition fees so that the middle and low income student will not be shut out.

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education in Berkeley and the Committee for Economic Development in New York (CED) recommended that tuition at public colleges be more than doubled in the next few years. This plan is aimed at closing the tuition gap between the public and private colleges. Both organizations have said they want to help the private schools indirectly by giving most of the aid to the students instead of to the colleges. Presumably, more students would then attend private institutions.

Extensive criticism has been levelled at each of these proposals by educators at public schools who claim that public colleges and the middle class are being sacrificed in an attempt to rescue the private schools.

The Massachusetts Teachers Assn. (MTA), although strongly advocating massive state aid for the poor and middle income student who wants to attend college, and also sympathetic to the problems of the private schools, is very wary of any program which might add to the tax load of the middle income family who may be having great difficulty putting its child or children through the public colleges now.

Peter A. Janssen summed up much of the present financial dilemma facing the private schools in the December 1973 issue of Saturday Review-World. He said: "The basic problem (with Carnegie and CED) is that they take an economic approach to higher education. They are worried about institutions, not students. At a time when one of the greatest problems of American higher education is to open it to groups it has traditionally excluded, this is an odd sense of priorities. The recommendations treat higher education — particularly private higher education — simply as one more industry in trouble. The proposed solution, like the solution for the Penn Central, is to use the public's money to bail it out. Higher education in theUnited States, however, is not a railroad . . ."

Questions and answers on federal income tax

Editor's Note—The following questions and answers on the federal income tax are prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

Q. There are so many books on taxes on the market, can you recommend a good one for the average taxpayer to use?

A. The Internal Revenue Service cannot endorse any particular commercial publication. IRS has its own book Your Federal Income Tax which can be purchased at your local IRS office. This publication provices a relatively comprehensive explanation of individual income tax topics.

Q. I missed a lot of work because of illness last year. I hear that I may be able to reflect this to my benefit on my tax return this year. How is this done?

a. all or part of the money you received while out of work due to illness may be excludable from taxable income. In order to qualify for the sick pay exclusion you must meet the following requirements:

1. Sick pay plan must be provided by your employer.

2. Before excluding any amount as sick pay you must wait 30 days if you receive over 75 percent of your regular wages or 7 days if you receive less than 75 percent of your regular wages. If you were hospitalized and received under 75 percent of your regular wages there is no waiting period.

3. A new waiting period applies to each period of absence.

Form 2440, "Sick Pay Exlusion," showing the computation of excludable sick pay should be attached to the return.

Q. I pay $10 a month to an insurance company to cover the possibility of my not being able to work because of illness. They would then pay me $20 a day were I hospitalized for a week or more. Does this affect my taxes?

A. The premiums you pay for accident or health insurance are not deductible as medical insurance because policies providing payments for loss of earnings are not directly related to medical expense. However, income derived from the policy is not taxable since it is attributable to premiums paid by you.

Q. I was in an automobile accident and the other driver's insurance company ended up paying me $75,000 damages. Does this affect my tax return?

A. The proceeds from such a settlement are not taxable.

Q. During 1973 my employer transferred me from Nevada to Massachusetts. He paid part of my moving expenses. Is this income to me?

A. You must include all reimbursement as income on line 9, form 1040. However, If: a) the distance from your former place of business to your new residence is 50 or more miles greater than the distance from your old place of business to your ood residence and b) you are fully employed 39 of the 52 weeks immediately following your move, then you may be entitled to exclude some or all of your expenses. Use Form 3903 to compute your exclusion.

Q. I think I'm entitled to a moving expense exclusion. What expenses may I consider as possible excludable?

A. These expenses should be considered:

1) Travel expenses for you and your family while en route - including meals and lodgings.

2) Cost of moving household goods for you and your family.

3) Cost of pre-move househunting trips.

4) Cost of temporary quarters at the new location for the first thirty consecutive days after starting work, and

5) Cost of selling your residence or settling a lease.

Q. Must I itemize my deductions in order to exclude sick pay or moving expenses?

A. No, while you must file a Form 1040 (long form) to take these exclusions, you do not have to itemize deductions. You should take your exclusion on line 14, Form 1040, in order to arrive at your adjusted gross income (line 15, Form 1040).

Q. I was a student in New York prior to moving to Boston. Since I had no prior place of business I'm concerned that I won't be able to exclude my moving expenses. Is this the case?

A. You meet the distance test if your new place of work is at least 50 miles from your old residence.

Q. An accident while on my job caused me to become disabled at age 32. Now I've got a disability pension. Is this possible considered sick pay?

A. Yes, you may apply to sick pay exclusion rules to your disability pension until the time you reach normal retirement age (usually 65).

Q. I was an executor for a friend's estate. Are the fees I received taxable?

A. Executor's fees are taxable income and are subject to income and social security tax.

Q. I receive support from my ex-husband for me and my children. Is this money income?

A. Periodic payments you receive under a divorce decree, separation agreement or court order are alimony income to you if it is specified that the support is for you and the children.

Q. My sister is a student nurse. We're trying to do her tax return now and are trying to figure out what she has to include as income. The nursing school-hospital pays her a small salary and gives her room and board there.

A. Your sister's salary is income, but her room and board are considered a scholarship and are not taxable.

Q. When my wife died last January, our life insurance company notified me that I could either collect $50,000 now or receive installment payments for the rest of my life. I've decided to accept the installments. How do I treat this on my tax return?

A. Since you would not have to pay any tax on the $50,000 if you'd taken it in a lump sum (because you received it as the result of the death of the insured person, your wife), an amount equal to that will not be taxed as you receive it. Your insurance company can tell you what your life expectancy is at the time you start receiving installments and from that you can figure out how much you can expect to receive over the years. The $3,000 should then be pro-rated over the total, and you will have to pay tax on the interest element of the payments less up to $1,000 each year. This $1,000 exclusion applies only in the case of the deceased's being a surviving spouse. Had the insured person been your parent, you would pay tax on all the interest.

Q. Although I completed a painting job in mid-December, the home-owner couldn't pay me until early January. Do I Pay tax on this income for last year or this year?

A. Include as income money you actually received during the year.

Q. While in Vietnam I heard that the salary I earned in the service there didn't have to be included in my income. Is this ture?

A. Yes, generally any pay received by a member of the U.S. Armed Services for any month during any part of which an enlisted man or warrant officer served in a combat zone, during an induction period, or was hospitalized at any place as a result of wounds, disease, or injury incurred in a combat zone during an induction period is not reported as income.

Heart Sunday set Feb. 24

NEEDHAM—This Sunday is Heart Sunday and Richard A. Lewis, chairman of the Needham Heart Fund drive, wishes to remind local residents that this is the climax of the month - long drive for funds to support the work of the Greater Boston Heart Association.

"Each contribution is important as it builds up the amount that supports the Heart Association's fight against Heart disease, our nation's leading single cause of death and disability," Lewis said.

"Heart attack, stroke, congenital Heart defects, hypertension, rheumatic fever - - these are only a partial list of cardiovascular diseases the Heart Association is combating with programs of research, public and professional education and community service."

Heart Fund dollars go to support research in many area medical centers. Year-Round educational and informational programs in schools and community organizations give Needham residents the latest information about heart and blood vessel disease. Doctors, nurses and other medical personnel are involved in a number of Heart Association Workshops, such as the Coronary Care Workshops. Seminars and training programs are held throughout the year.

"With these efforts, the Heart Association has made great progress in its 20 years of service," Richard Lewis said. "We need your help to keep these programs going.

"So when your neighborhood volunteer calls, consider carefully what your donation means and give what you can. Remember, the dollars you contribute to the Heart Fund drive will help you and your loved ones lead a longer and healthier life."

New bus service

The MBTA, with the recommendation of the Planning Board of the Town of Weymouth, is running a new bus service to Weymouthport, the condominium at North Weymouth. The service, which will help the energy crisis, is on a limited schedule Monday through Friday and connects with the red line at Quincy Center.

Hope blooms anew for backers of Norwood drop-in center

NORWOOD—Hope has bloomed once again among those seeking a teen drop-in center for the town.

Benjamin H. Ross, chairman of the committee to study a drop-in center announced yesterday that he would be meeting informally with students at Norwood to get their views on the subject. Ross and other members of the committee had agreed Monday night to seek an all-day "rap session" at the high school open to students during their free period. No date has been set.

Approval for the idea came from School Superintendent William O Coakley and Asst. Superintendent James R. Donovan. Ross met with the two men yesterday at the high school.

Ross said both men were "courteous, cooperative and sympathetic" to the efforts of the committee which is also in search of three youth members.

Restrictions on the meeting call for Ross or some adult member of the committee to be in attendance throughout the day-long session in lieu of any faculty member.

A date for the meeting could be set today, according to Ross.

"People are a physical wreck"; Proxmire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "As a nation we are in one hell of a mess."

The speaker is Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), and he says the reason is simple:

"As a people we are a physical wreck. We are too fat, too soft, too tense. We are prone to alchoholism and increasingly to drug addiction.

"We are lazy. We are thoughtfully self-indulgent and unless we get a grip on ourselves, unless we straighten out, we are not long for leadership. We are going to fail and we will deserve to lose what we have.

"A people that relies on booze for a pickup, on cigarettes or a tranquilizer for relaxation, on aspirin to relieve tensions, on pills for sleep—such a people is not only physically sick but bound to be sad and depressed."

Proxmire pulls no punches. He keeps saying this over and over again.

He says it to his fellow senators here, he says it in a book he has written, "You Can Do It" and he says it to anybody who asks what he thinks about the general physical shape of people in our country.

The Wisconsin senator continously tries driving home the point it isn't really that hard to stay in shape and in that regard he's his own best advertisement.

He's 58 but looks at least 10 years younger. He's as lean as a greyhound and probably runs more than Lou Brock and Ben Jipcho put together.

Proxmire runs from his home here to his office every day, a distance of five miles, and he doesn't lope, he moves.

He ran this way even before the gasoline shortage.

"I've been running now for 10 years," he says. "I figure I save about a gallon of gas a day. Sure I have a car. It's a compact. Every year I try to cover more miles on foot than I do with my car. Last year I did 3,600 miles on foot and 3,500 by car."

What makes Proxmire run?

"A number of things," he says. "First of all, it's a way to commute. Some do by bus, some by car, some by bicycle. I do it on foot. Not like these cabinet officers who have their chauffeurs drive them everywhere. There are 800 of these limousines in Washington and I'm leading a fight in the Senate to reduce the number."

Proxmire has been mugged twice doing his daily running but doesn't let that upset him.

He was middleweight boxing champ at Yale during the late '30's and still looks as if he could go a few rounds. But he denies he's in better shape than any Senator or Congressman in Washington.

"Chuck Percy is in excellent condition," says Proxmire. "He plays a lot of tennis, swims a great deal and has a stationary bike. And Strom Thurmond does everything. He runs every day and lifts weights in his office. He's 72 and married a girl of 25 not long ago."

Proxmire is no blushing violet. He says whatever he feels needs saying.

He openly criticized Brad Cook, then chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, for using a limousine for going to work every day. Cook insisted he used the car only on official business.

"One day I was jogging and I saw his car on the corner of Massachusetts Ave. and Capitol Drive early in the moring," says Proxmire.

"I rapped on the window and said, 'Good morning, Mr. Commissioner.' He sort of slid down behind a newspaper he was reading in the back seat and said, 'Good morning, Senator.'

"Three weeks later, he resigned as SEC chairman," says Proxmire, "but I don't think that was the reason."

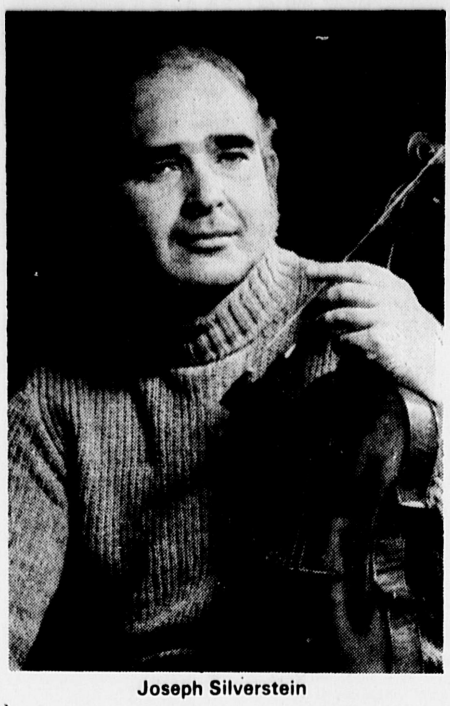
Newton musicians contribute talents to marathon



Joseph Silverstein

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's fourth annual Musical Marathon, presented by radio station WCRB (1330 AM-FM 102.5) to benefit the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops Orchestras, begins at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 7, and will continue 24-hours a day until 1 a.m. Monday, March 11.

Sponsored by the Council of Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra (area co-chairmen for Newton are Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard and Mrs. Samuel A. Levine), the Marathon this year has a goal of $85,000.

Among the 15 members of the Boston Symphony living in Newton who are offering premiums for this year's Musical Marathon is Concertmaster Joseph Silverstein who is offering a violin recital for a $2,000 contribution. The recipient of this premium may use the recital as a benefit for his favorite charity. This is a rare opportunity for an individual or a group.

the trombone section of the BSO and Pops and a resident of Newtonville, is a member of the BSO softball team which is challenging an other team for $100 per player on a date to be arranged between the two teams. Another trombone player, Gordon Hallberg and his wife will treat the winner of his premium to an informal evening including dinner, music listening, and discussion, or even a private trombone or brass lesson with "Mr." or a string lesson with "Mrs." for $100 per person at their home in Newton.

Two harp lessons are being offered for $60 by Principal Hrpist Bernard Zighera. His wife, Caryl, is special assistant to the '74 Musical Marathon. The Zighera's live in West Newton.

BSO violinist Mary Lou Speaker from Newton Centre and her husband invite you to dine with them on your choice of a Moroccan, Cuban, or Italian dinner for $100 per couple. She will also, at another time, play a violin recital in your home for $400.

Newton can also be proud of Burton Fine who is the principal violist of the Biolist of the Boston Symphony, and who is offering his services in two premiums: one is a violin-piano recital with Jereome Rosen, at a cost of $750. The other is a recital with BSO Principal Cellist Jules Eskin, accompanied by pianist Virginia Eskin for $1,000.

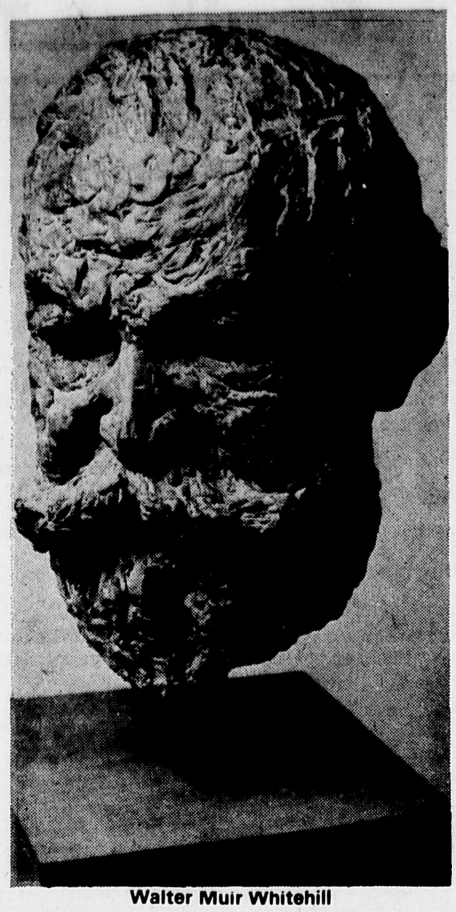
There are other lessons, recitals and sports galore.

Newton area volunteers are now distributing Musical Marathon posters and catalogues, but if you'd like one sent to you by mail, just call 891-1234 and one will be sent to you "allegro vivace."

Residents to perform

The Chorus pro Msica, directed by Alfred Nash Patterson, will perform Bach's "St. John Passion" Sunday, March 17 at 7 p.m.in Symphony Hall. The Cambridge Festival Orchestra, Robert Brink, concertmaster, will accompany the Chorus.

Newton residents who will perform include Walter C. Lee, 192 Pine Ridge Rd., Waban; Nrs. G. H. Wolf, 7 Jaffrey Circle, Waban; E. G. Dyett Jr., 59 Prince St., West Newton; Mrs. A. N. Patterson, 1016 Center St., Newton Centre; Mrs. Lloyd Prentice, 45 Waverley Ave., Newton; and Mrs. Irma Selling, 243 Park St.



Walter Muir Whitehill

Newton sculptor exhibits in Boston

A portrait head of Walter Muir Whithill by Newton sculptor Marcia Shohet Zonis will be on exhibit at Boston City Hall March 4-28, in the New England Sculptor's Association show, 'Forms, Spaces, Places."

Co-sponsored by the mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs, the display will also include wood, cast stone, bronze and welded steel works ranging in size from 18 inches to eight feet in height.

The exhibition wil be open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturdays.

Mrs. Zonis is a well-known sculpter and teacher. A graduate of Sarah Lawrence College, she has studied with Peter Abate, Dvid Smith and Theodore Rozak. Among the local residents she has sculptured are Mrs. Robert Baron, Mrs. Sumner Dorfman, Mrs. Alfred Lanes and Mrs. Kenneth Sisson.

Whitehill was the director of the Boston Athenaeum for 20 years until he retired in June, 1973. An expert on Boston's history, he is the author of many books and publications and a long-time trustee of the Museum of Fine Arts.

Veterans return to the stage for 'Black Comedy'

Three veterans, representing 20 individual characterizations on stage with the Newton Country Players, will spice the cast of the group's forthcoming mid-winter production of Peter Shaffer's farce, "Black Comedy." The play is being directed by Bob Reed of Newton Centre.

Performances are slated for Friday and Saturday evenings, March 1-2 and March 8-9, at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

The production is available for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising at the Pomroy Playhouse, with its seating capacity of 175. Organization bookings for alternate mid-week or Sunday dates will be considered for the show, which will be staged cabaret-style, with tables and chairs.

After a lapse of four years, Samson X. Greiff returns to the Players' stage in the role of Colonel Melkett. Local college to offer play on Feb. 22, 23

The drama club at Aquinas Junior College, Newton, will present the stage play "Charley's Aunt" on Feb. 22 and 23, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. in the Aquinas Junior College auditorium.

The parking lot entrance is 200 Jackson Road, Newton (off Washington Street).

In the play, Jack Chesney, violently in love with Kitty Verdun, and Charles, equally enamored of Miss Spettigue, invite the young women to their rooms for luncheon—in order to meet Charley's wealthy aunt from Brazil ("where the nuts come from").

But the millionaire aunt sends word that she will have to derer her visit for a few days.

What is to be done? The women must not be compromised—no, never! — but neither will the youths give up the opportunity of declaring their love.

The problem is solved by forcing another Oxford undergraduate into a black skirt, a pair of mitts, and an old-fashioned cap and wig.

The performers are: from Aquinas—Patricia Pelletier, West Newton; Julie Castoldi, Newton; Debbie Franklin, East Walpole; Rita DiBacco, Watertown; Marion Horgan, Arlington.

Also, John Reed, So. Hadley, Bentley; Bill Fraser, Manchester, N.H., Bentley; Robert Reed, Norwood, Bentley; Bruce Tatro, Arlington, Suffolk University; Mark Quatromini, Brighton, Mission High; Patrick Quatromini, Brighton.

Tickets are $2 and may be purchased from Aquinas students or payed for at the door. Those under age 12 pay $1.

This inspiring book by Mrs. Sargent reveals why Senator Edward Brooke Said: "Jessie Sargent has vividly described the tribulations and joys of being the wife of a public official. All of us in public service owe her a debt of gratitude for showing not only what can be done, but what cannot. With Jessie Sargent the former is more apt to be the case."

$63 million budget; tax hike certain

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

A recommended total city budget of $62,984,095.69 for the July, 1974-June, 1975 fiscal year was announced this week by Mayor Theodore Mann.

Because the last budget spanned the 18-month transitional fiscal period mandated by the state in order to put all cities and towns on the same fiscal calendar as the state, no accurate comparison can be made between this year's new budget and last year's budget.

Even though the last 12 months is two-thirds of the 18-month period, two-thirds of the 18-month budget would not truly reflect the costs of the last 12 months because of the difference in seasonal expenses such as heating and snowplowing.

The 18-month budget covered about one and one-half winters.

Mayor Mann estimated, however, that the budget is up by $3 million over the last 12 months' spending.

In the 1973-74 fiscal year the total city budget was $83 million, of which the School Department budget accounted for $39.4 million.

In the 1972-73 fiscal year (12 months), the total budget was $52 million. The School Department budget came to $25 million.

In this year's $63 million total budget, the School Department budget is $29,132,000.

The new budget does not include money for salary increases that will be due after collective bargaining for both city employees and teachers, both due this year.

Mayor Mann declined to speculate on the new tax rate until after the "cherry sheet," a list of state disbursements to be made to the city, or money due the state from the city, has been received.

The cherry sheet is due this month. By law the rax rate must be set by May.

The mayor pointed out that the first tax bill of the new fiscal year, which will be mailed next October, will reflect an accumulation of inflationary costs that have been suppressed by the 18-month budget.

It is just about inevitable that there will be a sizeable tax increase, though how large the mayor will not guess.

Between $800,000 and $1 million is anticipated from federal revenue-sharing that can be used to soften the tax impact.

In the presubmission budgetary process, in which departments submit a preliminary budget, the mayor cut approximately $10 million from the total requested.

The budget next goes to the Board of Aldermen, which may cut any item except the School Department budget; but may not increase any item.

Open budget hearings have been scheduled by the Finance Committee beginning Friday (March 1) at 5 p.m., when the committee will review the overall budget and the Executive Department budget.

At 7 p.m. the Library budget requests will be reviewed; 7:15, Personnel Department; 7:30, Human Resources Department; 7:45, Accounting; 8:00, Treasury; 8:15, Election Commission; 8:30, Purchasing Department; 8:45, Law Department; 9:45, Planning Department and 9:30, Conservation Commission.

On Saturday (March 2) at 9 a.m., the Finance Committee will review Assessing Department requests; 9:30, Fire Department, 10:30, Police Department; 11:30, City Clerk's office; 11:45, Clerk of the Board's office; 1 p.m., Recreation Department; 1:30, City Physician's office and Health Department; 2:00, Engineering Department; 2:15, Water Department; 2:30, Sealer of Weights and Measurers; 2:45, Veterans Services and 3:00, Civil Defense.

Budget review hearings planned for Saturday, March 9, are: 9 a.m., Public Works; 9:15 a.m., Street Department; 2 p.m., Public Buildings and 3:30, School Committee.

The public is invited.

Fire

Two London Lass fires in five hours

The Newton Fire Department responded to two fires at the London Lass Beauty Salon, 1176 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, within a five-hour period this week.

According to Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., damage caused by the fires is estimated at $50,000. Perkins said that the fires were under investigation.

A box alarm at 11:45 p.m. Monday night alerted the Fire Department to what was reportedly a small fire in a closet at London Lass. Four engines and two ladders responded to the alarm and the fire was extinguished.

At 3:56 a.m. Tuesday morning a police officer pulled the alarm box at the corner of Walnut and Center streets, according to Perkins.

Firefighters found a second fire in London Lass, this time in the rear of the building. Perkins said that it started on the first floor and apparently spread to the second floor and the attic.

Two alarms were sounded for the second fire. Six engines and two ladders responded.

London Lass is owned by Peter Sidman of Framingham. The building is owned by Charles Pambookian of Newton.

The front door of the building at 1176 Walnut St., next to The Graphic office, was open around 9 a.m. on Tuesday morning. Part of the floor in London Lass was muddy. Glass was gone from at least one window in the building. A truck with plywood arrived Tuesday morning and a window was boarded up.

Firefighters from Wellesley, Waltham and Watertown covered for Newton firefighters while they battled this blaze.

London Lass is located near the Newton Highlands MBTA station. At least one London Lass customer who had an appointment was surprised Tuesday to discover the salon closed because of the fire.

A woman parked on Walnut Street Wednesday morning and sat with mouth open after being toold that London Lass had been a victim of fire.

The walls and windows in London Lass were black Tuesday morning, apparently from smoke damage. Most of the fire damage appeared to be in the back of the salon. There was a hair piece and a can of hair spray still remaining near the front of the store and the foyer furniture was blackened but not burned.

Life Care Center goes to Board for vote Monday

The aldermanic Land Use Committee Monday night said "yes" to a 179-unit "Life Care Center" in Auburndale and "no" to a doctor's office building at Rt. 128 and Neshobe Road.

Members of the committee voted 6-1 in favor of the Life Care Center, a combination hotel and nursing home for the dlerly; and 4-1 against the doctor's office building. Two aldermen abstained on the second vote. Ald. Michael Lipof, a member of the committee, was absent for the entire meeting.

The six-story Life Care Center, to be built on Stanton Avenue in Ward 4, has had two public hearings before the Land Use Committee and has remained on its docket since the term of the last Board of Aldermen.

The original Life Care Center, proposed by Dr. Edward Guiney and Arthur Ullian, contained about 210 units. The figure was gradually reduced to 179 units.

Passage by the Board of Aldermen of the Guiney proposal will require votes next Monday on three separate proposals.

Since the center is a new type of structure, the committee and Planning Department worked out a definition to suit it. Zone "E" now to contain a provision for life care centers, will be one subject the Board will tackle next week.

The proposed site of the Guiney project will, if the new zone definition is approved, be changed from Residence "A" to Residence "e".

Following these two changes, the Board of Aldermen will vote on the project itself.

The Life Care Center will be for people age 65 or over. They will pay entrance fees ranging from $10,000 to $30,000 and monthly rents ranging from $175 to $375 to live there. A 20-bed nursing home, dining room at additional cost, and common rooms will be at their disposal. Units offered will range from one to three rooms. Maid service, linen service, and a staff of medical personnel will be on hand.

Similar centers, run by non-profit organizations, are located in other parts of the country.

Guiney and his associates have also agreed to donate five of the Life Care units to the Newton Housing Authority for use as subsidized housing. One unit would be offered per year for five years and the entrance fee would be waived. In addition, five more units would be offered on a "pseudo-scholarship" basis at an entrance fee of $5,000.

Land Use Chairman Ald. Joseph McDonnell cast the lone vote against committee approval of the project, moving, at the last minute, for reconsideration in order to ensure that a "non-profit" organization would run this Life Care Center.

His motion failed for lack of a second. McDonnell had pointed out during debate on the proposal that the center to be located in Auburndale was the only one of those existing in the country sponsored by a private, profit making group.

McDonnell also informed other members of his committee that he would not prepare a "majority report" to deliver to the full Board next Monday and indicated another member would have to do so.

The traffic death blow felled the latest in a series of proposals at Neshobe Road and Washington Street.

Residents last month turned out in force against this proposal for the construction of a three-story medical building for 27 doctors, despite the fact this plan changed the orientation of the building away from Washington Street and represented a smaller structure than the last plan for an insurance building on the site.

Ald. Alan Barkin was the only committee member to vote in favor of the proposal.

Discuss Lincoln- Eliot upgrading

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Building Commissioner Gene Larsen presented a plan for additions and alterations at the Lincoln-Eliot School to a group of aldermen last week.

It is rumored that the mayor and members of the School Committee do not favor the additions and alterations, but do not want to assume responsibility for killing the proposal.

Larsen said that a design approved by the Design Review Committee calls for an addition of 16,817 square feet in gross area. The design would cause alteration of 7,647 square feet.

According to Larsen, the entire project would cost $1,202-851. His estimate of construction costs was $934,928, the architect's fee would be approximately $69,173, and equipment would cost approximately $85,000.

Larsen's projection also included $93,500 for construction contingencies and $20,250 for other expenses.

Larsen noted that $49,750 has already been appropriated. He said that a bond issue of $1,153,101 ("say $1,150,000") would be required to fulfill the final design.

Alderman Edward Richmond questioned the design of the proposed additions and alterations. Richmond called attention to the fact that the school would have two gyms if the additions were built.

A member of the audience said that the old, smaller gym would be used as a lunch room and as a gym for kindergarten children.

A woman commented that "for the kids we have now, the gym is below standards for physical education." The plan presented by Larsen called for a new 3600 square foot gym.

Richmond mentioned a School Department demographic study which allegedly predicts that the enrollment at Lincoln-Eliot will drop from 410 to 362 in the next four years.

School Committeeman Gerald byrne replied that if St. Jean's and Newton Catholic School closed, Lincoln-Eliot would be obliged to educate 91 additional children.

Alderman Sidney Small noted that this was dependant on the school districts remaining the way they are.

Byrne said that he did not think the demographic study applies as much to the Lincoln-Eliot area as to other sections.

Richmond proposed that the Carr School could be used to alleviate future overcrowding at Lincoln-Eliot. Richmond said that Carr will be at 64 per cent capacity in four years. It was noted that Carr is less than a mile from Lincoln-Eliot.

Alderman Ernest Dietz said that he cannot vote for Lincoln-Eliot "in the light of the demographic study and open classrooms."

Alderman Alan Barkin said that previously "we did not have certain information as to school population in the city."

There was debate about whether the plan approved by the Design Review Committee met educational specifications.

Byrne said that "it is the opinion of the design review that the architect met educational specifications."

Small noted that "the Design Review Committee, the School Committee and the Board from time to time have made mistakes."

Richmond was a member of the design review committee which approved the design presented by Larsen. He reportedly objected to the fact that the final design included approximately 2,200 more square feet than called for in the educational specifications.

PTA Council President John Webber said recently that people in the Lincoln Eliot area never came to the PTA Council to talk about additions and alterations. He said that he did not favor additions and alterations.

Post 440 asks for more space to park cars

An offer to buy the remianing 32,000 square feet of Victory Field by American Legion Post 440 for additional parking was heard skeptically by the Finance Committee last week.

The expanded parking area would be adjacent to a site planned for low-income housing.

The post offered 25 cents a square foot for the remaining land on California Street, Nonantum, abutting its new headquarters, and indicated that it wished to provide an additional 125 to 140 parking spaces on the land.

Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small reminded Roger Marrocco and Alan Licarie, representing Post 440, that at the time of the sale of land for the clubhouse, Post 440 had said they would need no more parking.

Ed Adelman

From one class to an empire

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of the Graphic Staff

When Ed Adelman was in the ninth grade, he had a chance to work and observe at the local New England Telephone Co.

Thus began an empire.

Wi.ether those telephone company people were aware of it or not, Adelman was watching and absorbing and learning and turning on to electronics.

Today, although he cannot fix Bell telephones, he has a booming business as a decorator phone repairman and intercom installer and repairman.

His name is now Adelphone System and he can be reached, by a series of complex relays, at 332-6391.

Adelman, 17, of 48 Kingston Rd., Newton Highlands, is a senior at Newton Uouth High School and will graduate in June. In addition to the wonders he performs on mini-circuits, he also recently invented a "automatic horse feeder" in his spare time.

This happened, he recounted in an interview, because one of the assistant housemasters at South High needed one.

The housemaster, of course, spends his working hours at the high school; but, nevertheless, his horses like to dine at noon. Adelman got involved in the problem through his drafting teacher.

The teacher, he said, suggested he might like to work on developing a way to feed the horses. He agreed, and sat down to puzzle out what is now his automatic horse feeder.

It feeds two horses, he explained, promptly every day at noon, by releasing grain via a timer.

Adelman's latest project, it follows, is the task of securing a patent on his device.

He said he has been in the telephone repair and intercom installation business for a good period of time now, but was indefinite about his charges for such services.

He did, however, indicate he is quick in completing the job and attributed his vagueness on cost to the spiraling cost of materials that seem to cost more every time he goes to get them.

He also pointed out that many people who buy decorator phones and have trouble with them, really do not know where to get them fixed.

In that instance, Adelman might just be the perfect solution.

General Motors program at local schools

"The world we live in today is merely a stepping stone to tomorrow, with countless challenging questions left for scientists and engineers to answer."

That message was presented to local students when General Motors national assembly program, Preview of Progress, appeared at Newton South High School and Weeks Junior High School recently.

The non-commercial show seeks to encourage more student interest in science, engineering, and related vocational careers. It was presented live and in non-technical language by General Motors lecturers.

Two highlights of the 45-minute program included energy conversion techniques involving fuel cells and solar cells.

Potentially one of the most significant sicientific developments of the century, fuel cells convert chemical energy into electrical power with much greater efficiency than is now obtained from conventional power plants. During the show, a few drops of "liquid sunshine" added to the cells provided enough energy to operate a portable radio.

The GM representatives also explained how the energy of the sun can be converted into electricity by running a model of the Surveyor Lunar Roving Vehicle on solar cells. A 300-watt lamp, simulating the sun's rays, powered the Moon Rover across an undulating table top surface.

Students also saw two fast-paced demonstrations which illustrate recent developments toward solving water and air pollution problems. First, the lecturers showed progress being made to cleanup water used in an industrial process. They combined two common manufacturing pollutants to produce clean water and to eliminate the pollutants in one mutually beneficial operation.

Then students viewed a cutaway model of a catalytic converter, a device GM is developing to reduce automotive exhaust pollutants. Catalytic converters someday may help to remove the automobile from the air pollution problem.

A unique way to move heavy loads with little physical effort was illustrated by an "air bearing" platform. A small vacuum cleaner type motor provided a thin film of air under three large circular pads supporting the platform. This aircushion reduced friction between the floor and the pads enabling finger-tip movement of the platform carrying about 200 pounds.

Two novel experiments involving "man-made" molecules showed modern chemistry's contribution to progress. Synthetic rubber was manufactured in a bottle in just sixty seconds and a polyurethane foam plastic cake "baked" itself in only two minutes.

The importance of seat belt protection for vehicle occupants was dramatized by a model impact sled, a device automotive safety engineers have been using to test the structual integrity of car bodies and components.

Since 1962, a full-size impact sled has been used in vehicle safety and occupant protection tests at the GM Proving Ground at Milford, Michigan. It enables GM engineers to "fire" payloads up to 5,000 pounds along a pair of 100-foot rails on a sled-like structure.

A study by a University of Michigan medical team indicates that the use of seat belts could reduce the number of traffic fatalities by as much as 40 per cent.

Other demonstrations in the Previews show covered the use of gyroscopes in modern navigation systems for space vehicles, aircraft and submarines and a laser device which translates the sounds we hear into visual patterns of light.

The Previews team that appeared is one of five two-man units now touring the country. Previews of Progress lecturers visit approximately 2,000 different schools annually.

Students

A laboratory model of a fuel cell, which is used to power a portable radio, is studied by Weeks Junior High students Cathy Daly and Mike O'Brien.

Solar energy

Paul Duggan and Ross Brown of Weeks Junior High School view a solar powered model of an unmanned lunar rover vehicle.

Community schools

Hyde and Angier offer programs

The Hyde Community School has been operating for three years.

Prior to its formal beginning, the school building and an adjacent church were acting as informal community centers.

In 1969, Hyde became one of several elementary schools to have an evening recreation program in its gymnasium. Financial support to pay for custodians and supplies were available through the Recreation Department.

The community school program began in spring of 1972 with five mini-courses. Volunteers from the neighborhood taught or led activities. Offerings included a needlecraft class, a French conversation group, a class in beginning Italian, a consumer forum, and a child development roundtable.

Both language groups and the child development discussion group continued during the community school's second year. Other mini-courses were added, which included a course on creative writing, a course on values clarification and class dealing with women in literature.

An evening workshop in holiday decorations and a folk dancing night for parents and children were also sponsored. A swimming lesson program in conjunction with the Newton YMCA was organized.

Hyde was funded during its second year to maintain a professionally staffed drop-in counseling center to serve the community and other parts of Newton.

In May, 1973, a committee sent out questionnaires to residents of the Hyde School area. It asked what neighbors wanted and offered an opportunity for residents to make suggestions about the community school in general.

The committee was able to find out what types of talent and expertise people were willing to volunteer. The current community school program is organized around the results of the questionnaire.

Offerings for the second term (Feb. 25-April 5) include French and Spanish conversation, a discussion of child behavior, and a literary group.

Programs involving quilting and creative stitchery are offered on Mondays. A course on transactional analysis is also scheduled for Monday evenings.

On Tuesday evenings, a program of recreational math is offered. On Thursdays there is a program on the art of stained glass. On Friday evenings, programs include tax form information and discussion of gardening.

The courses or activities are all led by residents of the area and are open to any member of the community. Information about the community school program is available by calling Hyde Community School Chairwoman Lois Alexander (527-6411) or Sylvia Sawin (969-9270).

The Angier Community School, now in its second year, is approaching its goal of being a community center.

Open several afternoons and two nights weekly, it offers a broad program to serve the needs of young and old.

The program includes a variety of courses, workshops and informal drop-in centers. The current winter term will include a program on "Waban Early Days, From Personal Points of View" on March 14.

There are afternoon recreation programs for elementary school youngsters, evening drop-in centers for teenagers and a variety of skill-building courses for adults.

The Angier Community School has also forged an alliance with the Newton Recreation Department. A family night recreation program was co-sponsored, and a teenage recreation night was offered.

The Angier program seeks to be a catalyst for bringing people together. Each Wednesday morning, it sponsors a drop-in center for mothers and their pre-school youngsters. Grandparents and older residents are also invited.

A guiding force for the Angier Community School is a committee of concerned citizens organized in May, 1973 by William Meyer. The current chairperson is Martha Akagi, an art teacher and Angier mother who has taught several community school courses.

Quinn nominated for sixth vice president

William F. Quinn, chief of the Newton Police Department, has been nominated by the New England Chiefs of Police as a candidate for sixth Vice President of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

At a meeting held at North Smithfield, R.I., the six state association nominated Quinn, after the Massachusetts Chiefs Association had previously elected him as their candidate.

The position of sixth V.P. is a contested election within the International which has representation from 61 countries.

Quinn is a second generation police officer. His father served in the Boston Police Department and earned many citations including a Carnagie Medal.

Quinn, with 23 years as a police officer, the last six as chief, has had a great interest in upgrading the educational level of his own department.

Quinn has provided college level instructions for the annual in-service training programs within the department and has been active as a lecturer at various police academies. He is presently chairman of the New England Institute on Police Community Relations.

Quinn is married to the former Ann McHugh of Boston, and they have three children; William R., age 16, Loretta, age 13 and Timothy H., age 11.

The election will be held in Washington, D.C. during the International Association of Police Chiefs' annual conference to be held Sept. 21 through Sept. 26.

Housing Authority plans workshop for elderly

A sheltered workshop for persons over age 65 is being planned by the Newton Housing Authority, Executive Director Frank Quinn said this week.

The project, which Quinn hopes to begin sometime this spring, will be self-supporting and will provide residents of the city's four apartment houses for the elderly, as well as other elderly persons, an opportunity to work on a part-time regular basis in a sheltered situation.

Using a room in one of the housing developments for the elderly, possible Parker House in Newton Centre, elderly residents would do work on contract with firms in the area.

Quinn pointed out that the social benefits of such a program are at least as important as the earning of money, and would give residents of Housing Authority apartments a chance to meet other elderly residents of the neighborhood.

Lead screening at Carr School

Lead screening for Newton school children will be held next Tuesday, March 5 at Carr School in Newtonville, from 9 - 11:45 a.m.

Screening will be conducted by personnel from Newton - Wellesley Hospital under the direction of pediatric nurse practioner Mrs. Irene Lamb and Dr. John M. Cohen, chief of pediatrics.

The Newton effort, which has tested more than 1,100 local children between the ages of one and six, is part of the state Department of Public Health's program to check potential lead paint poisoning.

Young children, particularly in older houses, cab eat chips of sweet-tasting paint. If lead levels in the blood are heightened to over abnormal degrees, severe brain damage can occur.

The Newton - Wellesley program receives a strong assist from the Newton Community Service Center and senior adults associated with the R.S.V.P. organization.

Towers to install sprinkler system

Developers of the Towers at Chestnut Hill have acceded to a condition of the Baord of Aldermen that sprinklers be installed throughout the luxury condominium apartments.

The verbal promise of sprinklers was given late last week by codeveloper (with Newton's Mario DiCarlo) Albert Goodman, who came in from Detroit to meet with city officials.

The decision not to fight the sprinkler condition apparently will remove the last roadblock to issuance of the building permit allowing construction of the 428-unit development to resume.

Discovery last September that the five-year permissive use granted by the Board in 1966 had expired in 1971 led to issuance of an order to stop construction pending new hearings and the extension of permissive use by the Board of Aldermen.

Granting of permissive use and approval of the revised site were completed in early February, with a list of conditions that must be met before the building permit is issued.

This week, with the agreement to install sprinklers, there seem sto be no further impediment to issuance of the building permit.

Assistnt Building Commissioner Victor Taglienti said this week that he had spoken to Towers architect Nathan Levin, but had not yet received a confirming letter.

In addition, Taglienti said, plans showing the sprinklers and approval by the Fire Department are necessary before a building permit can be granted.

A source closely connected with the Towers said early this week that construction can be 3xpected to start not later than March 15.

The Towers, which will cost more than $42 million to build, will provide at least $2 million annually in taxes when completed.

Special justices may be phased out by bill

Legislation that would phase out the special-justice system in Massachusetts (H. 3359), co-sponsored by Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton), was heard Feb. 21 by the Judiciary Committee of the Massachusetts legislature.

Under the present special-justice system, 81 district court judges serve part time, are paid on a per-day basis regardless of the number of hours they serve and are barred from presiding over civil cases. Special justices are allowed to preside only over criminal and juvenile cases.

Rep. Pines told the committee: "A public official must consider himself a servant of the citizens. A system that permits a person to be a lawyer in court in the morning and a judge in that same court in the afternoon tends to instill skepticism and distrust in the public and must not be allowed to continue."

The proposed legislation provides that vacancies in the office of special justice would not be filled when any tree of the part-time special-justice posts become vacant, two new full-time judges would be appointed in their places."

"This judge-lawyer position has been criticized consistently since 1919 by judicial reports of the Commonwealth," she continued. "Chief Justice Franklin Flaschner of Newton has been fighting for many years to effect this much-needed reform in the Massachusetts district court system."

Similar legislation (H. 1431) was filed by Justice Flaschner and Rep. Cornelius Kiernan, chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Among those supporters of these changes in the district court system were representatives of the governor, the Massachusetts Bar Association, the League of Women Voters, and the Massachusetts Council for Public Justices, Inc.

Handgun ownership not a right, says Mofenson

Rep. David J. Mofenson of Newton testified this week before the joint committee on Public Safety in favor of bills which would limit private ownership of handguns, asserting that nothing in the Constitution bars the government from regulating the private use and ownership of guns.

"I have always been concerned about the claims of the gun lobby that the Second Amendment gives citizens an absolute right to bear arms," Mofenson said. "Accordingly, I requested the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts to prepare a brief historical and legal analysis of the question.

"I agree with the Civil Liberties Union and with the United States Supreme Court that the Second Amendment to the Constitution refers not to individual rights, but was adopted to protect against the disarming of state militias by a powerful national government" Mofenson said.

"To claim that everybody has a constitutional right to bear arms is to misread both the intent and the language of the Second Amendment. In fact, the government can regulate provate ownership of guns as much as it wishes, as long as the militia-in our case, the Massachusetts National Guard-is not disarmed," Mofenson concluded.

Ward 8 GOP Committee to meet Sunday

The meeting will take place at 11:30 a.m. and will be dedicated to bringing in new members who are interested in creating a new more challenging form of Government.

The following poem, written by Edward M. Hallett, Jr., will be the theme of the meeting.

Tennis and swimming fees set

Responding to continued complaints about the cost of tennis permits at the city's 15 lighted clay courts and four indoor courts, the Recreation Commission this week voted to sell family permits for $20.

The other 65 blacktop tennis courts will continue to be available to residents without charge.

Also approved by the commission was a redefinition of "student", which will now include any resident who is a fulltime college student through age 25 with a college ID card. Student rates are lower for tennis and swimming.

In other business, the commission accepted the announcement of Mrs. Worthing West, who has represented Ward 6 for 23 years on the Recreation Commission, that she has told Mayor Theodore Mann that she wishes not to be reappointed. Her term expired Jan. 1.

The new regulation brings tennis into the family-permit concept in effect for indoor swimming at Newton North HIgh School, where a year's family permit may be bought for $15.

Two Newton Highlands residents, Murray Kates and Gary Rubenstein, spoke to the commission on the tennis fee schedule, in effect until this week, of $10 per individual adult.

Rubenstein favored a small charge for each use instead of the permit plan, and thought the $10-per-person charge was hard on college students.

Kates said, "I don't feel like paying $40 (for himself and his family) to play on a court my money helped build. Sports is nonprofit — you are making this a professional thing by charging this fee."

Kates also complained about the maintenance of the courts at Newton South High School, where the students use the courts for other activities.

The philosophy of charging fees for any sports activity was seriously considered by Recreation Commission member Frank Fitzpatrick, who mused, "Are we forcing the people least able to pay not to use these facilities?"

The $30,000 received in fees by the Recreation Department annually is about 3 per cent of its total budget.

Other charges discussed were yearly and summer swimming permits. The outdoor facilities at Crystal Lake and Gath Pool will continue to charge a fee of $3 for an adult and $1 for students, with a one-time admission fee of 50 cents.

A yearly permit to cover both the Newton North High pool and the outdoor swimming facilities will be $10 for an adult, $5 for a student, $15 for a family permit. Single swims will range from 10 cents to 50 cents.

The 50-cent season permit for the use of Newton's three natural-ice skating areas was abolished by a unanimous vote, on a motion by Recreation Department Director John Penney, and a motion to abolish the 25-cent fee for tobogganing was anrrowly defeated.

Mrs. West, a familiar figure to people going to Crystal Lake to swim, said Tuesday about her not wanting reappointment, "Older people were always good to me when I was young. Now I think it's time to move over."

"The Recreation Commission has initiated some wonderful programs — Esther Toher does so much for our senior citizens, and Fran Towle for women."

"I think the commission is in excellent hands. I have great respect for Jack Penney."

No successor to Mrs. West has been appointed.

High gas consumption prompts investigation

Another investigation of gasoline consumption by Street Department vehicles has been undertaken as a result of a request for a $71,000 appropriation for gasoline last week.

After reviewing figures on Street Department cars whose odometers are working, furnished to Ald. Robert Gaynor at his request by Street Commissioner Edmund Bolduc, Gaynor said, "There's no doubt in my mind that there's something strange going on in the Street Department."

Of the 24 Street Department cars reported whose odometers were recorded as operating, 11 had no mileage reported.

Of the 13 with mileage reported, four got between 5 and 8 miles to a gallon of gas, six got between 8 and 10 miles to the gallon, and three got 10 to 13 miles.

A 1968 four-door car is recorded as getting about the same mileage as a 1972 car of the same body style and make 9 mpg, while a 1971 comparable car ended up near the bottom of the mileage with slightly over 6 mpg.

In the next few days, Gaynor said, the Street Commissioner will furnish him some informationon the Street Department trucks, most of whose odometers are inoperative, according to Nunzio Piselli of the department at last week's Public Works Committee meeting.

Gaynor's questioning of the amount of gasoline used by the Street Department follows by about a year a lenghty report by Ald. David Cohen on the city garage, including the maintenance of city vehicles.

Cohen's investigation found cars whose apparent mileage was as low as 1½ miles per gallon.

Cohen's report called for better maintenance of vehicles and more stringent record-keeping on the dispensing of gasoline.

Burglaries up in 1973

Crime statistics released by the Newton Police Department show that 110 more burglaries were reported in 1972 than in 1972.

According to police, 548 residence burglaries and 240 non-residence burglaries were reported in 1973. The total of 788 is 16.2 per cent more than the total for 1972.

The peak month for burglary reports in 1973 was July when 111 were reported. Only 30 burglaries were reported in February.

The number of armed robberies committed in 1973 was 26, 21 less that the 47 committed in 1972, according to police. This represents a 44.7 per cent decrease.

There was an increase in the number of auto thefts reported in 1973. Police statistics showed an increase from 473 reported thefts in 1972 to 576 in 1973, a 23.3 per cent increase.

There were 67 auto thefts reported in October, 1973, while 28 were credited to March.

There was a large decrease in the number of arrests for violation of narcotic drug laww in 1973. According to police, ther were 121 arrests in 1972 and 47 in 1973.

There were 47 arrests for driving under the influence of liquor in 1973. Eighteen of these arrests were of people under age 21, according to police.

Statistics showed 19 cases of assault and battery on police officers in 1973. There were 12 cases in 1972.

Auto Theft Prevention Week now

Officials of the Massachusetts Council On Auto Theft Prevention today announced that the mayor of Newton has proclaimed the week of Feb. 25 to March 2 as "Auto Theft Prevention Week" in that community.

The proclamation was issued in conjunction with a week-long campaign to be conducted by the council in the city of Newton.

In the mayor's proclamation notice was taken of the fact that "in more than 40 per cent or more of auto theft cases, the owner left the keys in the car or left the ignition unlocked."

During the week-long observance of Auto Theft Prevention Week, officials of the council will be in the community conducting an intensive program of public information regarding auto theft.

Printed materials will be distributed at several key locations in the community while a specially equipped van will tour various shopping centers and parking lots distributing materials and broadcasting messages calling attention to the necessity for shoppers to lock their cars and pocket the keys.

In concluding the proclamation, the mayor called upon all citizens "to join actively in the campaign. . . in an effort to curb auto thefts as a major means of reducing economic loss and juvenile delinquency.

Killing the messenger

Ancient military commanders, when brought unfavorable news from the field of battle, killed the messenger who dared utter the bad news.

Richard Dudman was a bringer of unwelcome news.

He was given the position of Director of Public Works to make the department function, not only for the city administration but for the citizens of the city as well.

As Public Works director he was not only a "messenger" to the administration, he was also on the battlefield.

He saw what needed to be done and tried to do it, while one by one his weapons were stripped away.

In Richard Dudman's too-short tenure here, he has made a remarkable impression on many of the visible aspects of Newton's environment. Services under the Publics Works Department have improved, from street repair to rubbish and garbage collection and snowplowing.

While accomplishing these changes, Dudman always kept in mind that human beings are the key to good services. He began treating his men like the adult human beings they are, emphasizing the recognition of talents and skills within the labor force.

The results of this approach, which with Dudman is not expedience but an intrinsic sensibility, has been a trusting relationship between labor and management unknown in this city before.

The long hours given unstintingly to individuals or groups of citizens trying to find a better way to plant trees, to conserve natural resources, to make the city aesthetically more pleasing, will not soon be forgotten by those he helped.

What Richard Dudman could not accept is that too often decisions are based on politics, and sometimes they are purely political decisions.

His has always been the long-range view, but politics always chooses the fastest and easiest way out.

With an unshakable integrity, he has never compromised his or this city's honor, but politics sometimes requires deceit.

The reorganization of his department as he wanted it and knew it should be was rejected as too politically dangerous, and never saw the light of publicity.

His reservations about upgrading the incinerator were dismissed until two independent reports from outside consultants convinced the administration that some other course must be followed. Closing the incinerator was politically distasteful.

Newton tried an experiment with Richard Dudman, and it failed.

Who now will bring us the truth?

Would Post 440 make a trade?

BY CYNTHIA BLACK

Anyone who has ever attended a gathering at Post 440 is well aware that a parking problem exists.

I recall three occasions that illustrate this point: the night William Carmen announced his candidacy for mayor last spring, the night Middlesex County Republicans gathered to hear a pep talk from the governor last fall, and the Lincoln Day dinner last month.

The first two times I made it inside the fence and wound up bumping along over the combination grass and dirt to an unofficial parking space.

On my last visit, I wound up pakred halfway down Faxon Street because the frozen ground previously used for parking was the victim of the January thaw and to park there would have meant taking up permanent residence.

Post 440 is not your ordinary, everyday legion post. It is, rather, a fine, tasteful additional meeting place in this community as its regular bookings indicate.

Parking is not your normal everyday minor problem in this part of the country though. Parking is a major obstacle and sometimes even a gigantic game.

Post 440 is a good example. Their original 115 parking spaces just do not seem to accommodate their guests. And they want additional land for more parking spaces.

Completely Black

In this instance, unfortunately, granting the request raises serious problems.

Victory Field is not only the site of Post 440, it is also supposed to be the site of four units of low income family housing.

At the time the Victory Field housing was up for a vote, it was pointed out that locating families in the immediate vicinity of a large legion post might not be a good idea. The site, however, was approved. The housing has yet to be built.

Encroaching on the samll amount of land set aside for the housing with more parking lot is the ethical question that is going to face city officials now.

It is true that the site is not a good one for low income housing. Planning to put the housing there after okaying the legion post seems to have been more a matter of expediency than anything else.

We have a proposal. Victory Field should go to the legion post. Let them expand their parking and create the small park they promised at the outset.

In return, let them find the city another site for the four units of housing and give it to the Housing Authority is ecchange for the corner of Victory Field they do not own.

That, we think, would even the score.

Dukakis big helpmate to abortion advocate

Former State Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline, now seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor, was quite a helpmate for William R. Baird, the noisy abortion and birth control advocate, when Dukakis was a member of the Legislature.

Mr. Dukakis filed one bill after another for Mr. Baird in the fields of abortion, blasphemy, crimes agalnst nature, unnatural and lascivious acts with another person, fornication, and disseminating birth control information.

If big, bad, bold Bill Baird has any gratitude whatever in his heart, he must have his disciples out loudly beating the drums for Michael Dukakis. But getting the Catholic vote probably will be a different matter for Mr. Dukakis either in the September primary or the final November election.

A person close to former Representative Dukakis told us yesterday that the bills to which we refer were filed by Mr. Dukakis at the request of Mr. Baird.

We have no doubt that is so. But most self-respecting members of the State Legislature wouldn't speak to Mr. Baird, much less file a bill for him. They simply walked away when he approached them. We saw that happen when Baird picketed a Boston College-University of Massachusetts football game.

His views certainly were no secret. He went to jail to test them out and proved quite a crybaby while he was there. It seems only fair now to look back through the records, recall some of the measures filed for him by Michael Dukakis and speculate on what Dukakis would do if he were Governor. We have sorted out six bills filed by Dukakis for Baird in 1970, the last year Dukakis was in the Legislature and the year he was nominated as the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor and was defeated in the final election.

House Bill No. 3756, filed by Dukakis at the request of Baird, sought the repeal of the law prohibiting abortions.

The Dukakis bill struck out the section in the general laws prohibiting abortion and substituted this provision: "Abortion may be performed by any physician who has first obtained the consent of the female upon whom said abortion is to be performed."

A second measure sponsored by Dukakis for Baird not only calling for the repeal of laws prohibiting abortions but also banning the dessemination of birth control information.

A third bill filed by Dukakis for the high-minded Baird would have legalized blasphemy and repealed the law prohibiting it. That bill apparently would have made legal and proper to revile God or holy things. The number of that measure was House Bill 3483.

Another measure filed by Dukakis for Baird and supposedly designed to uplift Massachusetts called for the repeal of the law prohibiting crimes against nature. That bill would have wiped out a section in the general laws which our forefathers thought was important. It says: "Whoever commits the abominable and detestable crime against nature, either with mankind or with beast, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than 20 years." Dukakis' bill would have legalized those actions. The number of the measure was House 3484.

A fifth bill sponsored by Dukakis for Baird called for the repeal of the laws punishing unnatural and lascivious acts with another person. That measure was House Bill 3272.

Finally, ex-Representative Dukakis filed House Bill 3482 for Baird in 1970. This measure sought the repeal of the law prohibiting fornication.

Those are unusual bills to be filed by a man now seeking to become Governor. The six measures we listed comprise an unusual collection. They satisfy the Gay Liberation, the abortion advocates, the permissive groups, and, most of all, big, bad, bold Bill Baird, that great uplifter of society.

But they disgust a lot of decent people.

States or Governor of Massachusetts or Mayor of Boston, and none is likely to do so in the near future.

President Nixon had an opportunity to shatter the all-male tradition when he picked Gerald Ford to be Vice President after Spiro Agnew resigned, but he passed up the opportunity to select a woman for the No. 2 post in the United States government.

Congresswoman Margaret M. Heckler of Wellesley is the only feminine member of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress.

She serves with intelligence, vigor and enthusiasm and without asking special favor or privilege in what is essentially a man's world.

Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, now a member of the Boston City Council, was defeated for reelection after serving one term in Congress.

Boston's nine-member City Council has one woman member. Its five-member School Committee includes one woman, Kathleen Sullivan. But the ladies do not hold their share of elective public offices.

One reason for this—if we may don our philosophical hat—is that women are more critical of other women than of men and less likely to vote for them for high offices.

So far as we know, the Women's Lib has never supported a lady candidate in a public election campaign.

Possibly, that is because the Women's Lib doesn't involve itself in politics. Perhaps, the organization does not want to offend the men voters in a campaign where a woman is running.

However, Congresswoman Heckler, one of the state's great vote-getters, preaches the gospel of women's rights at just about every opportunity.

What we started to say was that Governor Francis W. Sargent would like a woman candidate on the Republican State Ticket with him.

Not for the feminine company, mind you, but because he believes it might cause some ladies to vote Republican who might not otherwise do so.

One of Sarge's problems is that four of the places on the GOP slate—the nominations for Governor, Lieutenant Governor. Attorney General and Secretary of State — already are spoken for.

But he may come up with a woman candidate for either State Treasurer or State Auditor who would give added balance and strength to the Republican State Ticket.

Sarge could do this by having the unofficial Republican State Convention in June endorse a woman and then support her himself in the September primary. Republican custom being what it is, that would virtually assure her of the nomination.

Republican strategists point out that there is little likelihood that a woman will wind up on the Democratic State Ticket.

Democratic Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren, State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane and State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko are virtually certain of renomination.

Mrs. Kathleen Ryan Dacey of Milton, former member of the Boston School Committee, is seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor, and Eva Hester of Milford, vice chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor. Neither is considered to have much chance of gaining a place on the Democratic Ticket.

Governor Sargent's advisers believe he will execute a worthwhile political coup if he can tell the women voters across Massachusetts that the Republicans nominated a member of their sex for state-wide office but that the Democrats didn't.

So if any of our lady readers would like to run for State Auditor or State Treasurer on the Republican ticket, they should drop Governor Sargent a note at the State House and tell him so.

Should Times' editors report on own worth?

CUFF NOTES:

When the New York Times wrote to 66 U.S. Senators and Congressmen in New York State, New Jersey and Connecticut requesting statements of their net worth and copies of their latest income tax returns, Senator James Buckley, brother of columnist and commentator William F. Buckley, Jr., replied that such information was none of the Times' business.

Buckley went on to suggest that since the Times wields more influence than the 66 Congressmen and Senators, it should have its key editors publish their tax returns. Senator Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and the Watergate Committee was one of those who complied with the Times request.

With an eye on the ladies' vote, Republican Senator Charles Percy of Illinois and Democratic Senator Walter Mondale of Minnesota, both Presidential hopefuls, declined to attend the annual Gridiron Club dinner because the club still bars women.

Bidding reportedly is fast, hard and high for the forthcoming book by Martha Mitchell, whose husband went on trial last week.

A survey by the Washington Post, which has been highly critical of President Nixon, found that any impeachment motion for Nixon's removal would fail by at least 17 votes in the upper branch of Congress.

Preparations were made to handle an overflow crowd when Joseph Alldredge, an auto parts salesman and leader of a San Diego group known as the Citizens To Impeach Nixon, hired a hall for a public meeting. Seventeen persons showed up, including speakers, staff workers and one newspaper reporter.

Holland, hard hit by the Arab oil embargo, introduced gasoline rationing. It lasted only 23 days. Nearly 1,000 of the 3,000 Dutch drivers applied for extra rations as "hardship cases."

Nelson Rockefeller, who resigned from the New York State Governorship to run for the Presidency, now says he won't make a decision on running until late next year. Rocky now favors impeaching President Nixon because, he says, that's the only thing that will satisfy the American people.

The frightening power of the oil lobby

To the Editor:

Top executives of the oil companies of America gave the Nixon re-election campaign more than $5 million. The executives of Gulf Oil gave more than 1 million of this sum! Several of these companies gave substantial sums from corporate resources and have been found guilty and fined.

This aspect of the activities of the dozen major oil corporations of America is only the most visible way by which they have sought to subvert public policy for their own selfish purposes. The oil lobby, invisible but insidious, haunts every corner of the policy making circles of Washington. Among countless examples of their influence are the following:

In 1926, the oil lobby persuaded Congress to give to this industry an indefensible 27.5 oil depletion allowance, — a "rip-off" which meant that the oil companies have paid far less taxes than any other group of corporations in America.

Just before Christmas of 1973, the House of Representatives passed for the first time in American history a limit on the excess or windfall profits of the oil industry. The oil lobby, aided by officials of the Nixon Administration, killed this provision and indeed the whole energy bill in the U.S. Senate.

The oil lobby which owns vast fortunes of the natural gas industry has been lobbying for many years to deregulate the price of natural gas. The Nixon Administration has concurred in this recommendation which in effect would mean that all price controls would be removed from the manufacture and merchandising of natural gas, — a fuel used by one third of the nation and purchased at a very modest price.

The natural gas industry was successful in early February in bringing about a 3-2 decision of the Federal Power Commission which virtually doubles the price of certain forms of natural gas from some areas of the United States. Fortunately, the Congress must act upon the question of whether or not the natural gas industry will be removed from the price-setting control of the Federal Power Commission.

At this particular time the Administration and the natural gas industry would have, in my judgment, a better than 50-50 chance of succeeding and removing the restraining hand of the Federal Power Commission from natural gas.

The oil industry has bought vast reserves of the fantastic deposits of coal in Montana, Colorado and elsewhere. The oil industry is now or shortly will be seeking tax "hand-outs" for their work in developing systems of coal delivery and scientific techniques for coal gasification.

The only possible way to work against the almost sinister oil lobby is to have a counter-lobby made up of well informed citizens. I will be happy to send reading materials on the energy crisis and all of its multi-dimensional aspects to any constituent who writes to me at my Washington office, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Comments on reorganization

To the Editor:

Mayor Mann's attempts at reorganizing the executive branch of our city government, as reported by the Newton Graphic, stir me to some comments.

The mayor is quoted as having said that "the only power that Salter would have (in his new position as chief administrative officer) would be that delegated to him by the mayor."

This statement by the mayor begs the question: Is the mayor of Newton ever empowered to delegate his executive power to anyone?

Referring to our city's charter, Section 3-2, Executive Power and Section 3-9, Temporary Absence from Office of the Mayor, the answer is an emphatic No. The last line of Section 3-2 reads: "To aid him (the mayor) in his official duties he may appoint one or more assistants, fix their salaries and define their duties"; and in Section 3-9 it is stipulated that "if . . . the Mayor shall be unable to attend to the duties of his office, the president of the Board of Aldermen, or in the event of his disability . . . then the vice president of the Board of Aldermen shall, as acting mayor, possess the powers of the Mayor only in those matters not admitting of delay, but he shall have no power to make permanent oppointments."

We see that the charter does not give the mayor authority to delegate his power to anybody, and that, on the contrary, it prescribes that in certain emergencies the power of the mayor shall temporarily, and in a limited way, be (automatically) passed by the president or the vice-president of the Board of Aldermen. Therefore, in the eyes of the charter the mayor's assistants remain merely "assistants," no matter what fancy titles the mayor may find it expedient in his personal interest to hang on them.

The mayor's proposed multistoried executive department appears to me to be entirely too top-heavy and will be found to be very expensive. It also gives the mayor a facile means of concealing his own shortcomings and of cashing in on the work of others; i.e., the mayor becomes too invisible and will gain in false prestige like a Japanese Mikado.

Also, one should not require much knowledge of management to realize that it is not in the best interest of our city to have highly qualified officials, such as our present building commissioner, put administratively under one of the mayor's assistants. High-quality professional men cannot in the long run afford such degradation.

Chestnut Street trees besieged again

To the Editor:

There is a tree in front of our home.

It is not an imposing tree, but it is about six feet in girth and has been providing shade on Chestnut Street for close to a century. Last summer, this tree became a very important tree. It was one of five trees slated for removal by the city as part of the Public Works program to widen Chestnut Street. It became a symbol — a sumbol of community action, of civic pride, of environmental concern, of people with diverse political views working together toward a common objective. Last summer with only a couple days notice over 150 West Newton residents went to a hearing at City Hall, got a new ordinance passed, and saved the five trees.

Early riday, Feb. 22, when I went outside to pick up our morning newspaper, I saw a crew of city workmen on Chestnut Street sawing limbs off THE TREE.

They indicated that the Newton Forestry Department had ordered the tree be cut down because it was dead. Did they have a permit? — No, only their boss' orders. Was proper notice posted on the tree? — No, only the notice posted last summer. Was the tree, in fact, dead? — Of course, a maple tree has no leaves in winter so I don't know for sure, but last summer everyone driving along Chestnut Street saw the leaves on this "X" marked tree.

When I threatened police action, they discontinued cutting down branches and left for their next job. Then, with a few phone calls, I got the tree removal postponed.

It is sad that the city government is so insensitive to the feelings of the community that this tree almost disappeared without a word of warning.

This tree which has become a community symbol also represents a community concern.

We have had enough arbitrary actions.

We have seen too many examples of the individual citizen helpless in the face of various levels of powerful government.

Good people in all kinds of bureaucratic institutions give the excuse that they e just following orders. They each do their job, but no one takes the responsibility for it.

Hopefully, our city officials will learn to be more responsive to the community and its wishes. If they don't listen to the people, the City will decline no matter what is done for its trees, roads, homes, or institutions.

Give us this day our daily gas

To the Editor:

To our daily trials and tribulations has now been added the anxiety of the fuel shortage and the apprenhension of an empty tank.

There was a time when we had no meat and ate chicken or fish; a time with no vegetables, but there was always something else we could substitute.

Now, we have a real problem and it has made other shortages seem like trifles — no gas, or very little. Can you imagine being confined to your home with no transportation?

The fuel gauge in my car was telling me there was little gas left. I had gone quite a few miles trying to get some gas, but it was hopeless. I envisioned myself with an empty tank right in the middle of an intersection.

Then on the horizon I saw hope in the form of a line. I joined that line and it was ever slowly moving up. My radio kept me company, but the news was not too encouraging; every station was repeating the same tune, "no gas, no gas, no gas."

After what seemed an eternity, I reached a spot where the pumps were visible. They still seemed so far away, just like a mirage. It was comforting though to know that they were there.

But to my disappointment, I saw what I dreaded most. One of the gas attendants was saying something to the driver of the car ahead of me. I could not hear what he said, but by the reaction of the driver, you could guess — no more gas.

I begged for a half a gallon to take me to my further wanderings in search of gas, but it was in vain.

I was never so light on the accelerator so as to save vital drops, and once again I found myself in another line.

Maybe this time I would be luckier. The line was very long, but it was moving, sometimes one inch, sometime even 10 feet. We seemed to be going by numerous driveways where cars were trying to break through out neverending line.

It was with some sort of a thrill that one went by without stopping in front of a driveway. It was like playing musical chairs.

I had been in line for an hour and a half; four more cars ahead of me and I was going to get my precious fluid. Suddenly, the attendant walked toward me. I turned my head, feeling uneasy. I did not want to hear the words.

He came up and asked: "Would you like to have your oil checked too?"

Appreciates fire aid

To the Editor:, Iwould like to express my very deep appreciation, and that of all at Boston College, to you and your men for the outstanding service you rendered us yesterday morning. The early morning fire in an apartment of the new Hillside Dormitory could obviously have become a tragedy of major proportions.

Everyone who has reported to me on the incident has expressed the highest praise for the speed, efficiency, professional competence courage and humane concern with which all members of the Newton Fire Department responeded to the situation.

Dangerous situations such as you encountered make all the more vivid the priceless value of the lives of our young men and women I am most heartened to know that the men in your Company serve with such dedicated competence for the protection of all of us.

Mau Ioffer a special word of commendation and of thanks to the officer who was hospitalized as a result of his efforts. I trust that he rapidly recovers and suffers no long term effects.

You and your men have the deep gratitude of Boston College.

Headline 'shallow'

To the Editor:

Your headlines on the front page of the Newton Graphic (2-15-74) "School Budget May Up Tax Rate $5" is a statement that is intellectually shallow and statistically inaccurate.

The tax rate is determined by all the operating expenses of the city government such as: snow removal, garbage collections, park department, police, fireman, maintenance, equipment, roads, schools and inflation, etc.

To single out the school budget as the only reason for the rise in tax rate is a slanted way of shifting the weight of responsibility, not only where it doesn't belong but where it does the most harm.

This type of reporting makes a caricature of education by announcing to the public that everyone involved inthe business of education is grossly overpaid vis-a-vis the raise in the tax rate.

The insidious consequences are obvious - for students, teachers and administrators are being wrongly categorized and leaving their humanity stripped away.

The simple truths are that education in Newton is grossly underfinanced — that teachers salary increases have not matched even the rise in the cost of living. These truths are never reported, instead your readers are fed contrary information which enlightens no one and only results in a confused and incredulous public.

Miss Lynde dedicated librarian

Dear Editor:

In these times when everything is being dehumanized, it is unusual that there exists a dedicated individual like Miss A. M. Lynde, the librarian at the Waban Branch library. She still believes in the Newton community and uses the facilities of her library to bring together the residents in the area.

Each month a stimulating talk and slide program is arranged by Miss Lynde who provides an opportunity over coffee and cake for neighbors to meet and share the excellent presentation by knowledeable world travelers right in our area, who are extraordinary photographers as well.

The Waban library has not only become a place to find good books but now has added another dimension for me. It is especially nice for the longtime residents of Newton to know there is always one neighborhood activity that's free, fun and furnishes an adventure in travel.

Recreation notes

Spring art programs planned

The Newton Recreation Department in an effort to develop the potential artistic talents of the community, is planning a series of spring art programs for adults and children.

Diana Strange, a Newton craftswoman, will teach an eight-week workshop in quilt making at the Material World Fabric Store, 1280 Centre St., Newton Centre.

The Recreation Department will sponsor a drawing and design class with instruction by Maxine Sorokin, a painter now teaching at the Art Institute of Boston. She has exhibited her paintings in many galleries and recently co-designed and painted stained glass windows for the Kahillath Jacob Synagogue.

For whose who want to master the latest dance steps, Rochelle Berman, who presently teaches discoteque dancing at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education, will be offering a program of discotheque dancing in Newton.

Gail Forman, creative dramatics instructor, is about to begin registration for her classes for children between the ages of eight and 11. Interested young people may sign up at the Recreation Department before March 12.

The class will be conducted at the Auburndale Library during eight successive Tuesday afternoons beginning March 19. The classes, from 3:45 - 5:00 p.m. will stress improvisation, movement and skits. There is a small registration fee.

A children's dance class is also being planned. Interested people may call the Recreation Department at 969-3171.

A complete schedule of dates and times for these classes will be available next week.

Archery classes are continuing at the Newton Centre Fieldhouse on Wednesday nights. A shoot out is scheduled to determine the top archers in the group. Those selected will represent Newton in a second annual match with Waltham. The local archers, coached by Bill Baker and Ray Minard, and assisted by recreation leader Mark Lennon won last year's match. The program is for young people eight to 15 years of age. The weather recently ended tobogganing and skating. The entire Recreation Department staff urges parents and children to be extremely careful about the ice on the local ponds. While the ice may appear safe, it is pointed out that it deteriorates from the bottom and consequently the danger of rotten ice is very real.

There are still some openings in the badminton program conducted at the Warren Junior High School from 8 - 10:30 p.m. Thursday nights. The program is conducted by Mrs. Jennie Rogan and Leo Pasaro. Those who want to participate should bring their own rackets and wear appropriate sports wear.

The response to programs at elementary schools and junior high schools has been good. There is a general gym program for the elementary schools and basketball at the junior highs.

A special Saturday afternoon program is conducted for girls at the Day Junior High School from 1:30 - 4:30 p.m.

A new junior and senior high school age youth center opened at the Meadowbrook Junior High last Saturday night and is scheduled to continue through April. The center is open from 7 - 11 p.m. on Saturdays, and features sports and other activities.

The Recreation Department's co-ed gymnastics program will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, March 9 at Newton North High School's simulated outdoor area. Young people, 10 to 14 years of age, may register at the first session, or get further information by calling 969-3171. Classes for beginners will be conducted from 9 - 10:20 a.m. and classes for advanced beginners and intermediates will meet from 10:30 to 11:50 a.m.

An exercise and dance workshop continues at the Newton Centre Playground fieldhouse on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. Interested women may attend one, or both of these workshops.

The championship round of the Newton Women's Volleyball League will begin at Day Junior High School on Monday, March 4. The "B" Division game will begin at 7 p.m. and the "A" Division game is scheduled for 8 p.m.

The indoor tennis program at Newton South High School runs from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday and 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturdays. Players are limited to doubles only, and may reserve courts by calling 965-0267 from 7 - 8 p.m. 48 hours in advance of the desired playing date. Players should use the entrance opposite the Wheeler House parking area.

Tuesday March 12, is the date for an organizational meeting for girls interested in a Senior High Basketball League scheduled to begin play in March. Interested individuals and team representatives may attend the meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. at Day Junior High. For further information, people may call Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle at 969-3171.

In the Newton Recreation Department's City Basketball Leagues, the Boys' Club and the Troubadours, with five wins and no losses are tied for first place in the "A" Division of the American League. Next is George's Cafe with a record of five wins and one defeat.

The American League "B" Division leader is the Big Blue Club with six wins and no losses. Second is the Ziphaels, 5-1, and third, Upper Falls, 4-1.

The National League standings have Newton Centre and the No Names deadlocked in first place with eight wins and two losses each. The Boys' Club and Hawthorn are also tied as each have five wins and four defeats.

Leading the Pony League is the Hawthorn A Team with a 6-0 record. The Boys' Club and Newton Centre, each at 4 and 2, are tied for second. Next is Sacred Heart, at 3-3.

Spring Fair for co-op nursery

A Spring Fair will be held by the Newton Upper Falls Co-op Nursery School on Saturday, March 2, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the First Methodist Church, 5 Summer St., Upper Falls.

A variety of house plants and handmade items will be offered for sale, and there will be rummage tables.

Lunch and refreshments will be served.

Girl Scout cookies to be delivered soon

Newton South Girl Scout Troops sold 5,450 boxes, according to Mrs. George Jessup, neighborhood cookiechairman.

Mrs. Harold Fairbanks, cookie chairman of the Newton North neighborhood reports that girls have sold 12,100 boxes of cookies, topping last year's sales by over 1000 boxes.

Beginning March 4 and extending through March 16, the girls will deliver cookies to households and collect payment of $1 per box. Additional boxes may be purchased on March 14, 15, and 16 when cadette and senior scouts will set up booths for immediate sales of all five varieties.

Cadette Troop No. 654 will be at Riverside MBTA Station. Senior troop 545 will sell cookies in King's Department Store and in The Big Buy Market on Watertown Street. Senior troop 532's cookie booth will be located in the First National Store on Washington Street, Newtonville.

Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Fairbanks pointed out that troops hope to expand their sales in order to have more money for troop programs.

"Many of them are involved in conservation, learning to skills of survival camping and investigating local historical sites for girl scouting's part in bicentennial celebrations," Mrs. Fairbankssaid. "Also, service projects for senior citizens, tutoring children with learning disabilities and teaching camping skills to physically handicapped young people require additional funds from troop treasuries. Cookies are the main source of this money, and we're grateful to all who bought them."

Reading lists to be offered by library

On Sunday, March 3, 1974, at 7:30 p.m., the first of a series of one-hour science films, probably under the general title of NOVA, will be shown on WGBH-TV - Channel 2 and other educational channels across the country.

These films deal with the ways in which scientists observe the world around us. Several look at some of our natural resources and how we are treating them. Some of the films have been specially prepared for this series, oters have been shown previously by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

As a follow up to these film showings, the Newton Free Library will make available reading lists which may enable library patrons to pursue further some of the questions raised by the television programs.

These lists intended for reference use and prepared by the Boston Public Library for its Eastern Regional Library Systems members may be consulted at the reference desks of the Newton Free Library.

Reading lists, silent partners to readers' advisory services offered by public libraries, are useful and valuable tools to librarians and readers.

The Newton Free Library prepares many of its own; it receives others prepared by the Eastern Regional Library System for its members.

Some lists available at the Nwton Free Library include: "Boys with Hang-Ups," a selected list of books for young adults; "Law and Ofder;" "Black Pride," a list of black life and culture for all ages; "American Indian; and Some Things Can Never Be Axplained," a list of books on the occult and the supernatural.

Major exhibit of Alaskan art at Fine Arts Museum

The most important exhibition of native Alaskan art ever assembled comes to the Museum of Fine Arts March 6 through May 26. The Far North: 2000 Years of American Eskimo and Indian Art has received international acclaim since its debut at the National Gallery of art in Washington D.C. last March. Boston is the final visit for this traveling exhibition which was organized by the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art, Fort Worth, Texas.

Most of the artifacts in the exhibition date from early explorations in the Pacific Northwest before Alaska was acquired by the United States in 1867. For more than 200 years, the region was visited by explorers and fur traders who returned to their homes in Russia, Western Europe and the Eastern seaboard of the U.S. carrying choice native objects with them.

Four distinct cultures are represented in the exhibition—the Athabaskan, Eskimo, Aleut and Tlingit. The objects on view—ceremonial masks and regalia, clothing, household items, etc—were traced to their present owners in assembling the exhibition.

Other pieces included have only been uncovered in recent decades by archaelogical excavation. This show reunites for the first time over 300 objects from collections all over the Western hemisphere. Many of these have never before been exhibited to the public.

High points in the exhibition include a 15 foot reconstrucfion of a Kashim or 'dance house,' modeled after the original made from whale jaw bones, and a 14 foot Kwakiutl totem pole. Visitors will be able to view these objects in their natural context with the mountainous terrain, costal edge and mossy flora recreated in the galleries.

The Museum of Fine Arts has organized an extensive educational program in conjunction with The Far North. A series of gallery talks and lectures will be given by native Alaskans and eminent anthropologists. A program of films providing additional insight into traditional and contemporary life styles of the Alaskan natives will be screened regularly. One of the first and finest ethnographic films ever made, Nanook of the North by Robert Flaherty is on the schedule.

A slide-tape presentation on view in an adjoining gallery focuses on the land and life styles of contemporary Alaskan natives. A segment of the tape will be devoted to poetry readings in the native Alaskan language. Also on view in gallery AB will be the artwork of Alaskan children and photographic portraits. Special events include craft demonstrations, dance performances and story-telling for children. A catalogue illustrating all of the works in the exhibition is available. An additional fee of 50c for adults and 25c for children under 16 is charged for admission to this major special exhibition.

Guest curator of the Far North exhibition is Peter L Corey, former Curator at Cooperstown Indian Museum and the Alaskan State Museum, Juneau. He is also a consultant for the major Northwest Coast Exhibit scheduled to open in March— at the Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology, Harvard University.

The Northwest Coast Exhibit is one of the first significant exhibitions in American Anthropology to have extensive direct involvement from the native people whose life is documented in the show. Continuing a tradition of cooperation between the two museums, Corey is coordinating resources for the complementary exhibition.

VA information

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

—o—

Q—Can the Veterans Administration still guarantee GI home loans for widows based on deaths of their husbands in service in 1946?

A—Yes. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 restored unused, expired loan benefits to veterans and unremarried widows of World War II and later periods.

Q—I was discharged from service June 15, 1966, and would like to enter on-job training. What's the time frame?

A—Veterans discharged after Jan. 31, 1955, have eight years from date of last separation or until Aug. 30, 1975, whichever is later, to use flight, farm cooperative and on-job training benefits provided by the Veterans Administration.

Q—I live in a state which has no burial space for veterans in its national cemetery. Will the Veterans Administration pay anything toward costs of burial plots in private cemeteries for such veterans?

A—Yes. Under Public Law 93-43 enacted in June 1973, VA pays up to $150 in plot and interment costs of veterans not buried in national cemeteries

League schedules annual State Legislative Workshop

The League of Women Voters of Newton will hold a "State Legislative Workshop" Tuesday, March 5, at 8 p.m. at 5 Malubar Lane, Newton Centre.

This is an annual event at which the state legislators who represent the citizens of Newton are invited to meet with League members and other interested citizens to discuss the impact of recent legislation, important bills currently under consideration, and areas where state action is anticipated or deemed necessary.

State Senator Irving Fishman and State Representatives Lois Pines, David Mofenson, Peter Harrington, and Paul Guzzi will each give a short address.

A question and discussion period will follow at which time legislation of particular concern to the League and citizens of Newton will be considered.

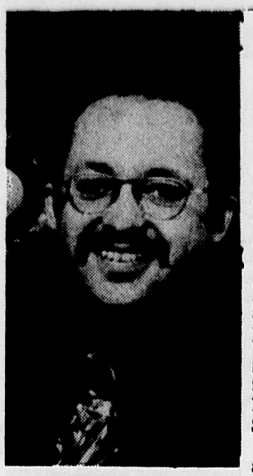
The League of Women Voters of Massachusetts is supporting and promoting new state legislation in many areas.

The League has proposed bills to create a Judicial Nomination Commission for the purpose of recommending persons qualified for judicial appointments to the Governor and to establish a Commission on Judicial Conduct.

The League is supporting legislation which would establish a School District within the Department of Corrections in order to organize educational and vocational training programs for prison inmates and parolees and thereby assist their rehabilitation. In order to achieve more equitable taxation, the League is supporting bills designed to equalize property valuations throughout the state and to change the formula by which state and county taxes are assessed to the cities and towns so that assessments will be fair and in accordance with current ability to pay.

The construction of new housing for families with low and moderate incomes is a continuing concern and legislation to advance this program will have League support. Other areas of special concern are public transportation, education, environmental quality and the reorganization of state government.

The "State Legislative Workshop" is open to the public and citizens of Newton are invited to participate. The meeting has been planned by Phyllis Schwartz, chairman and Liz Lieberman, vice-chairman. For further information, directions or transportation call Judy Lavine at 969-2953.



DAVID SHRIER of Newton has been appointed consultant-associate at Intermedia Soutn Sound of Boston. A tenor saxophonist and former leader of Lifeblood, he is currently co-producing "Duck Soup" for Perception Records.

Oil paintings at bank

Marjorie S. Millen, a native of Newton, recently returned from Europe, where she had been working and traveling for four months, and launched a new season with a show of oil paintings and drawings at the National Shawmut Bank, Chestnut Hill, Ave., in Brookline.

Miss Millen, known for landscape paintings, has now added new themes. Some of her art reflects the ancient villages of Ein Hod in Israel where she lived this past summer and studied with Israeli artists. It was in this village that she made her summer studio and exhibited in an annual show which has spectators from many nations.

After traveling extensively throughout Israel Miss Millen's work has begun to show the ancient culture and the religious traditions of the Jewish people. One can now see such scenes as a rabbi with his grandson in slumber upon his lap or a graceful young woman softly bent in prayer over the sabbath candles.

After a brief return to the United States, Miss Millen returned abroad. She lived and created studios to work in Spain, Portugal, France, Belgium, Luxumbourg, Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, and Italy.

The promotions fill vacancies created by the retirements of Lieutenant Joseph P. Walton after 36 years of service, Lieutenant John W. Greeley after 33 years of service, and Lieutenant James W. Woodlock after 25 years of service.

The three lieutenants assumed their new duties in their respective assignments on Sunday, Feb. 10 at 8 a.m.

Car pools discussed

Car pools are catching on fast. But there are hitches, too.

A report by one of the major gasoline companies, says the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, shows that a major objection in car pools is a reluctance to be subjected to cigarette smoke.

Kermit L. Smith of California's Group Against Smoking Pollution has urged businesses and computerized car pools to provide a choice of nonsmoking as well as smoking car pools.

A list of car pool courtesies was printed. Asking people not to smoke topped the list. Here are some of the other requests: be on time; avoid heated discussions; don't ask to make special stops on the way to and from work; be sure your insurance covers passengers in your car; don't bring along breakfast or office work to do en route; remember that silence can be golden and don't hesitate not to talk.

Considering the rights of nonsmokers is a common courtesy for car pools. To find out more about ways to fight indoor and outdoor pollution, people may call the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at 326-4081.

Solar energy in the home

By SYLVIA S. FIELD

For those interested in cleaning up the environment and in reducing the cost of home fuel bills, solar heaters and coolers may be the answer.

Peter Glaser, a solar systems expert at A. D. Little, has suggested that potentially about 10 percent of the energy used to heat and cool homes and buildings could be saved if solar energy were used; even a savings of 1 percent would be the equivalent of one million barrels of oil a year.

Even more optimistic soar advocates estimate as musch as a 60 percent savings in residential energy if a majority of American homes were at least partially solar heated and cooled. A NASA report to the House Interior Committee sees a widespread conversion to this concept as no dream but within range within the next five years.

Solar heaters were in widespread use in the southern U.S. in the thirties. Many are still in workable condition. In India, Austria, Israel, the USSR, and Japan (where there are some 400,000 installed), they are extremely popular.

How does such a device work? Solar heating generally involves the heating of water in a solar collector with some storage mechanism. There are many variations to this pattern. Let us see some examples.

The Japanese have developed a rooftop plastic collector which sells for $10. The amount of hot water available depends on the size of the blackened surface which collects the heat. This model has no long-term storage capacity and must be refilled every day.

Another type of heater which uses an aluminum collecting shield painted black and connected to a fiberglass-insulated holding tank is being developed by a firm in Perry, Fla. A small electric circulating pump on a 120-volt line using 2 amps is large enough for this small unit. The cost as yet is unknown because of the ever-rising price of aluminum; the firm hopes, however, that the heater would pay for itself in two years because of reduced fuel bills.

For people in the very sunny climes of the South and Southwest, there is still another kind of solar heater. Two astronomers, Aden and Marjorie Meinel, have invented a model which they say can be built in a half a day for $100.00. It uses a polyethylene bag and warm forced air. By spending another $100, one could adapt the system to store heat for a limited time.

Another method of solar heating is with solar silicon cells on the roof of buildings. An experimental house incorporating these cells is being built by the University of Delaware. Until solar cells are mass-produced, the cost of this system will not be competitive with gas and oil heating.

The next step beyond heating water is to pump it through a radiator or duct system to heat a home. This has been done with great success in Washington, CC., by Dr. Harry Thomason. In his house, water pumped up to his roof cascades down the southeast slope through heat-trap panels, sometimes at temperatures near the boiling point.

This hot water flows into a storage tank under the house where its heat is transferred to a bed of coarse stones. Air blown through the stones absorbs heat and is piped through ducts to warm the house. At the same time, water is also heated for the domestic supply and for a swimming pool.

As the stored water cools, it is pumped back up to the roof for reheating and the cycle is repeated. In summer, the operation is neatly reversed. Water is cooled by a refrigerating coil and pumped up to the northeast side of the roof. Here itbathes the roof and is cooled by evaporation. Air blown through the cold stones surrounding the water tank is also piped through the house to cool it. The compressor works only at night, at off-peak hours, when temperatures are lower; this is in marked contrast to conventional air conditioners, which consume vast power operating in the heat of the day.

Dr. Thomason estimates that he has been able to run his three-bedroom home on about $7.00 worth of oil for supplementary heating a year. Plans are available (for a cost of $10.00) for building a solar system such as he has constructed. He figures installation costs at $2000-$2500.

As we realize we cannot much longer squander the fossil fuels of the earth, it is high time we look to the sun. This is a resource that won't give out for millions of years, which causes virtually no pollution and is completely self-renewing; and finally, no outside potentiate or country can divert it from the earth.

Impeachment resolution passed by Democratic City Committee

The following resolution on the impeachment of the President was overwhelmingly passed by the Newton Democratic City Committee ast its duly scheduled meeting Feb. 21, 1974:

It is the resolve of the Democratic City Committees of the City of Newton, Massachusetts, that the United States House of Representatives ought to vote to bring a formal accusation against, that is, to impeach, Richard M. Nixon, so that he may be fairly tried by the United States Senate on the question of whether he ought to be removed from office.

In our view there is now sufficient, undisputed, public evidence or probably cause at least to accuse the President of bribery and other high crimes and misdemeanors, which we interpret to mean fundamental subversions of our constitutional form of government.

Among the constitutional crimes of which we think the President can justly be accused are the following:

1. He twice invited the federal judge who was then presiding over the Ellsberg case, a celebrated test case on the sanctity of classified documents, to his offices in California and had his top domestic aide offer the judge the directorship of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In so doing, he appears to have committed the specifically impeachable offense of bribery, which is to give or offer to a governmental official something of value in return for a hoped-for benefit to which the giver might otherwise not be entitled.

2. He ordered the bombing of Cambodia, a neutral country, without authority from Congress, and he ordered that the bombing be concealed from, and that false reports be given to, Congress and the American people. In this he arrogated to himself the power to declare war, which is constitutionally given only to Congress, and he carried on a major policy of secret governmental activity which was inconsistent with democratic government.

3. He ordered the creation and operation of a secret contingent of private detectives authorized and empowered by him to conduct mail covers, to eavesdrop, wiretap, break and enter and even burgle, all in contravension not only of federal and state criminal law but also of fundamental constitutional protections against search and seizure and privacy generally.

4. He many times directed the suppression of First Amendment rights of freedom of the press, peaceful assembly and protest, the most outrageous instance being the dragnet arrest of over 12,000 people in Washington, D.C., in May 1971, virtually every one of whom was subsequently released by the courts for failure of evidence to justify either their prosecution or arrest.

5. Finally–above and beyond any one of these specifically cited illegal acts, that can be charged against him–he has personally shaped and presided over an administration that has displayed a consistent pattern of deception of the public, of concealment of evidence related to unlawful acts and misuses of power committed by some of its own chief policy makers, and of disregard for the traditional norms of national political morality. This pattern of executive conduct constitutes a flagrant subversion of the concept of a constitutional Presidency, as that concept is understood by most American citizens.

While as Democrats we disagree on many matters relating to how we must solve pressing economic and other problems, we are in full agreement that a thoroughly discredited President cannot lead our country in theses difficult times. The constitutional process of impeachment is the only proper way to discover the truth and restore confidence in our democratic institutions.

Students return from India

On Tuesday, Feb. 12, an assembly was held at the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart to welcome home two faculty members and six students who recently returned from a month long trip to India.

Sister Capelli, Ms. Ardis Cameron, Marion Martignetti, Joan Barron, Deedee White, Mari Klett, Eileen Heenan and Debbie McGowan joined a group of twenty students from Sacred Heart Schools throughout the United States who participated in an experiment in international living. Arrangements were made by the Order, which has schools on six continents.

After a preparatory seminar in Washington, D.C., the group flew to Bombay on Dec. 29. From there they traveled by train to Poona where they spent four days in an ecumenical Ashram or "place of prayer". They ate vegetarian meals, seated on the floor, and followed the daily prayer program of yoga and chanting.

MIT head never took tax cut

Said Wiesner: "Although I donated my papers from the 1961 to 1964 period, when I served as the president's science adviser to the National Archives, I never took a tax deduction for that gift. I don't know where the President got his information but he's wrong. I have never taken an income tax deduction for any of my papers."

Galbraith said the papers he donated were "mainly private manuscripts and personal correspondence. Any public papers I had in Washington or in New Delhi (where he served as ambassador) were left behind with the government and I never even thought of taking a tax deduction." He said the deduction on his private papers was $4,500. "It was 100 times less than the President's and no juggling of dates was required."

Humphrey has acknowledged giving his public papers to the Minnesota Historical Society ever since he was mayor of Minneapolis but said last year he took no deductions on his vice hresidential papers.

Lenten rules for Catholics announced

In a recent statement sent to all Catholic Churches in the Archdioces of Boston, Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston listed the Lenten Regulations for 1974. The rules are as follows:

ABSTINENCE: Catholics over 14 years of age are bound to the obligation of abstinence. Abstinence is to be observed on Ash Wednesday and the Fridays of Lent.

FAST: Catholics over 21 and under 59 years of age are bound to obligation of fasting. Ash Wednesday and Good Friday are days of fasting. On these days, only one full meal is allowed. Two other meatless meals, sufficient to maintain strength, may be taken according to each man's needs, but together they should not equal another full meal. Eating between meals is not permitted, but liquids are allowed.

In recent years there have been many changes in the regulations regarding fasting and abstinence. There has been no change, however, in the need for works of penance.

Lent is a period of special penitential observance. The obligation to fast and to abstain from meat still binds on Ash Wednesday and Good Friday.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

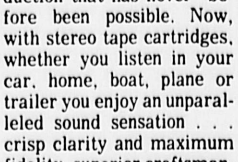
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

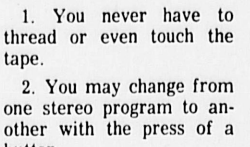
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Across the Kitchen Counter

Someone was saying the other day, that one of their fondest childhood memories was Sunday dinner when dad would carve a roast leg of lamb and mother would serve mounds of creamy whipped potatoes and tiny green peas.

Today many of us shy away from the lamb section of the meat department in our supermarkets because our budgets just won't allow the luxury of lamb chops and leg of lamb — however, there are some cuts of lamb that stand out in flavor and can fit into the food budget without strain.

Have you ever tried ground lamb? You'll find it has practically the same texture as ground beef, cuts and chews like hamburger, is quite tasty and is a lot less expensive. You can generally count on getting four big patties from a pound of ground lamb. The Lamb Kebobs on a bun features fresh ground lamb and hot Italian sausage mixed together and shaped into meatballs. These lamb-sausage meatballs are placed on skewers along with tiny whole onions and broiled until done.

Try lamb riblets. Cut from the breast, each riblet containes a bone surrounded by tender meat that's interspersed with enough fat to keep meat moist for broiling or baking. Allow about ½ to ¾ pound per person. (One note of caution: lamb ribs are best when pre-cooked before cooking to safeguard against excess fat.)

When you buy lamb neck slices, cook them the slow, moist heat way. The slices are cut across the neck and there is a small amount of fat covering the outside of each slice. If you cook the meat well in advance of the time it is needed, the excess fat can be removed by refrigerating the dish and removing whatever fat solidifies on top. Or, fat may be skimmed from top of sauce during the cooking process.

In serving lamb, be imaginative. Don't limit yourself to traditional mint jelly or mint sauce — try cling peach halves with a dollop of currant jelly in each hollow — broil slowly until peaches are heated through and jelly forms a lovely glaze. Serve hot.

GRILLED OR BROILED LAMB PATTIES

1½ pounds ground lamb
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon rosemary leaves
1 garlic clove, crushed
½ teaspoon pepper
1 chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine all ingredients and shape into six patties. Grill or broil on both sides until done — turn once during cooking. May be basted with ONION SOUP BASTE: Combine ¼ cup salad oil, 1½ cups water and 1 envelope dehydrated onion soup in a pan and simmer for 10 minutes. Brush over lamb patties at start and as frequently as desired. Store surplus in refrigerator.

LAMB KEBOBS ON A BUN

1½ pounds ground lamb
½ pound hot Italian sausage, in bulk
1 cup bread crumbs
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
24 small whole onions
1 pkg. (1½ oz.) spaghetti sauce mix
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
Water
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
Shredded lettuce
6 submarine rolls

Combine lamb, sausage, bread crumbs, eggs, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly and shape into meatballs about 1¼-inch in diameter (about 36 meatballs). Alternate 3 meatballs and 2 onions on short skewers. Place on broiler pan and broiler about 3 minutes per side, turning meatballs 3 or 4 times. Meanwhile, prepare spaghetti sauce according to package directions using tomato sauce and water. While sauce simmers, add the mushrooms and stir. Assemble the open-face sandwiches by placing some shredded lettuce on each half of a submarine roll; top each half with a meatball kebob and gently remove skewer. Spoon some sauce over the entire sandwich; serve 2 halves per person.

SAVORY LAMB LOAF

1½ pounds ground lamb
1 cup uncooked regular or quick-cooking oats
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Mozzarella cheese
1 cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

In a bowl lightly mix lamb, oats, cheese, milk, egg, celery, onion, salt and pepper just until blended. Form into a loaf on a jelly roll pan, 15½x2x10½ by one inch. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 1¼ hours. Let stand for 10 minutes. Transfer to warm serving platter. Serve with Sour Cream Dill Sauce:

SOUR CREAM DILL SAUCE

1 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon dill weed
½ teaspoon salt

In a 1-quart saucepan, blend sour cream, onion, dill weed and salt; heat over low heat, stirring occasionally until hot, DO NOT BOIL. Serve hot over lamb loaf.

CHILI BARBECUED LAMB SPARERIBS

2 cups water
One-third cup lime or lemon juice
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon cumin seed
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon oregano leaves
3 cloves garlic
4 pounds lamb spareribs
2 small green peppers, quartered
Salad oil
2 medium tomatoes cut in wedges

Combine water, lime or lemon juice, salt and seasonings in large saucepan. Bring to a boil and add lamb. Cover and simmer for 1 hour, or until meat is tender. Drain spareribs and place on skewers with green pepper. Brush peppers with oil and sprinkle with salt. Grill or broil 6 or 7 inches from source of heat for 10 to 15 minutes per side, or until meat is well browned. Just before serving, place tomato wedges on ends of skewers to heat. Serves 4.

COUNTRY KITCHEN LAMB STEW

2 teaspoons salad oil
1½ pounds boneless lamb shoulder cut in 2-inch cubes
Two-thirds cup sliced onion
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
¾ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
Water
1 tablespoon flour
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 can (1 lb.) peas and carrots with liquid

Heat oil in large heavy skillet or saucepan; brown lamb in it on all sides. Add onion, let brown slightly. Drain off fat. Stir in salt, spices and ½ cup water; simmer, covered, about 2 hours. If necessary, add a little more water during simmering. Blend 2 tablespoons water into flour; pour into pan with meat; add tomato sauce, and peas and carrots with all their liquid. Continue to cook, with occasional stirring until stew is smoothly thickened (about 15 minutes). Serve with small boiled potatoes. Serves 4.

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Mrs. G. R. I., Roslindale, sends us a recipe sent to her by her sister in Oregon. This is a recipe she uses often because of the current low price of chicken — our thanks to our reader and her sister for this unusual, tasty dish.

CHICKEN AND APRICOTS

¼ cup corn oil
2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery
2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon ginger
⅛ teaspoon mace
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups chicken broth
1 egg
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 can (1 lb.) unpeeled apricot halves
¼ cup slivered almonds

Heat oil in large frying pan; add chicken pieces and brown on all sides. Add onion and celery. Sprinkle with monosodium glutamate, salt, pepper, ginger and mace. Sprinkle flour over all and gradually stir in broth. Cover and simmer 25-30 minutes, until chicken is tender. Remove chicken. In a small bowl beat egg and add lemon juice, rind and ¼ cup syrup from apricots; add to pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil, thickening. Add chicken, drained apricot halves and almonds; heat through. Serves 8.

Question: Would you please tell me how I can use the packets of supposedly liquid chocolate when the chocolate (bitter) inside packet is usually too hard to get our without making an awful mess? I am also enclosing a casserole dish that is both economical as well as quick — we love it. — Mrs. McD., Dedham

Answer: The cooking chocolate you refer to should be allowed to rest in a glass or dish of hot water — the chocolate will melt and all you have to do is cut the top and squeeze out to be used. It's a good idea to follow this method even during the warm months when the chocolate is supposed to be melted within the plastic packet container — I still soak it for a minute to avoid any difficulty. Thank for your delightful casserole.

SPINACH AND HAMBURGER CASSEROLE

1 pound hamburger
2 tablespoons oil
1 pkg. frozen spinach
1 can cream of mushroom soup
2 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper
One-third cup grated cheddar cheese
3 tablespoons bread crumbs

Brown meat in oil, draining off fat if necessary, add the spinach. Cover and cook till spinach thaws. Stir in mushroom soup, soy sauce, pepper and cheddar cheese. Cook over low heat till cheese melts. Place in casserole and sprinkle with more cheese and dry bread crumbs. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes.

Question: I've always wanted an electric blender and finally received one as a house gift from a relative. What cookbook can you recommend and do you have a recipe for a dessert I can make in the blender — something easy? Thank you. — Mrs. P. A., W. Roxbury Answer: The book I would recommend is "The Complete Blender Cookbook," by Sylvia Schur, Simon and Schuster. Here's a dandy imitation cheese cake you'll love.

INSTANT "CHEESE" CAKE

1 cup milk
1 cup sour cream
1 strip thinly peeled limon rind
1 pkg. instant vanilla pudding
Prepared crumb crust

Into container put milk, sour cream, lemon rind and pudding mix. Blend 1 to 2 seconds. Stop, scrape down from side as necessary. Pour into crumb crust. Chill 5 minutes or longer, until set. Serves 5-6.

Question: My grandmother used to make delicious sour cream cookies — when she would come to visit, I would look forward to coming home from school because I'd be able to stuff myself with her soft cookies and milk. Do you have a good sour cream cookie recipe please? — Mrs. D. M., Newton Centre

Answer: I hope these cookies bring back sweet memories!

OLD FASHIONED SOUR CREAM COOKIES

½ cup shortening (½ margarine if desired)
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sour cream
2 and two-thirds cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Combine shortening and sugar and beat well; add egg, vanilla and sour cream, beating well. Mix together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and nutmeg and add to creamed mixture, mixing well. Roll dough on floured board one-inch thick and cut with cookie cutter. Bake in 350 degree oven 10-15 minutes. Cool on wire cake rack.

Question: This winter I discovered that I too can bake a really good pizza and my family looks forward to this weekly treat. I'm looking for new pizza recipes — I've already tried the standard cheese and tomato and mushroom-green pepper. — Mrs. G., Dedham

Answer: According to the United States Brewers Association, beer has a two-fold purpose, that of adding its own special seasoning and also giving your pizza crust a light airy texture which makes it more crisp and tender with good color. I think you'll want to add this unusual recipe to your pizza recipe list:

BEER PIZZA DOUGH

1 envelope active dry yeast
1 cup warm beer
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons olive oil
3¼ cups all purpose flour

Dissolve yeast in beer. Stir in salt and olive oil. Gradually add flour and beat until smooth. Knead dough on lightly floured board until dough is elastic. Brush top with olive oil, cover lightly, let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk. After dough rises — divide in half, roll each into a ball. With fingers press to fit two 12" greased pizza pans or two 13 x 9-inch greased baking pans, making edges thicker and slightly higher than center. Brush with additional olive oil. Add filling:

BEER PIZZA FILLING

½ pound Italian sausage
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ cup beer
1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
1 garlic clove, minced
½ teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon thyme
½ teaspoon salt
1 can (3 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
½ pound Mozzarella cheese, sliced thin or shredded

Cut sausage into small pieces and brown well in olive oil. Add beer, tomato sauce, garlic, oregano, thyme, salt and mushrooms. Simmer for 15 minutes. Yield: approximately 2 cups sauce.

Divide sauce between two pizzas (1 cup each). Cover each pizza with Mozzarella and bake in preheated oven, 450 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until crust is golden. Yield: 2 pizzas.

Imperfect, but pretty

Lucky is the girl who is 5 feet, 5 inches tall and weighs a hundred and fifteen pounds. The world is her oyster—fashion wise.

What about those who are too big to fit into model sizes, not the least bit interested in sewing, and really want lovely clothes? Up to now frustrating sessions in the fitting room have resulted in the shopper leaving the store in disgust wondering why she's short-changed by the fashion world.

Complaints have fallen on deaf ears; however, designers today—those who were swinging on a youth kick—have rationalized wisely that it's the mature woman as well as the young working gal (on the plump side) who has the money to spend on clothes and doesn't mind investing in the kind of clothes that last more than one season.

Actually, the average woman is a person with failings in the 36-24-36 department. Not every woman who wears size 16 is middle aged or above—many teen age girls have big frames, not figure problems, they're just big.

Wear a half size? Some women would rather wear ill-fitting misses size dresses then admit to wearing a half size. Unfortunately, "half size" has a bad connotation. People thinkit means old lady cresses because department stores would section off one part of the floor for half sizes which were generally dull, dowdy, old look-alike fashions. As a result, manufacturers shy away from the term saying that women have a psychological block against it because to them it means "fat."

What makes a woman a half size?

Half sizes are designed for the figure with a shorter waistline, more generous bust and hips, relatively narrow shoulders. Salespeople have long said, "Today's junior is tomorrow's half size customer." Not all women who wear junior fashions actually are junior sizes; many, especially in the younger group,choose junior styles because they have a younger look and are willing to sacrifice fit for this style.

New fashions for half-size dresses have changed dramatically in the past few years. Once thought of as a dress or dress and coat line primarily, sportswear in young-looking styles now feeds a hungry market. Strong sellers for spring are pantsuits, two-piece looks as well as the dress and coat.

Chances are if your silhouette shows you as being small-boned, small-busted, under five feet tall and generally minuscule in size, you've been raiding the children's department and savings have been tremendous because children's styles are similar to adults. Generally, women who wear a size 3 in junior garments would comfortably fit a size 12 or 14 in children's wear.

The only difficulty may be the difference in the length of the crotch and the hipline on pants—some elasticized hiphuggers in a girl's size will fit a woman. The loose fitting tent-type dresses nearly always do nicely, with the added plus that fabrics as well as tailoring seem to be better, probably because children are expected to be rougher on their clothes.

So, for the less than perfect figures, here are some fashion pointers from the experts:

IF YOU'RE PETITE AND SLENDER: Do wear short jackets or boleros, short-waisted or beltless princess lines; fabrics that are not too bulky; round or modified necklines; slim lines rather than box pleats or side drapes; delicate trimming in the same color as your costume so that you won't break the line.

Don't wear fussy details, large collars and don't overdo the cute look with ruffly fashions.

IF YOU'RE LARGE: Choose a coat that covers the dress without an exposed hem. The seven-eighths length coat is not good for a large woman unless she is very tall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ascolese feted on golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Ascolese of 163 Lincoln Street, Newton Highlands Mass. recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at the Marriott Motor Inn.

A 6:00 p.m. Mass was said by Msgr. William A. Granville of Sacred Heart Church assisted by members of the family. Grandsons Timothy and Richard Ascolese were servers, sons Michael and Francis Ascolese were lectors, and another grandson Kevin Ascolese and three granddaughters Christine Cocca, Theresa Marie Cocca, and Jacqueline Ascolese were offertory gift bearers. Dinner and dancing followed the Mass.

The head table was beautifully decorated, featuring a large, golden anniversary cake floral piece and photograph of the original wedding party. Individual tables were decorated with floral centerpieces.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Micahel Ascolese and wife Jean from Cininnatti, Ohio; another son Francis Ascolese from Wheaton, Ill.; a daughter Barbara Cocca of Newton Highlands, eight grandchildren and one great grandchild.

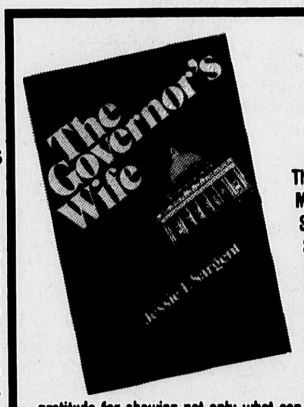
Some of the friends invited to share the joy of the occasion were members of the original wedding party. They were ushers Onofrio Santoro, Somerville; maid of honor Mrs. Frances Fulginiti, Dedham; three bridesmaids, Mrs. Mary Tedesci, Watertown, Mrs. Emma Giudice, Medford, Mrs. Elvira Delfino, Medford; and the flower girl Mrs. Bessie Poverini, Everett.

Woman's club committee meets

Mrs. James I. Glaser, ways and means chairman of the Auburndale Women's Club, entertained her committee at lunch at her home recently. The committee planned for the annual "spring fling" of the club.

The "spring fling" will be held at the Auburndale Club on Wednesday, April 24. Community projects of the club are supported by this event.

This year, the theme is "spring madness." The art committee, headed by Mrs. Gordon Ellis with the assistance of Mrs. Charles Cossaboom, will decorate the hall. Mrs. William B. Graham will be in charge of tickets. Miss Constance Bradley will have a spring garden table. Miss Lilian Birrell will be in charge of hand-crafts and Mrs. Ethel Jane Ramsden will superintend a home cooked food table.



This inspiring book by Mrs. Sargent reveals why Senator Edward Brooke Said: "Jessie Sargent has vividly described the tribulations and joys of being the wife of a public official. All of us in public service owe her a debt of gratitude for showing not only what can be done, but what cannot. With Jessie Sargent the former is more apt to be the case."

New Filene's opens in Chestnut Hill Mall

Will be Filene's largest branch store

Filene's newest store located in the Mall at Chestnut Hill will officially open its doors today at 9:30 a.m. This new Filene's in Chestnut Hill is the largest Filene's branch store ever built and will be a showcase for ready-to-wear merchandise and accessories for women, men, children and decorative things for the home. The current Filene's in Chestnut Hill closed Satuday.

"The new Filene's in Chestnut Hill will be a unique one. It is different from any store Filene's has ever done," says James M. Colman of Needham, Manager of the new store.

Much of the excitement and the news concerning this new store is centered around the architecture and interior design of the building itself. Designed by Raymond Loewy and William Snaith, the three-level building is spacious, yet designed to give a feeling of intimacy and sophistication.

The exterior is a contemporary design constructed of split white brick, white marbel and mosaic. It is a dramatic stage setting to present fashion merchandise in an enticing innovative way.

The interior departments are set at angles from one another with sloped ceilings, curved walls and arched alcoves. There are seven major speciality shops identified. Honey, wheat and champagne colors highlight the wide range of dress shops which include the French Shop, Plaza, Oxford, Bostonian, Stratford, Career Shop and Lifestyle. The wallpaper ranges from sophisticated silver and gold geometric patterns to corduroy. Oriental rugs and elegant furniture accent these shops.

The focal area of the upper level is the largest Men's store in any Filene's branch. It is designed by Ron Pavlick of Environmental Design, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to reflect the vast assortments and far-flung appeal of the clothes and furnishings. The contemporary man will find such collections ranging from world-renowned designer, Pierre Cardin, to Levi.

The setting for all this is one of beamed ceilings and sloped walls which form a pyramid in the Contemporary Shop. Elegant furniture enhances the entire area including a wood credenza covered by a tapestry and wicker and oak chairs on natural wood floors and on solid and patterned area rugs. "Abstracta" metal fixtures, which resemble structures made from an erector set, provide the focal points in areas and plastic and chrome fixtures in hexagonal shapes present men's clothing and furnishings in a totally new way.

Artist's sketch of new Chestnut Hill store

Another of the identifiably speciality shops is children's clothing and accessories, ranging from infants through young teens. Sportswear, dresses, coats and all accessories are housed in bright, bold colors. The decor is in bright red, white and blue. Older children, shoes, and the toy shop are in vibrant shades of oranges, reds, and pinks with cylindrical fixtures scattered throughout the area.

Sportswear is set in a shop of its own on the lower level where arched alcoves and sloped walls meet in bright green lattice wallpaper and brilliant green carpets. Designer sportswear will be prominently featured in major collections, just three steps up in the center of the shop. These areas have distinct personalities to match the multiplicity of life styles in the community of shoppers.

The Junior Shops are in plush, bold, strongly colored carpets and contemporary lighting and fixtures. Suede wallpaper highlights the curved dividing walls. For the first time in a Filene's branch store the Junior Shoe Shop is at home with junior dresses and sportswear.

The accessories form a wishbone in the center of the lower level. Cosmetics, belts, jewelry, handbags, hosiery and blouses have individual areas angled off from the ceramic tile floor. Chrome fixtures and curved half walls subtly divide areas into shops. A shoe area with collections from top designers is just across the aisle. Lingerie, sleepwear and robes are appropriately set against a pastel pallette. Coats, raincoats and furs are also accessible.

The decorative home area, also designed by Ron Pavlick, is dramatic in its presentation of gift merchandise. Elegant china, glass and silver merchandise will reflect the contemporary or classic tastes of customers. The gift area is amplified by towels, sheets, a bath shop, linens, stationery, games and candy.

Each of the seven speciality shops within the store, highlighted by vast dress and men's areas, has a separate identity of design. Colorings are by Filene's own visual design experts.

Escalators are impressive with a circular arch sweeping up and around to the second level. The subtle stripes in soft brown tones lead the eye to the ceilings above and create a feeling of soft movement.

Filene's will also feature a restaurant on the upper level. Called the "Greenery," four rooms will reflect its theme. One room is like a potting shed with wood floors and potted and hanging plants, while another appears to be a greenhouse with tile floor and brick walls. The third room is more rustic with beamed ceilings and natural wood floors, while the fourth room, overlooking Route Nine has lattice work in a garden motif in bright green with bombay fans. Also on the upper level is the Michel Kazan beauty salon with a new, separate styling area for men's hair.

The new Filene's in Chestnut Hill will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. each day, Monday through Saturday. It is easily reached from Route Nine or the Hammond Pond Parkway. Parking is available on both levels of the Mall.

Pet Care Corner

By RICHARD W. BRYANT
Director of Education
Animal Rescue League

"What's a nice dog like you doing in a place like this?"

When the missing family pooch is discovered in the local humane shelter or city dog pound, his owner is usually astounded. He shouldn't be. Allowing a dog to run loose is the surest way to get him into trouble—confinement, if the pet is lucky; injury or even death if he's not.

Leash laws were made for the protection of pets and people alike. Unleashed dogs roaming loose risk being hit by a car, lost, stolen by dognappers, or injured in fights with other animals. They are also a nuisance to the neighbors and, if they join a roaming pack of dogs, can be a real menace to pedestrians.

In addition to attacking children and adults, dog packs will also occasionally kill wildlife, domestic livestock and fowl. A Massachusetts zoo lost 13 deer to a pack not long ago. Dogs usually will not pack together unless they are following a female dog who is in season.

Preventing, or altering, bad behavior habits in a dog calls for an awareness of responsibility on the part of the owner.

All dogs should be confined to house or yard when the owner is not present. Females in season should be kept inside the house for three weeks, except for supervised exercise periods on a leash. Unless you plan to breed your female and find homes for all the puppies, it is wise to have her spayed.

If it is not practical for you to exercise your dog on a leash, and if your yard is not enclosed, create an outdoor exercise arrangement with a simple pulley system. Just attach a wire about thirty feet long between two posts or trees. On the wire put a ring that will slide back and forth. Then tie a long rope to the ring and fasten the other end to your dog's collar, so that he can move in a large area at will but still be under control.

Be sure your dog has an up-to-date license tag and wears it at all times. It will provide easily traceable identification if he is lost, and will also prevent you, as his owner, from being subject to a fine.

In the final analysis, a dog can be only as law-abiding as his master.

Q. Mr. J.F. of Acton asks: I always though cats loved milk but ours will hardly touch the stuff. Will too little milk in their diet cause a vitamin deficiency?

A. Commercial cat foods contain all the nutrients your pets need for a balanced diet. Cats' tastes differ—just like people. Some enjoy milk and others don't but in either case milk should never be used as a substitute for solid food. It should be given only in small quantities and never allowed to stand in a dish for any length of time.

Tay-Sachs mailing by B'nai B'rith

A mailing to Jewish individuals chosen randomly with respect to socio-economic class is being prepared by the Tay-Sachs Committee headed by Alan Larkin, vice-president of the Greater Boston Council B'nai B'rith.

The mailing consists of two anonymous questionnaires; one to be filled out by the husband, the other by the wife. These questionnaires have been carefully prepared with the assistance of doctors and geneticists.

Tay-Sachs disease is an inherited disorder caused by the absence of a vital enzyme in the body, resulting in the destruction of the nervous system. It is a disease transmitted as an autosomal recessive trait; when the abnormal gene is carried by both parents, there is a 25 percent chance the child will be affected. The disease is always fatal to the affected child, frequently before the fourth year.

Tay-Sachs disease is unique in that its incidence is concentrated in a particular group group of people, namely Jewish individuals of European origin. It is estimated that there are between 75 and 100 cases of Tay-Sachs disease each year in this country. It occurs 100 times more often in eastern European Jews than in non-Jews, and among Jews, it is believed that approximately one out of thirty persons carries the Tay-Sachs gone.

Tigers win, South loses in tournaments

By BRUCE BOYNICK

Newton South's basketball team was ousted from the state basketball tournament, losing to Bay State League champs, Dedham, 72-57, this week at Waltham High School.

The Lions led once, 2-0, when Mark Aronson hit a long shot. Dedham orged ahead, 4-2, but a tip-in by South center Rich Spector tied the contest at 6-6, four minutes into the contest.

Spector picked up his third personal when the score was 10-6. Two three point plays helped the Marauders to a 15-10 first quarter lead.

A Dedham press, effective the entire afternoon, was instrumental in a 13-4 Marauder surge that made the score 28-14 with 5:16 remaining in the half. Two second effort baskets by Aronson helped the Lions to remain within striking distance, as they trailed 38-24 at intermission.

Dedham opened the second half scoring with two baskets, but Aronson responded with two swishes deep from the corner, to make the score 42-28. Dedham led 53-40 after three quarters.

The Marauders extended their lead to 62-44, and the game looked out of reach. But the Lions fought back on buckets by Harris and Aronson, and trailed by twelve, at 62-50 with three minutes to play.

Dedham's Jeff Dillon responded with some close range shots to put the contest out of reach at 68-50.

Leading the Lions in scoring was junior Mark Aronson. The 5-9 guard was brilliant, hitting shots from a variety of angles and distances, finishing with 22 points. Harris and Spector hit for 14 and eight points respectively, Dillon was Dedham's top scorer with 20 points.

Despite the loss to Dedham, now 17-3, the Lions have much to be proud of. Newton South had never qualified for the state basketball tournament before this year.

This season's final record of 12-6 was a pleasant switch from last year's tally of 6-12. The outlook for next year seems promising. The Lions will miss the services of 1974 graduates Capt. Mark Jefferson, Spector, Steve Korn, Jeff Kublin and Rick Sharton. Three-fifths of their starting five will presumably return. Juniors Harris, Aronson and Howie Pinderhughes are expected back. They may be joined by Chandler Bosworth, Saul Rubin, Bob Lent, Jerry Antonellis, and a talented junior varsity, led by 6-3 forward, Jim Sherman.

Newton South was 12-5 in regular season play, and 8-4 against Dual County League opponents. It lost its final regular season game to Franklin, 46-25.

Newton North's basketball team gained wins over Diman Voke and Plymouth Carver in state tournament play this week.

The wins advanced Newton North to the third round of Division I South.

The Tigers played Diman Voke on a neutral court on Monday. Newton North limited Diman to two points in the first quarter and 14 points in the first half.

Diman scored only two points again in the third period, and the Tigers finished with a 62-36 victory.

Jack Ryan was Newton's top scorer with 12 points. Sophomore John Williams had 10 points.

Newton North traveled to Braintree to oppose Plymouth Carver. The tigers had a 15-6 regular season record while Plymouth Carver was 16-2.

Peter Laskaris scored Newton North's first eight points, but Plymouth Carver gained a 10-8 lead.

Keith Glasser made a jump shot and Mark Wasserman tipped in a shot to help the Tigers to a 13-12 first quarter lead.

Plymouth Carver scored the first basket of the second period, but Newton then scored 11 straight points to go up by 10.

The final points of the first half were a pair of free throws by Laskaris and a long jump shot by Plymouth's Joe Britto. The Tigers led 35-28 at intermission.

Laskaris scored 16 points in the first half and had 12 rebounds. John Siever had eight points for Plymouth Carver.

Newton North increased its lead early in the thir quarter. Along jump shot by Glasser gave the Tigers an 11-point lead.

Newton North Coach Jerry Phillips gave some of his regulars a rest in the third period. The tigers were ahead 53-42 at the end of the quarter.

Laskaris made a lay-up at the beginning of final period, but Plymouth started to come back.

Plymouth Carver outscored Newton North 19-6 during one stretch, and the score was tied with three minutes to go. Lopes returned to the game and sparked his team.

The momentum was turned around by Mark Wassermen. The Newton North senior made a jump shot, stoole the ball, and scored a lay-up.

Newton North gained a 73-65 win. Laskaris finished with 24 points, Glasser had 22.

In the regular season, Newton North finished in a three-way tie for second place in the Suburban League. Brookline, Arlington and the Tigers all had 12-4 league records.

Newton North lost its final regular season game, a non-league encounter with Peabody.

Peabody, which had lost to Newton in overtime earlier in the season, gained an 81-72 victory.

Final Suburban League standings: Brockton, 12-4; Newton North, 11-5; Arlington, 11-5; Waltham, 8-8; Rindge Tech, 8-8; Weymouth South, 6-10; Weymouth North, 5-11; Cambridge Latin, 0-16.

Chess Chatter

By ANDREW SCHMIDT

This week's column about the present status of chess at Newton South High School is a continuation of last week's article that dealt with the past.

Since Fischer made his appearance in 1972, the chess club at South has boomed, with between 15-20 current active members. Even better, last year's group actually had over 30 players paying the annual dues!

Naturally, with the increased membership, the pool from which the team can select players has also increased in strength. This year the average rating of the team is roughly 1360, while just three short years ago, it was about 50 points lower, or about one-fourth of a USCF rating class.

Coming off a losing 3-6 record in the 72-73 season, this year's team currently stands at a winning 5½-3½, with match victories over Belmont, Rindge Tech, Winthrop, Roslindale, and Medford. With this record, the team stands in second place in the western division of the Greater Boston Schoolboy Chess League.

Headed by the dedicated faculty member Tony Eardman of the South math department, the team consists of Captain Jason Arbeiter, Club President John Hooker of the Upper Falls, and three Waban players . . . Eric Epstein, Ittai and Michael Kan.

In passing, let us not forget the efforts of the weaker 'B' team, which last year fought to an even 4-4 score, while this year has raised its quality to obtain a current 5½-2½ winning season. Brighton, Winthrop, Charlestown, and Boston English have found themselves victims of the 'B' team.

The Newton South team played in the Eastern Massachusetts High School three-man championship in Boston last fall, placing in the upper third of the 30 teams that entered. Ninth grader Daniel Shiman played top board, followed by Jason Arbeiter and John Hooker. They scored 2½-1½ in the four round event, beating Boston Latin and Peabody. Six players are currently active USCF members, a record for South.

South's chess activities appear optimistic. They will again be playing as a team in a high school tournament in Boston this April. With the upcoming return World Championship match in 1975 (and this author picks Spassky again!) South may pick up enough good players to become number one in the region. With its progress from my days three years ago to its present state, it is very possible.

This week's game is a game played for a challenge match to pick the top board on South's number one team. Although Hooker won this game, let us not forget that Arbeiter won this challenge match. The game is a Queen's Gambit Declined, and note Black's error in 8 . . . N-B3. The Q-Knight usually goes to Q2 to defend KR2, and knowing that, White makes a Kingside attack that wins. 16 . . . N-N5 was probably the losing move, but after 16 . . . N-K2 N-R5 B-B4 18 Q-N3 the game is very unclear. (Try 18 . . . Q-Q3 or 18 . . . BxB.)

Chess Shorts

Both Daniel Shiman and Bryon Snodgras picked up trophies in the Prudential Open held two weeks ago in Boston. Both Shiman and Snodgrass live in Newton and were profiled earlier.

The second Newton Booster tournament will be held in April. Details in an upcoming column.

Boston College cagers lose to St. John's, 80-72

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Wave goodbye to the NCAA's fellows.

Yet the Boston College Eagle basketball team may still be going to the NIT.

St. John's, of 17-5 fame, used the second half of its game with BC last week to nail down the last of three Eastern regional berths in the NCAA tournament.

St. John's utilized deadly shooting during the final 20 minutes to rebound from BC's 36-30 halftime lead for an 80-72 victory before before 4,001 at Roberts Center.

Pittsburgh and Providence are shoo-ins for the tournament and St. John's win gives it the third best record among Eastern independents.

Despite little production by Bob Carrington (one-for-nine and two points), BC looked remarkably in command through the game's first 20 minutes.

But a 6-7 unknown freshman name of Glen Williams didn't like the way things were going. Rather than sit around and look glum about it all, he decided to take action.

And his action was something few have seen in these here parts. Williams made seven straight shots which eventually propelled the Redmen to an 11-point lead.

Before and after Williams, St. John's offense was handled by Mel Utley, 21 points, and Ed Searcy, 14.

Senior Mark Raterink, who continues to surprise with clutch effort after clutch effort, pumped in 21 points to lead the Eagles.

Bill Collins, 16, Jere Nolan, 14, and Mel Weldon, 10, were also on target much of the evening.

The Eagles can take solace in one thing, anyway. New York isn't too ugly in March. They should just remember St. John's has to live there all the time. The Redmen may need a trip to North Carolina more than B.C.

St. John's was the big game of the week, but the Eagles' seventeenth win of the campaign a night later against Dartmouth, was satisfying because it showed the club could turn itself around fast. B.C. won 94-62.

Carrington turned himself around a bit, too, popping in a team-high 20 points. Raterink fired in 15 points.

Carrington continues to lead the team in scoring with an 18.8 average and has been high man in 15 of the team's 23 games.

Collins, who is just under in scoring, is picking off 9.4 rebounds a game.

South's Mike Shockett state wrestling champion

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Mike Shockett recently became the first Newton South state wrestling champion in the school's history.

Shockett won first place in the 107-pound class at the state wrestling tournament in Springfield.

The victory climaxed a brilliant season. Shockett had a 12-0 record during the regular season and won first place in his class in a district tournament.

Six wrestlers from Aredis Kojoyian coached Newton South teams had reached the final round of the state tournament in past years. All six finished in second place in their classes. Dave Berkowitz and John Staulo placed second a year ago.

Kojoyian was full of praise for the first champion. "Mike Shockett was a real hard worker who was totally dedicated to wrestling for three years," Kojoyian commented. "From his sophomore year on he never stopped working and it really paid off for him.

"Michael, in the beginning of the year, set high goals for himself, and all I can say is that I'm glad he achieved those goals," Kojoyian said.

Shockett, an excellent student, also ran cross country.

Shockett decisioned four opponents in the state tournament. He won his first match, against Jim Manning of Concord-Carlisle, by a score of 4-2.

In his quarterfinal match, Shockett gained an 8-3 victory. He won 4-1 in the semi-final round.

Shockett defeated Joe Digizio of Brockton, 6-0, in the final round.

Newton South Capt. Paul Linn finished third in the114-pound class. Linn lost to Brian Chew of Needham, but avenged his defeat in a match which decided third place. Linn defeated Chew, 8-3, in a consolation round. Chew had also defeated Linn during the regular season.

Junior Peter Nathanson placed fifth in the 128-pound class. Junior Peter Maples was sixth in the 177-pound division. Both wrestlers had finished first in a district tournament.

As a team, the Lions placed seventh, behind Lowell, Brockton, Wayland, Tewksbury, Melrose and Chelmsford. It was the second year in a row that South finished seventh in the state tournament.

Today's SPORTS Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — For those of you who sometimes wonder what ever became of Fritz Peterson, this is to let you know he made it—but not by much.

"I'm happy," he says. "Whatever has happened before is over and done with. Past history, as far as I'm concerned."

Fritz Peterson is coming off his first losing season in six years, and a $9,000 pay cut, but he appears exactly the way he says he feels—happy.

He looks 100 per cent different than he did last spring.

A year ago, he and fellow Yankee lefthander Mike Kekich figured in what probably was the most unique swap in all baseball history when they traded wives. Many wondered whether the two pitchers could possibly cope with all the public censure, the jockeying from the dugouts, which was bound to follow.

Strangely, there never was that much public censure and whatever jokes there were, never came from the bench.

Now it's one year later.

Mike Kekich is with Cleveland.

FRITZ DID NOT HIDE

Fritz Peterson is divorced from his wife, Marilyn, and expects to marry Susan Kekich shortly, as soon as her divorce is finalized.

These developments plus the fact that his won-lost record nose-dived to 8-15 last year following a 17-15 log the season before, did not cause Peterson to dig a hole for himself some place and hide.

He went out ad spoke at more than a dozen Little League banquets instead. He wanted to find out what the kids' reaction to him would be and he did.

"They were tremendous," says the Yankees' 32-year-old lefty. "What they wanted to talk with me about was baseball and that really showed me 'it' was over with. I think I did 15 banquets and in all those, only one kid made a remark. He said something like 'how's your wife?' I said, next question."

As for what happened to him on the field last year, Fritz Peterson says he lost his concentration, especially after mid-season, but he refuses to blame that on his ordeal off the field.

Blames Himself

"The only one I blame is myself," he says. "I'd get behind toward the end of the year, and I'd lose interest in the games. That was wrong because I was only hurting myself.

"What I was doing was looking for things to go wrong, and sure enough they would. When you look for things to go wrong, you'll find them somewhere. My overall outlook last year was poor."

A torn muscle in Peterson's right thigh didn't help matters. Unable to follow through properly, he discarded his regular pitches, the ones which helped him win 20 games only three years before, and experimented with others. He became a defensive pitcher and his earned run average jumped the same way the mercury does anytime someone puts a match under the thermometer.

"Now I'm starting out with a brand new slate," says Peterson, pumping fast balls at catcher Thurman Munson on the sidelines while Whitey Ford, the Yankees' pitching coach, looks on.

"No more experimenting. I'm going over this whole thing with Whitey and try to get four basic pitchers ready —my fast ball, slider, palm ball and what I call 'the thing.' It's not a knuckle-curve or a knuckleball. It's something like Burt Hooton (of the Cubs) throws, but I'm older than he is, so I threw it first."

Fritz Peterson's features broke into a smile.

He's happy, all right, and he shows it.

Friars no. 1

BOSTON (UPI) — Providence College has found yet another way to be voted the No. 1 team in New England—unanimously.

The Friars, 23-3, and a shoein for another NCAA tournament bid, received all 17 firstplace votes cast for 85 points in the latest UPI coaches ratings of Division I teams in New England.

Providence, winner of the UPI poll for two straight years, has led Division I all 13 weeks of this season's ratings.

Massachusetts, 19-4, climbed back into second place after a two-week stay in third place. The Minutemen received 62 points to 41 for Boston College, which lost two of three games last week to drop to third.

Connecticut, 167, stayed in fourth place with 27 points and Fairfield, 15-8, moved back into the top five after a month-long absence.

Points are awarded on a descending scale, with first-place votes worth five points apiece.

WHITE SOX SIGN 2

CHICAGO (UPI) — Minor leaguers Lee "Beebee" Richard, a shortstop, and Sam Ewing, a first baseman, Thursday signed baseball contracts with the Chicago White Sox.

The signings reduced the Sox' unsigned players to nine with two in arbitration, the club announced.

South skaters lose two games

By MARK COOPER

Newton South's hockey team lost the final two games of its season.

The Lions lost to Lincoln-Sudbury, 7-1. The score was close until the final period when Lincoln scored five unanswered goals.

Lincoln-Sudbury's Steve Leger scored the first goal of the game. South's Kevin Schmidlein tied the score with a deflection of a Don Ferrari pass.

Lincoln-Sudbury had a territorial advantage in the first and second periods. The Warriors gained a 2-1 lead midway through the second period.

The score was still 2-1 with seven minutes remaining in the game. Several South players were charged with penalties and Lincoln scored two goals within 51 seconds. Three more goals were added to up the score to 7-1.

South concluded its season with a 3-0 loss to Wayland. Two goals within 45 seconds by Todd and Chic Johnson gave Wayland a 2-0 lead.

Todd Johnson scored from in close and brother Chic scored on a tip in.

Newton South finished with a 3-10-1 record.

All but two work out

WINTER HAVE, Fla. (UPI)— The Boston Red Sox expected all but two of their players to be in uniform and to participate in the first full squad practice today.

Pitcher Juan Marichal, the 35-year-old right-hander obtained during the winter from the San Francisco Giants, has been given permission to delay his arrival until March 1. Designated hitter Orlando Cepeda has advised the club that he'll be two or three days late because of pending court proceedings in Puerto Rico.

Cepeda's delay didn't seem to bother either manager Darrell D. Johnson or General Manager Dick O'Connell.

"Any action taken would have to be initiated by O'Connell, and I don't know of any discussion of a fine or anything like that," Johnson said.

"It doesn't disturb me," O'Connell said. "I know he's anxious to get started and he's worried about whether he has a job this year."

"Only pitchers and catchers have been working out officially at Chain O'Lakes Park, but seven nonbatterymen have been going through conditioning drills on an informal basis, some for as much as six weeks," O'Connell said.

Johnson said Tuesday that there will be competition for all positions except center field, third base and catching. His center fielder will be Rick Miller. Rico Petrocelli will start at third base and Carlton "Pudge" Fisk will catch.

Mike might see Charley in court

Mike Andrews won't see Charlie Finley in spring training this year but he may see him in court.

According to a Boston report, Andrews will file suits against Finley and the Oakland A's team doctor for a total of $1.5 million, claiming the two damaged his career.

Andrews, released by Finley right after making two errors in last year's second World Series game, was unavailable for comment at his West Peabody, Mass., home but his attorney, Harold Meizler of Boston, said the veteran infielder would have "absolutely no comment."

Finley, who said Andrews had a shoulder injury and placed him on the disabled list, was surprised about the report Andrews was bringing a $1 million suit against him.

"Mike Andrews sueing me? This is the first I've heard about it," said Finley.

According to Tuesday's Boston Herald American, Andrews also plans to file a $500,000 suit against Dr. Charles Hudson, who examined the athlete's shoulder after the two errors and recommended the disabled list.

You remember the whole Andrews affair, of course, after the second game of last year's World Series.

Andrews went home after signing a release form but baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered him reinstated for the fourth game. Andrews was not offered a new contract for 1974.

Andrews has tried to catch on with other teams but no one has been interested.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

HYBRIDS vs NON HYBRIDS: Now that the seed catalogs have started to pour in, many gardeners are wondering which is best—hybrid or non-hybrid seed? Our modern vegetables and flowers are modern miracles in hybridizing. Hybrids are noted for their extra vigor and production. A lot of old timers are slow to accept some of these newer introductions. It should be mentioned that there are still some good "old fashioned" varieties left and we don't think they should be given up completely, not if you've been having good luck growing them. You shouldn't close the door to our hybrids either.

Ever wonder what the word "hybrid" means? It comes from the latin, Hibrida, meaning "off spring of a tame sow and a wild boar. You're all familiar with a useful animal hybrid, the mule. It's the off-spring of a jackass and a mare. Combining strength and vigor, the mule has been invaluable to mankind both on the arm and in pioneering.

In the plant word, hybrids are crosses between selected parents of different varieties. The resulting progeny often is worthless and has to be discarded by the plant breeder. But once in a while the result is a new super hybrid that combines strength and vigor just like the mule animal.

The high cost of hand pollination—as opposed to haphazard pollination by bees, explains the higher cost of hybrid seed. But the better results achieved by increased vigor, increased yields, disease resistance and uniformity more than justify the extra cost.

So, when you order seed and notice the higher price of the hybrids, consider the time and labor that went into obtaining a good crop of vegetables or flowers. The cost of seed is still by far the smallest expense in growing a crop.

SCABBY POTATOES: Last year home gardeners experienced "scabby" potatoes. What causes this? As you may know, scabby potatoes have small pits on the tubers, rendering them unsightly. Scab is a bacterial disease favored by a sweet or alkaline soil. It is stopped in acide sils (pH5.6) so if your soil is sweet)that is, alkaline), sulfur will lower th pH reading to the point where the scab organism cannot live. Some gardeners lick the scab problem by dusting their seed potatoes with sulfur. They put one big handful of sulfur in a paper bag of potatoes and shake thoroughly to make sure each seed piece is coated with sulfur. You can get dusting sulfur from seed stores or in a drug store.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Every time we water our house plants small insects start swimming around on the surface. What are they?"

Answer: Chances are they are the springtail, a pest with a small lever underneath. There are other organisms found in soil such as larvae of fungus gnats, and symphyllids. Control: Dust a little Sevin on the soil surface and wash it in, or mix up juice of cigar butts and pour over the soil surface. The nicotine kills all the underground pests.

Nixon says gift proper

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, expressing a willingness to pay what he owes, says his gift of vice presidential papers to the National Archives "apparently" was not concluded until after a tax law change made ,it impossible to take deductions for such gifts.

In that case, he is likely to owe about $235,000 in back taxes, plus interest.

Nixon had never before acknowledged that the gift appeared to be improper.

"There is no question about my intent," he said Monday night at his news conference.

"The paper work on it (the gift) apparently was not concluded until after that time," he said. "This raises a legal question as to whether or not the deduction, therefore, is proper.",

Nixon said he would comply with the decision of Congress' House-Senate Committee on International Revenue Taxation.

The gift was the largest factor in reducing Nixon's 1969-72 taxes. To be valid it had to be completed before July 25, 1969, when a bill signed into law by Nixon made such gifts no longer tax deductible.

Nixon said the same deductions have been claimed by economist John Kenneth Galbraith; Jerome Wiesner, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and the late President Johnson.

During her 28 years in China, she was supported by her home church, the First Baptist Church of Pittsfield. After her return from China, she was a member of the First Baptist Church, Gardner.

Officers and members of the auxiliary board of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Home will be honored at a testimonial luncheon in recognition of their excellent work for the Home. Hosts will be the Rev. Leland Maxfield, executive director, and Mrs. Maxfield.

Church Women United celebrate World Day of Prayer, March 1

Church Women United in Newton will join thousands of local communities in every state, in celebrating World Day of Prayer on Friday, March 1, at 12 noon at St. John the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church, 253 Watertown Street, Nonantum.

On this 88th World Day of Prayer, Church Women United will unite in prayers for "peace building" with women in 16 lands. The worship materials have been prepared by the women of Japan who have worked very hard since World War II in the peace movement in their own country.

The Rev. Richard W. Bauer, pastor of Second Congregational Church in Newton will speak on the theme "Make Us Builders of Peace." Music will be provided by organist Sister Mary Rita and by the Bell Ringers of Centenary Methodist Church under the direction of Mrs. Wendell Yeo. Other participants in the worship service will include Mrs. Thomas S. Hayden, president of CWU in Newton; Mrs. Per Hassing, spiritual life chairman; the Rev. George Dufour; Mrs. Russell Mahony and Mrs. Howard MacMullen.

World Day of Prayer provides an occasion for participation in a nationwide offering which goes into a fund called Intercontinental Mission - the process by which Church Women United fulfills its goals of justice and peace through approved agencies. The primary focus this year is a contribution to an international fund for rehabilitation and reconciliation to which Christian women in other countries contribute.

A team of Asian women has recently visited the war-torn countries of Southeast Asia to discover the needs from the women war victims themselves. Other funds will enable a team of women in the Caribbean area to work in helping women to improve their social, economic and religious life. Contributions for this fund will rebuild a training center where church women in Eastern Nigeria are working on rehabilitation tasks as a result of the Biafra-Nigeria conflict.

Rep. Lois Pine speaks at transportation conference

Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) was the keynote speaker before the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles fourth annual Pupil Transportation Conference, held recently in Hyannis.

Addressing an audience consisting of school transportation officials from all over the state, Rep. Pines noted that two types of improvements are needed to assure safer school buses.

"It is necessary to improve the design and construction of school buses," contended Rep. Pines. "School bus manufacturers have designed and tested safety features that are ready for implementation if appropriate standards are issued. The Registry of Motor Vehicles, which has jurisdiction over safety equipment in school buses, should revise its regulations to reflect the development of new, safer equipment."

In addition, Rep. Pines proposes that operational and procedural methods be drastically revised. She has submitted legislation, H. 1066, which empowers the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to establish a training course for school bus drivers.

This course would consist of laws, regulations, policies, safety procedures, emergency procedures, and basic mechanical knowledge. "No person will be permitted to operate a school bus unless he or she has successfully completed this course and has been issued a certificate by the registrar," Rep. Pines noted.

Other provisions of H. 1066 prohibit standees in a moving bus and require the presence of at least one adult monitor on each school bus.

"Standees must be eliminated," asserted Rep. Pines. "Should a bus stop short, children standing in the aisles act as missiles, injuring both themselves and other children. Massachusetts should make every effort to comply with a federal regulation banning standees," contended Rep. Pines. This regulation, Standard 17, was issued by the Department of Transportation in May, 1972.

It is Rep. Pines' opinion that monitors are clearly needed on all school buses. "Anyone who has seen an unsupervised group of 40 children packed into a small space can easily visualize the potential for mischief that exists in school buses," Rep. Pines stated.

"The driver, intent upon operating the bus, is unable to properly supervise such a large group of children," she continued. "Monitors will allow the driver to devote full attention to driving. In the event of fire, or emergency, monitors would assist children in evacuating the bus. Last year two children were killed who might not have died had a monitor been on the buses."

Costs covering the implementation of this program would reportedly be borne by the state and federal governments. "The cost of children's lives and health cannot be evaluated," concluded Rep. Pines. "Our children are the nation's most valuable resource, and all steps necessary to insure their safety must be taken."

Post 440 asks

There are now 115 parking spaces. Cars frequently overflow onto surrounding streets despite the use of the unpaved portion of land that the Post now hopes to buy, according to Licarie.

Post 440 at one time expressed interest in leasing or buying the land for construction of a "tot lot" and park for the elderly.

Licarie went on to explain that more parking is needed to accommodate the large numbers of people that attend the various functions held at Post 440. He presented a list of about 100 meetings of nonprofit or charitable groups that had been held between May and January.

Many of these groups, which were charged little or nothing for the use of a room, could not have met had it not been for Post 440, Licarie said.

Small commented, "These groups have always met before."

Alan Barkin, former chairman of the Land Use Committee, pointed out that Post 440 will have to come before that committee with a petition for rezoning the land, since city-owned land is unzoned, as well as presenting a more acceptable financial offer to the Finance Committee.

In 1970 the Board of Aldermen approved sale of some of the land to Post 440 for the construction of its new building and last year approved the sale of an additional parcel of land to the Newton Housing Authority for four units of low-income housing.

The construction of the four units has been delayed by a ruling from the state Department of Community Affairs that bids were too high.

Several informed sources have expressed doubt that housing will ever be built on the site, in which case Post 440 might fulfill its intent of making a small park there instead.

At the time of the hearings on the sale to the Housing Authority, Post 440 supported the low-income housing, at the same time pointing out the deficiencies of a location next to a clubhouse that operates late into the night.

The proposal presented to the Finance Committee last week was an offer to buy the land "for parking and beautification."

Revised proposals to be submitted to the committee soon will show in detail the landscaping, which wwill concentrate on providing a green area along the California Street frontage and between the back of the proposed housing and the Post 440 parking lot.

SSI Alert meets to plan program

Project SSI Alert in Newton recently held a community meeting to plan an outreach program for Newton. It hopes to locate elderly, blind and disabled people who may be eligible for monthly U.S. Government checks under a new program called supplemental security income.

Supplemental security income payments through the Social Security Administration can be made to aged, blind, and disabled people who have little or no income and limited resources. People who were receiving public assistance as of Decmeber 1973 because they are blind, elderly, or disabled generally switched to the new program automatically. Other people have to apply.

Representatives from the Newton Visiting Nurse Association, Newton Council on Aging, Eliot Church, Elderly Housing Developments, Myrtle Baptist Church, Newton Division of Human Resources, Vista, Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., Newton Retired Men's Club, and Cambridge District Social Security Office attended the meeting.

Jay Hayes, from the Social Security Administration, explained a need to train people in Newton to fill out Project SSI Alert forms as a preliminary indication of potential eligibility. These forms will then be forwarded to the Cambridge District Social Security Office.

The Goal of Project SSI Alert is to make sure that every eligible person in Newton learns about supplemental security income and has a chance to apply.

A coordinated effort of social agencies, churches, and municipal departments will be required for an effective outreach program in Newton.

The month of March has been chosen for the SSI Alert Drive. There will be a special training sessionforvolunteersand agencyrepresentativestofill outpreliminaryeligibility formsonMarch1attheNewton CommunityServiceCenters, Inc.429CherryStreet,West Newton,from10a.m.to11:30 a.m.Thosepeoplewhoare interestedinfillingouttheeligibility formswillberegisteredwith the Social Security Administration and will carry an identification card.

During the month of March there will be an SSI Alert information number published. Also, a list of places where eligibility forms may be filled out. An SSI Alert volunteer will make personal visits to potential eligibles who are housebound. There will also be a series of community meetings in each one of the villages to explain the SSI regulations and to fill out eligibility forms.

The SSI Alert Project for Newton expects to find many seniors and handicapped individuals eligible for benefits under the new legislation. If a person is found to be eligible for as little as one dollar per month in supplemental security income, then they will also be eligible for medicaid benefits.

People may contact Mrs. Marjorie Glassman at the Newton Community Center 969-5906 for more information about Project SSI Alert for Newton.

Harrington appointed to drunk driving commission

Rep. Peter Harrington has been appointed to a special commission relative to the penalty for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs.

The penalty in Massachusetts for driving under the influence is mandatory revocation of one's license for a minimum of one year.

The commission will focus its attention in two areas: The first concerns the question of the one-year revocation of the driver's license, which rarely helps the offender's drinking problem. The second focus is on designing a realistic rehabilitation program for drunken drivers. The commission hopes to develop a law that will be enforced and applied by the courts. In conjunction with this, an effective rehabilitation program is needed that will apply to anyone driving under the influence.

This special commission wants to recommend a responsible approach for funding that will not be opposed in the legislature.

Rep. Harrington has suggested three proposals. One would be to take money from the imposed fines and use it for funding the rehabilitation programs.

Harrington also recognizes the need to develop new and innovative systems of making the public aware of the consequences of driving under the influence. Offenders must learn what alcohol abuse means, i.e., that driving under the influence is an alcohol problem.

Thirdly, Rep. Harrington suggested that an additional tax on liquor purchases be used to fund the rehabilitation programs.

The course of action for the commission now is to study presently existing programs. The Alcoholic Safety Action Projects are local level programs funded by the Department of Transportation in Washington. Each ASAP develops an Alcohol Safety Advisory Committee. They include public information and education sections that focus on raising the level of the public's recognition of this problem and the steps required for positive solutions.

Participation in the program is voluntary for offenders who have been convicted of operating under the influence or driving to endanger. The ASAP assigns to each person, a probation officer, who makes a pre-sentance investigation and recommendation to the judge after the program is completed. All persons in the program are required to attend and complete seven sessions of an alcohol reeducation course.

We think the average parent should know as much about drugs as the average pusher.

Sometime soon you'll want to talk with your teenagers about drugs. The sooner the better. We hope this page gives you something to start talking about. Because we want you to get to your kids before somebody else does.

THE OPIATES

When most people refer to "narcotics" this group of drugs is what they are talking about. Opiates are used medically as pain killers. On the street they cause pain for the user and society in general.

Opium
a white powder from the unripe seeds of the poppy plant. Opium can be eaten, but it is usually smoked in an opium pipe.

Morphine
is extracted from opium. It is one of the strongest medically used pain killers, and is strongly addictive.

Heroin
this strongly addictive drug is prepared from morphine. Outlawed even from medical use, heroin is the most commonly used drug among addicts. It can be sniffed, injected under the skin, or into a vein. Street slang for heroin includes "scag", "smack", "H", or "junk".

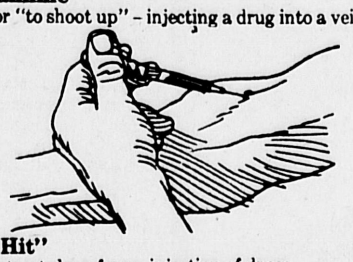
"On the Nod" or nodding. The state produced by opiates. Like being suspended on the edge of sleep.

Mainline
or "to shoot up" – injecting a drug into a vein.



"A Hit"
street slang for an injection of drugs.

Works
the apparatus for injecting a drug. May include a needle, and a bottle cap or spoon for dissolving the powdered drug.

A Fix
one injection of opiates, usually heroin.

Junk
heroin, so named because it is never pure as sold on the street.

Junkie
an opiate addict.

Skin Popping to inject a drug under the skin.

A Bag
packet of drugs, or a single dose of an opiate. Amount of the drug in the bag is denoted by price, a nickel bag ($5), a dime bag ($10).

"Cold Turkey"
describes the withdrawal that occurs after repeated opiate use. The addict can become irritable, fidgety, perspiration increases, there is a lack of appetite. The main problem in discontinuing opiate use is not getting off the drug, it's staying off.

Track

Overdose
cause of over 200 teenage deaths in New York City last year. Death is caused because the part of the brain that controls breathing becomes paralyzed.

Addiction
physical dependence on a drug, so that when the drug is taken repeatedly, and stopped suddenly, physical withdrawal occurs.

THE STIMULANTS

These drugs stimulate the system, or make a person more lively. While they are not physically addictive like the opiates, they produce a psychological dependence or craving.

Amphetamines
these stimulants are taken in tablet or capsule form, or injected into the blood stream. Among the widely used amphetamines are:
Dexedrine – or "dex" or "dexies".
Benzedrine – or "bennies".
Methedrine – or "speed" or "crystal meth".
Biphetamine – or "footballs".

Mental Effects of "Speed" amphetamines produce a decreased sense of fatigue, increased confidence, talkativeness, restlessness, and an increased feeling of alertness. As dosage increases amphetamines can produce irritability, distrust of people, hallucinations, and amphetamine psychosis

Amphetamine Psychosis
a serious mental illness caused by overdoses or continued use of amphetamines. The person loses contact with reality, is convinced that others are out to harm him. The most frightening part – this psychosis sometimes continues long after person has stopped taking the drug.

Rush
the brief heightened state of exhilaration at the beginning of a high.

Crashing
withdrawal from amphetamines, the swift descent from an amphetamine high to severe lows of depression.

Cocaine
another kind of stimulant, derived from cocoa leaves. It is sniffed as a white powder, or liquefied and injected into a vein. It produces a fast and powerful feeling of elation. Cocaine does not produce physical dependence (addiction), but does produce a strong psychological craving.

Coke
street slang for cocaine.

PSYCHEDELICS

The medical classification of all mind altering substances. "Psychedelics" change a person's perception of his surroundings.

Hallucinogens
Those psychedelics which cause hallucinations.

LSD
probably the most powerful psychedelic. Reactions to LSD are extremely unpredictable. Distortions in time and space. Brighter colors. Vivid sounds. Feelings of strangeness. A sense of beauty in common objects. Sometimes fear and panic. Sometimes even psychosis.

Flashback
a user can be thrown back into the LSD experience months after the original use of the drug. Other possible risks of LSD, which are being thoroughly researched, include brain damage and chromosome breakage.

Acid
a slang term for LSD. A frequent LSD user is an "acid head".

Drop to take any drug orally. LSD is usually dissolved in water, and may be placed on a sugar cube. The term is to "drop acid".

DMT
a powerful psychedelic prepared in the laboratory as a powder or liquid. It is usually injected into the vein or smoked along with marihuana or in cigarettes.

Psilocybin
this psychedelic comes from a mushroom. It is less potent than LSD and takes a larger dose to get the effect.

Peyote
from the peyote cactus, causes pronounced visual effects. It is used in a religious ritual by some Southwestern U.S. and Mexican Indians and its use in these rituals is legal.

Mescaline
"mesc" is the common name for this drug which also comes from the peyote cactus. Stronger than peyote itself, mescaline also causes vivid visual impressions.

DOM
called STP by users. The effects of STP can last for two or three days.

Marihuana
the crushed and chopped leaves and flowers from the hemp plant. Sometimes smoked in cigarette form. Sometimes smoked in pipes. Reactions can be: a giddy feeling like drunkenness; changes in perception and mood; feelings of well-being or fear; and possibly hallucinations. Slang terms for marihuana are "grass" or "pot".

Joint a marihuana cigarette.

Roach
the butt end of a joint.

Stoned
describes the intoxicating effect of marihuana, or really any drug, or alcohol.

Hashish
called "hash". Also prepared from the flowering tops of the hemp plant. Hashish is smoked in a pipe or taken orally, and is more powerful than marihuana.

THC
tetra hydro cannabinol. Purified extract of the resin of the hemp plant. Also made in the laboratory. It is thought to be the substance in marihuana and hashish that causes the mind altering effects of these substances.

Trip
a name for the reaction that is caused by a psychedelic drug. A bummer is an unpleasant or frightening trip.

Head someone who uses drugs frequently.

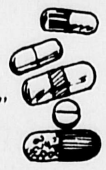
THE DEPRESSANTS

The category of drugs that depresses the functions of the brain.

"Downs" street slang for depressants.

Alcohol
ethyl alcohol, a depressant because it slows the functions of the brain that control thinking and coordination. In high doses it produces drowsiness and sleep. Alcohol is an addictive drug, since after prolonged or continued use, it can cause physical dependence (alcoholism), and when discontinued, causes withdrawal symptoms at least as serious as the other addictive drugs.

Barbiturates
these drugs are in the group called sedatives – medicines to make you sleepy. Barbiturates are taken in capsule or tablet form. They cause physical dependence (addiction), and after repeated use, physical withdrawal does occur when these drugs are discontinued. Among the common commercial names for barbituates are:
Seconal or "red devils"
Nembutal or "yellow jackets"
Amutal or "blue heavens" or "blue-devils"
Luminal or "purple hearts"
Tuinal or "rainbows" or "double trouble"



Barbiturate Overdose
more people in the United States die as a result of an overdose of barbiturates (usually suicide) than of any oth .ingle substance.

Intoxication
sedative or tranquilizer intoxication is similar in its symptoms to alcohol intoxication. Driving while intoxicated can be extremely dangerous, and is thought to cause at least 25,000 traffic fatalities a year.

Tranquilizers
drugs that calm tension and anxiety. These drugs do not cause sleep except in high doses. Tranquilizers are taken in capsule or tablet form. Some common commercial names for tranquilizers are: Equanil, Miltown, Librium, and Valium.

INHALANTS

Among substances which are inhaled and produce a high are: glue, gasoline, lighter fluid, and refrigerants. Continued inhaling has been reported to cause severe anemia, liver damage, brain damage, and death.

RENT ONE WHEN YOU NEED ONE, FROM RODMAN CAR RENTALS

How many times have you found yourself with the need for a second car to entertain out of town guests or to take that special vacation trip? If your own car is in the repair shop or your wife needs the family car for a committee function, doesn't it really make more sense to rent a second car than to pay the endless monthly installments on a permanent one?

If you need a second car or truck for any reason, the people at Rodman Car Rentals are the people to see. They have the largest selection of Fords, Mercurys, and Lincolns in the area and they're all ready for short or long term use. SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — A study of travel costs in major cities has found that car pools carrying two or more persons and buses operating on city streets are the most economical means of commuting.

For an average one-way, 10-mile commuting trip, half on freeways and half on arterial streets, the cost per commuter of a four-person car pool was computed at 66 cents. The cost for an automobile with only the driver was found to be $2.64.

Fast Flying

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Sue Bean, wife of astronaut Alan Bean, said here recently she got a better idea of space speed when she went outside her Houston home to see Skylab II with her husband aboard pass overhead.

"When I walked back into the house, the special radio phone box they install in astronaut homes was ringing," she said. "When I picked up the phone it was Alan, saying he was over Madrid, Spain."

New parents' course

The Paulist Center will offer a unique eight-week seminar on the transition to parenthood, designed for couples who have recently had their first child. Dr. Sophie Lowenstein, Chairman of the Human Behavior Department, Simmons College School of Social Work, will conduct the seminar at the Paulist Center, 5 Park street, Boston. The starting date for the group will be arranged according to the convenience of applicants.

The transition to parenthood is perhaps the most decisive, the most irreversible and most difficult step in the life cycle. Many young adults in our society are not prepared for the drastic changes and demands and new responsibilities that parenthood brings into their lives. Since the beginning of new experiences often establishes long-lasting patterns of interaction, the beginning stage of parenthood is thought to be a decisive period for the development of the parent-child relationship. It is also a period of great change in peoples' lives, a time when there is searching for, and openness to, new ideas.

A seminar of eight sessions for new parents would inform parents about the research available in regard to their new roles, and in regard to their baby's needs and in regard to meeting their own needs.

Shaffers's Black Comedy Opens Friday

Three newcomers will make their debut with the Newton Country Players when the curtain opens this weekend on their mid-winter production of Peter Shaffer's farce, "Black Comedy."

The play is directed by Bob Reed of Newton Centre.

Performances are slated for Friday and Saturday, March 1-2 and March 8-9, at 8:15 p.m., at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

Donation is $2.50, with a special discount price of $1.50 for students on Friday nights only, upon presentation of identification. Cabaret-style seating with tables and chairs is planned for the hall, with its seating capacity of 175.

A first-year member of the group, Jerry Stepakoff of Newton Centre, will essay the role of Harold Gorrige. He has appeared locally in a number of musicals under the Mishkan Tefila Forum Players banner, including the roles of Hortensio in "Kiss Me Kate" and Avrum, the newsteller, in "Fiddler on the Roof," both directed by Harriet Wilson. He performed also in "Guys and Dolls" with the Elizabeth (N.J.) Community Players.

A Ph.D. chemical engineer by profession with AVCO Systems Div., Wilmington, Mass., he served recently as Master of Ceremonies at the Miss AVCO Awards Banquet, enacting the role of the Mel Brooks-Carl Reiner creation, the 2000 year-old man.

As a musician, Dr. Stepakoff studied trombone for six years under the tutelage of Irving Kopmar, first trombonist for the Hartford Symphony Orchestra, and played in the Boston University Symphonic Wind Ensemble for three years. He joined the Milton Community Band recently, under the direction of Ken Lodge.

Another new talent with the Players is Jack Glennon, who will portray Schuppanzich. In his only previous outing with the group, he enacted the dual roles of Bishop-Captain in "Anything Goes," an effort he repeated later in a mounting of the same show produced by Wheelock College. Other crediits include the roles of Nutsy in "Nutsy on the Mountain" and Polly Logan in "Supper on Sunday," both for the Montvale Players, Newton.

Ron Reed of Newton Centre, appears in the role of George Bamberger.

For further information concerning theatre party sponsorship or individual membership, phone Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Hobart describes career

By VIVIAN LEE SILVERMAN

"To play an instrument well one must have talent, but ambition, drive, and hard work, are all necessary elements."

So spoke Max Hobart, concert master and string coach for the Newton Symphony, assistant concert master of the Boston Pops, and teacher at the New England Conservatory.

As a child, Hobart had wanted to play the guitar. Living in California, at the age of 6, Max Hobart was invited, along with his neighborhood friends, to learn to play an instrument at the National Institute of Music. Because the guitar quota was filled, Hobart reluctantly agreed to begin practicing the violin. Now he says he feels differently about the violin. "It has become part of me like another limb."

Nine years ago, Michel Sasson, conductor of the Newton Symphony, asked Hobart to be his concert master and string coach. The concert master concerns himself with the technical part while the conductor centers on the musical.

Hobart sees his job as "setting examples and giving demonstrations of style and character for the difficult passages of a certain piece in bowings and fingerings."

Hobart's major interest is conducting. He says, "I see this as a natural step. It is a form of group teaching through which I can help the members of the orchestra to make better music. I want to transmit my experience to them so they can make use of it."

This year, Hobart was guest conductor with three community orchestras, the North Shore Philharmonic, the New Hampshire Philharmonic, and the Wellesley Symphony. After a successful debut with the North Shore Philharmonic, Hobart was asked to become their permanent conductor - a position he accepted for the 1974 season.

The Newton Symphony represents inspiration for Hobart. "I enjoy seeing their progress, for the evolution from first readings to the actual performance is beyond belief. No doubt their hard work has helped the Newton Symphony reach the high level it is famous for."

At the next Newton Symphony, he will play a Suite for violin and orchestra in A minor Op. 10 by Christian Sinding. This particular piece is very difficult and has rarely been heard for it has not often been attempted. Years ago, while listening to the beautiful recording by Jascha Heifetz, Hobart said he was inspired to learn and eventually play the piece.

The suite is in three movements. In the first movement the melody is given to the orchestra while a solo violin plays perpetual motion in sixteenth notes above it. The second is a slow movement, a beautiful and lyrical melody on G string for solo violin, contrasted by a slightly faster second theme which involves a duet between solo viola, and later solo cello. The final movement is a lively dance with brilliant display passages for the violin.

The concert will be held on March 3, at Meadowbrook Junior High School auditorium in Newton. The time is 8 p.m. For tickets or information, please call: 244-8506.
